SLEEPWALKERS

Sir George H. Savag) Recoli 's Seme

The many remarkable stories which have been told of persons falling from windows or walking over heights while in a somnambulatio state are supplemented by some extraordinary cases which are related by Bir George H. Savage, M.D., in The Practitioner. One concerns two friends of his who were traveling in Sweden. One night they stayed at a cafe and occupied the same room. Two hours after retiring one of them got up, seized water-bottle and hurled it against the wall. He then returned to bed and was perfectly unconscious of the act. Referring to somnambulistic automatism, the committing of acts quite unconsciously and without any recoleverybody is subject to its milder forms. The pianist can play difficult music whilst holding conversation on reneral aubjects. One can run up several flights of stairs in the dark automatically recognizing when each flight is reached, without counting the sumer a somewhat more serious form, and the case if mentioned of a nountry gentleman of middle age, active, healthy, and poher in habits, who came to London to commult his solidtur. Calling on a Turnelay morning he was told to call again at 3 p.m. He did not keep the appointment, and was not seen again until the following Friday, when he turned up at the office at three-thirty, apologizing for being half an hour late owing to his watch having stopped. He was under the impression that the day was still Tunsday, and had no knowledge of what he had done during the intervening time. He recognized that he had not shayed, but seemed to have washed, dreshed and catan regularly. Kpilepsy is the cause of many acts of somnambulistic automatism, and Bir George tells the story of a man who had passed a brilliant school and university currer and eventually entered the Government service. He secured an appointmnt abroad and left for the East in good health, but at Port Said he disappeared. After many months, when he was supposed to be lead, his friends hoard that he was in state of destitution far from where he landed, but he had no recollection I his movements after he left the beat After careful nursing, he was

He took a private secretaryship in the colonies, where he soon proved his ability, but he once more disappeared and was again found in a state of poverty in quite another part of the world. A third time he started work on a ranch and was making a success of it when he again vanished, and on his being discovered in a state of great distress some months after be was placed in an asylum.

Sheep of the Fares Islands. In the Faror Islands, away up to the North Atlantic, there are over 100, 000 sheep, hardy, active creatures that cramble like goats along the terraces. They live out, uncared for, all the year. The ordinary winter storms thay sear well enough. Early spring is the ime of danger, when sometimes eruel mortheast wind blows for many days. It comes from the Arctic los flore, the glaciers and snow fields of Spitzbergen, often bringing with it a otter fog that which drearily over the land, obscuring the light The freshly-springing grass is seared and withers away, the grass that the mother sheep need if they are to have milk for the coming lambs. And so the Labies die-by thousands they die -not only from starvation, but killed at birth by the ravens and crows. The ords linger near. They know the approach of travall, await the event, and the lamb is killed before the mother's eyes when she is too weak to rise and defend her young.

Old Yurkish Rules for Diplemats. The Turkish Government used at one, time to make foreign envoys in Constantinople conform in se a degree to Museulman customs. They were not allowed to appear in public accompanied by their wives, as thus practice might have caused hearthurnngs among the native women, who could never hope to be treated on an equality with their husbands. Endeavors were also made at one time to extend Mohammet's prohibition of wine to foreign diplomats. This was found impossible, but until the end of the 18th century all the wine connigned to them had to be convoyed

When Germany Wine If the Germans win a war thay make the lesers pay heavily. Nine French hamlets on the German frontier 'are still ongaged in paying off their respective shares of the indemnity of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. When the French Government was called upon to pay the indennity it was arranged that every town in the country should pay its share, varyne anywhere from $9,500 to $1,250,000. At the end of 43 years the nine villages are still in arrears. Several of them are bankrupt, and they have

More Infant-ry. Apropos of babies, not a few people are chuckling over the latest Father Vaughan story. While he was walking in Paris a suffragelte rushed at him, screaming, "Tell Hobs the army will never be right till you give wo-men more liberty."
