Exceeding the Speed Limit. Now that the spotlight has been turned on Calgary, many and divers are the stories being told of lost op-portunities and lucky holdings of oil stocks in that city. Here is one that is remarkable enough, and yet has a plausible ring to it.

The chauteur of a certain gentle man to Calgary had many times but his employer to expense and incon-ventence by his speeding propausi-ties. He had been up before the magistrate more times than was healthy for bim, and, finally, he was saught exceeding the speed limit on the main street, summoned, and fined fifty dollars and costs or sixty days. He appealed to his employer to extricate him, as he had not the funds to satisfy the fine. The employer refustoo often. The chauffeur offered as security some oil stock which he held, supposed to be worth some forty odd dollars. His omployer said no-posi-tively, and the man went to jail. When the sixty days had elapsed and worth of stock had increased in value to something like seventy-five thousand dollars. The first thing be did was to buy an automobile, a good one, and speed down the main street at about fifty miles an hour. He fully expected to be caught and fined, but nothing happened. It's true, that luck invariably arrives in hunches, Wolves Overrun Renfrew. That wolves are overrunning Renfrew county and destroying the farmer's sheep in that district is the word received by the Government at Ottawa, which is asked to take some steps by the offering of a bounty or dations and exterminate the marauders. FORTUNES IN SONGS.

The Mocking Bled Made $1,000,000 For Publishers. The death of "Stophen Adams," In private life Michael Maybrick, composor of such world-famous ballad songs as "A Warrior Bold." "Nancy Lec," "The Midshipmite," "The Htur of Bothlehom," "The Holy City," "They All Love Jack" and "Thorn," reminds one that, unlike many other componers of popular songs, who have usually sold their compositions outright instead of on the royalty banks, he must have made a good cam from his music. It is true that he sold "A Warrio lold" for a dollar, a song that produced royalties for its lucky purchasor that tun into four figures, and he also offered "Nancy Lee" to a publisher for $100. This, however, was refused, but after hearing Stephen Adams sing it at Bt. James Hall the publisher offered $500. This time the composer refused, and the sonn which the publisher might have had for $100, ultimately cost him several thousends in royalties.

But it is doubtful if Maybrick rocolved as much for any of his songs as the $200,000 which the universally popular Queen of My Heart carned for its composer. Hir Arthur Hullivan drew $50,000 in royalties from The Lost Chord," while "In Old Madrid" rewarded composer and publisher to the tune of $75,000, "My Protty Jane" is said to have yielded a reve nue of $10,000 a line, and even after many years of popularity some old favorite songs are wort! a substantial sum, for not long ago the copy right of "For All Eternity" was sold for $11,000.
