The Evolution of the McLAUGHLIN "SIX"

The Reason for "Every one a Six"

WO years ago we announced our first McLaughlinsix, and set a standard which is still the despair of competitors. That is history.

Many years of patient and costly experiment were expended before we satisfied ourselves that the McLaughlin-six had attained the standard which we had set, and which entitled it to the honor of the highest position in the McLaughlin Particular purchasers of this 1914 model enthusiastically endorsed our claims, and we then proceeded to apply the vast cumulative knowledge gained during those experimental years towards developing the six-cylinder principle in ALL our cars. We have succeeded.

Our seven 1916 models-every one a six -uphold the traditions of our 1914-six; they also embody some later refinements in design and construction.

Seven and five-passenger touring cars, large and small runabouts - Every one a six, and all with the famous Valvein-Head motor.
