EDITORIAL NOTES

The Return of the automobile registration in Ontario for the year ending December, 1912, shows the number of automobiles owned by residents of the province as 19,667, or accommodation for one out of every 22 persons in the province. 3,101 are owned in rural parts and villages, 1,600 being the property of farmers.

Now that the Alberta of strike has proved to be one would be justified in looking for a reawakening of the speculative element in western Canada which has been dead for the past year. Reports that the stock of numerous developing companies has been marketed largely to the public outside the city of Edmonton, it is to get in on the new "good thing" and it is to get in on recent real estate "opportunities." It is to be hoped, however, that all investors will be tempered with caution and that investors will not soon forget the bitter lesson of the past nine months. Perhaps the evident tightness of money will not be an unhealthy thing at the present moment as it will cause more minute investigation of offerings—Bradstreet.

Mr. George S. Hartley said: In W. F. W. Peart of Burlington, the Liberals of Minto have a strong candidate for the coming elections for the Legislature. He was born and brought up near Burlington, and has long been one of the leading farmers of the county. He and Mr. A. W. Peart were the first to take up the work of establishing the Burlington Farmers' Institute. Mr. Fisher is prominent as a stock raiser and fruit farmer, a leading member of the Burlington Fruit Growers Association, and a consistent temperance man. For a number of years, under the Minto and succeeding Liberal governments he was a member of the Board of Education, proving himself an efficient and firm administrator. He has also occupied his organization, and is making through personal canvass. His supporters are sanguine that he will redound to the country.

The Toronto World in its leading editorial Monday said: "Mr. Rowell has a right to be proud of the dress demonstration he evoked in Massey Hall, and he has this reflection to give him confidence, that if the Ontario voters respond to his appeal, they did so to the Ross platform of fourteen years ago he will be returned to the legislature at the head of the working majority. The question is, will they? That is the question that their supporters generally conceive."

The platform of independent electoral opinion has brought about the feeling that governments exist for the advantage of the governed, and that when benefits are required, social reforms urgently needed, and measures adopted in other enlightened communities are ripe for application in Ontario. It does not matter which party gives relief so long as relief is given. No government is interested on the strength of what it has done; it can only rely on the strength of what it is going to do. This is it which gives the opposition an equal chance in every election. An opposition, if it can convince the people that its policies are better than those of the government, has a good chance.

Sir James Whitney has promised to continue his present policies. Mr. Rowell promises to abolish the bar and institute tax reform. The premier's honest and progressive past."

WORD OBSERVATIONS

A good deal is being said in the public press to town-planning, with a view to the future beauty or convenience of the cities and towns now growing up. If a town-planning commission were to visit Acton, it is very probable that recommendation would be made to preserve Cobble Hill from destruction by underdraining for gravel.

Product out of the highest point of the very high spot of Cobble Hill is afforded a splendid vantage ground from which to view the landscape over.

At this time of year use only the beauty of our tree-clad town appear to advantage, but there is a splendid vista extending to the directions of Erin, Rockwood, Campbellville, Georgetown and points nearer or further. It is very difficult to assess and well repay a visit by lovers of nature's beauty.

If Acton ever has a system of waterworks, one of the propositions is that the site of Cobble Hill should be used.

If a reservoir could be another of the reasons for caring for this elevation. And no town-planning commission would leave Acton without pointing out the need for such in years very soon to come.

And the burdens and cares of life this hot weather as you go along the street if you would like to smile, take a look at your ankles as you walk reflected in some of the plate-glass windows.

BOARD OF EDUCATION TROUBLES

A Deputation of Fathers of Six-Year-olds Demand Engagement of Teacher

AND ANOTHER ROOM FURNISHED

In the performance of their duties in a growing town several of the Edmunds find themselves constantly confronted with new difficulties and the necessity for large expenditures of public moneys. Two years ago the growing population of school room required the equipping of an additional room and the employment of an additional teacher. Last year an addition to the school building was demanded. Still the primary rooms were crowded and with a view to relieving the pressure the plan in view in various other towns was adopted and the age limit for beginners was raised to six years. In the meantime the Board of Education consisting of Dr. Bell, Councillor McDonald and Messrs. Wm. Reid and Holt, Matheson waited upon the Board, complained that their children who were almost six years old had been sent from the school, and demanded that an additional room be equipped and another teacher engaged so that all children over five years may be accommodated.

Dr. Bell said: "The school is the place of learning and the training of the mind, and it is the duty of the Board to provide an additional teacher so that every taxpayer may send his children to school when they are five years of age if they desire. He doubted the power of the Board to take the action now in force refusing to admit pupils under six years of age. He did not wish to be arbitrary but felt that he had a right to send his boy to school as he is now six years of age.

Mr. W. Reid contended that accommodation should be provided for all children of school age. My boy will not be six years for a month and a half yet, but I feel pretty sure when he was sent home an extra teacher should be engaged.

Councillor McDonald said his views coincided with those of the previous speakers. My little girl I think less brilliant as others of her age, and though nearly six and large for her age she was sent home. I thought that it was rather arbitrary to send her home. Everybody is anxious to have the Board to be economical in their expenditures as possible, but all citizens should have the privilege of sending their children to school at five years. My annual experience of five years has given me an idea of the difficulties of men in public service."

It was suggested that the deputation circulated a petition among the rate-payers urging the Board to engage an additional teacher. To this Councillor McDonald replied that this would be fairly fair to the deputation as it would be equally fair to the taxpayers who would oppose it. The Board knew their duty and they should do it.

Mr. Matheson agreed with what the others had said. His boy was nearly six and had been sent home and they felt very sore over it. He was in favor of the employment of another teacher.

Chairman Johnston and the members of the Board explained their position. The primary room now has sixty pupils enrolled, and every one of them is over six years of age. The action taken in limiting the age when beginners were to be admitted to six years was consistent with similar action taken by boards in Georgetown, Milton, Burlington, Galt, Waterloo, Cambridge, etc. in fact, in most of the smaller places the age limit is at seven years. They were anxious to do the very utmost for the benefit of the children of the town but had almost at a standstill administration of school matters. The matter of the equipment of an additional room and engagement of another teacher would be given careful consideration. The Board could assure the deputation that if the ratepayers desire it the additional accommodation will be provided.

Miss Hawes tendered her resignation as assistant teacher in the Continuation Department. Miss Pearl Z. Baker, of Melbourne, who is highly recommended by Inspector Mills, was engaged to fill the vacancy at the same salary as Miss Hawes, viz. $900.00. Miss Hawes' salary was re-engaged at the salary of $900.00.

The secretary was instructed to advertise for two teachers holding Normal School certificates to fill the vacancies caused by the retirement of Misses Polley and Watson at the salaries of $800.00 each. Miss Nellie Williams applied for a position on the staff.

Miss Williams is a member of the Committee on Finance and passed the following accounts:

James Warren, surveying Int. $18.00
James Symon, supplies, etc. $1.75
H. J. Hazard, ..... $1.75
H. P. Moore, postage, express, etc. 3.17

caretaker Colman reported the rejoin of the flagstaff out of order. It was decided to remove the staff from the tower and set up a more suitable point on the school grounds. The Board then adjourned.
