EDITORIAL NOTES

IN ACREAGE, in average yield per acre, and in total yield this year's grain crop is the highest on record in Canada. That is the official Government estimate of the bountiful harvest reaped in the Dominion this year. A bulletin issued to-day by the Census and Statistics Office says: The preliminary estimate of this year's wheat crop in Canada is a total of 308,830,900 bushels from 12,986,400 acres, representing an average yield per acre of 23.78 bushels.

NEW western Canada wheat, prices of which have been declining steadily, took a sudden turn late last week, and moved sharply upward. Not only did Ontario wheat suffer from excessive rains this summer, but the winter wheat crops in the Southwestern States were seriously injured as well. United States and Canadian millers and exporters are purchasing considerable quantities of Canadian spring wheat for future shipment. The loss to winter wheat growers will be gain to spring wheat growers, in which Canadians will partake. New wheat coming to inspection points in the West has shown an exceptionally large proportion of No. 1 hard and No. 1 northern grades.

SIR RICHARD MCBRIDE, Prime Minister of British Columbia, has issued the following statement. "It has been decided, after careful consideration, to submit the whole question of the liquor traffic to a plebiscite of the electorate. The date of the taking of the plebiscite will be announced as soon as it is decided what shall form a basis of the referendum. I may say it is intended to direct the course of the legislation in this regard according to the general result of the vote to be taken." Up to the present time British Columbia has not even had a local option by-law but now it looks as if the public are going to have a voice as to whether or not the whole liquor traffic in the Province is to be wiped out as the people of Alberta have decided to wipe it out there and as Saskatchewan did with the bars this summer and as Manitoba is going to vote on this winter.

STRIKING EXPRESSIONS of opinion were made at the meeting of the Life Underwriters' Association at Toronto last week by Sir George Foster and Mr. N. W. Rowell, K. C. Sir George said: "I confess to you that every time I see the open bar and see the young soldiers of this country coming in and going out, and every time I pass and see the unemployed, who perchance have got a day's employment, making a bee-line there, I confess that my soul cries out for the closed bar in Canada." Mr. Rowell said: "If we have in our midst to-day an institution which is demanding sums of money for its perpetuation and is giving no return in value but is impairing the earning capacity of the man who patronize it, there is only one patriotic duty for every patriotic citizen; that to the extent of his ability this curse will be wiped out—the curse of the open bar. Let us have the courage in this supreme crisis to rise to the height necessary to orders that this thing should be done and done promptly."

THE MILTON REPORTER, in referring to Georgetown's Patriotic Fund of $7,025 and Acton's of $5,679.85 says: Looking at the above figures, one might think that Milton, the county town, was not doing as well as she might, compared with other towns in the county with her contribution of $4,000. But it must be remembered that the war has struck Milton harder than any other place in the county. The principal industries here are the several brick works, and the war has affected them beyond measure, consequently the people are not in a position to contribute as liberally as they would were these plants in full operation. We understand, however, that in Acton and Georgetown the war, on the other hand, has materially benefitted certain industries in those thriving towns, with the pleasing result that the people are enabled to contribute most liberally to the Patriotic Fund, and it is to their lasting credit that they have done so. But Milton's $4,000, under the circumstances, represents as much liberality on the part of the people here as the larger sums contributed by the other towns in the County.

DR. WALTER HELPS THE FUND

An Acton Boy of Half a Century Ago Sends his Contribution

Dr. Robert Walter, of Walters Park, Pa., writes the secretary of the Patriotic Fund:

Dear Mr. Moore:

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith New York draft for $25.00 to send New York draft for wives and children of worthy fund to help the soldiers who have gone a-fighting for Canada. It were convenient just now-a-days. I wish it were convenient just now-a-days. I wish times that amount, but times have been very hard in our country that we have to "count the pennies."

I am, of course, heartily in sympathy with the cause of the allies and am doing whatever I can to aid them.

I am,

Yours very truly,

ROBERT WALTER.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM DR. KENNEY

Is Now in Belgium and Travels 15 Miles a Day Attending Sick and Wounded Horses

Dear Friends:

Received your letters and papers from home and am well and quite happy. Two other officers are with me sharing sleeping quarters in a hayloft. We have a canvas pail to take our bath in. Our mess room is a canvas hut, and our cook has an oven made of earth, but we get good meals just the same.

The weather here is just about the same as that at home; moderately hot in the day time and chilly at night. We have plenty of rain.

This morning we were wakened by heavy German shells coming our way. They seem to be coming direct but probably fall a mile or so away. There is seldom more than an occasional firing of shells in the day time. Last night our batteries fired pretty heavily. We can hear the rifle fire in the trenches distinctly here as well as the rattle of the machine guns. There was a lively engagement a week ago. I got up at 2.30 when the first big guns sounded and watched the bombardment until 4 o'clock. It was thrilling to hear and see the dozens of guns firing shrapnel and other shells as fast as they could. The shells sound like a railway train running through a tunnel. I have seen a number of wounded soldiers. One poor chap was having his wounds dressed in a clearing hospital. He had just come back from the trenches and had three bullet wounds through the fleshy part of the arm at the elbow. He was very cheerful over it.

I am quite safe unless a stray shell comes our way. I ride about fifteen miles a day. You can tell our Canadian soldiers here almost every time. They look a lot smarter than the Tommies of the King's Army.

I would not miss my experiences here for a good bit, but I hope it will soon be over. That will no doubt be some months yet.

Love to all,

W. G. C. KENNEY, A. V. C.

The annual Sunday School pic-nic which was held at Bliss Springs Park Saturday afternoon passed off very successfully. An excellent tea was provided and everyone spent a very enjoyable time.

NURSING SISTER ORAM WRITES FROM FRANCE

Interesting Letter Descriptive of Military Hospital Life and Surroundings

SHE PREFERS CANADA TO FRANCE

The following very interesting letter was received the other day by Miss Lottie E. Speight from Nursing Sister Anna M. Oram, who is in one of the Canadian Military Hospitals, near Rouen, France:

France, Aug. 18th, 1915.

My Dear Friend:

It takes eighteen days for a letter to reach home from here, and just as long for a reply to come back, so that we are both a little behind the news of current events. We get plenty of rain here, though the last week we haven't done badly. Our hospital is about four miles from Rouen and all this section is in a valley, hence the abundance of rain, and as a rule it is no gentle shower we get.

The longer I live in France the prouder I am that I am a Canadian. Perhaps I should not judge from one section, but the men say this locality is typical of all France. In Rouen the streets are narrow and dirty and sanitary conditions are of the very poorest. The houses are, with few exceptions, built on the street line, and are high and narrow. The sidewalks are so narrow that in some places it keeps one balancing to keep on at all, and when a street car comes along you are obliged to flatten yourself against the nearest building to avoid a collision. Of course that is not true of all the streets, but there are few sidewalks wider than two feet. The streets are paved with stones the size of bricks and are very rough.

The women here do practically all the work. Often I do not understand how they manage. Of course the greater proportion of the men are now in the army, but they say the women do a large portion of the work even in times of peace. They draw heavy carts, sell papers, deliver milk, and bread, and act as conductors on the street cars and do almost everything else. One day I saw two women drawing a heavy cart, and peacefully sauntering behind were a man and a donkey. I couldn't see why they didn't have the two donkeys in front instead. Another funny thing happened here. One of the English sisters who has charge of the mess tent ordered some bottles of soda water from a Frenchman. He said the order was too large and his cart too small, so he wouldn't bring any at all. Such is their idea of business. But they don't mind asking any English-speaking person to pay two and three times as much for anything as it is worth. Everything is very dear here and I am sure the people of Rouen were never so well off as they are now. It is needless to say there are a great many English people in France who are spending their money freely.

In all my life I never saw so much crape as I have seen since we came here. They tell us Rouen is the city of mourning. It manifestly lives up to its reputation. One woman alone will have yards of it on; a great veil from the back of her hat, then probably a piece a foot wide around the bottom of her dress, and as much more somewhere else as she can put on. This is the rule and not the exception. Even little children are dressed in mourning. The children are one feature which can equal our Canadian product. They are invariably bright and pretty.

Of course the Roman Catholic Church predominates here, and they have many beautiful churches. They keep hundreds of candles burning all the time. I presume the majority of the houses here have some relative at the war, and these are, I suppose, being remembered in this way.

There is little to tell you about our hospital. It was handed over to the British, but is still maintained by the Indian Government. Our commanding officer, Lt.-Col. Bond, has seen a number of years' service in India. There are nine Canadian Contingent nurses here and four of our unit are graduates of Toronto General Hospital. Three of us are in one tent and the other in a tent with a nurse from Ottawa. Patients and nurses are all in tents. We certainly get lots of fresh air and sometimes a little too much. The last few nights have been quite cold with a very heavy dew. But for the present we are quite comfortable.

It is remarkable how contented one can become away from home, a foreigner in a foreign land. We often think of home and if peace was declared I am sure the boat couldn't take us home fast enough, but under present conditions we are ready to stay and do our "bit" for the boys who are sacrificing so much. Since I have been here, nearly three months, we have only had two wounded Canadian soldiers at the hospital. I hate to see the men get ready to go up to the front again after convalescence. The chances are so small of ever coming back sound again. None of them are at all anxious to go to the trenches once they have been there, but not one of these brave fellows would think of refusing to go when he is called, even if he could. The majority of them, so far as I can see, are fully deserving of all the credit they get. They have no easy task. The war is not finished yet, and the outlook is that many more lives will be sacrificed before we can settle down to anything like peace. It is a struggle for our very existence. It is a pity that all the people cannot grasp the situation, because I am sure too much cannot be said of the seriousness of it. It will take more faith and a great deal more works before we have finished.

We get mail once a week, as a rule on Saturday, and a red letter day it is for us. I have been well remembered. Everyone has been most kind in writing. It makes life worth while for a whole week when we get our letters and papers. I get one weekly Toronto paper and the FREE PRESS. I can quite understand how the Acton boys feel when they get the FREE PRESS. I read the whole of it from beginning to end, right away when it comes in too. The other papers usually have to wait until some more convenient season. I used to think it was silly of others, but now I quite understand.

With love to you all,

ANNA M. ORAM.

A WEEK AT CAMP NIAGARA

Mrs. Lantz Writes Interestingly of Life with 10,000 Soldiers at Niagara-on-the-Lake

PROHIBITION AT NIAGARA A BOON

Niagara Camp is a very interesting and instructive place to visit. From the moment when one hears reveille sounded at 5.30 a.m. until "lights out" is sounded at 9.40 p.m. the day is crowded with interest. To see the neat and uniform manner in which all blankets are folded and placed outside the tents every morning, and to watch the battalions go through their various drills and exercises is always attractive.

On Friday we had the pleasure of watching eight battalions in a route march from the camp to Brock's monument, Queenston. It was a grand sight. This magnificent body of Ontario's noblest sons is just as eager and anxious to follow their leaders, wherever they may lead them as the Illustrious Brock's were when he led them to victory up these heights, under difficult circumstances over one hundred years ago. It was hard to decide which battalion marched the best, but I understand that the 58th Batt. is one of the finest battalions in camp and holds the record for endurance in route marching.

The men had dinner and rested for two hours and then marched back to camp.

The fine music of the brass and bugle bands, and the inspiring strains of the bagpipes as they were wafted up the heights stirred the martial feeling of all.

Another interesting scene was the march past on Saturday morning when all the battalions marched past Col. Logie, camp commandant and staff.

On Sunday morning the battalions parade for church service, and an hour is spent in devotional worship, after which they are dismissed for the day.

The Y. M. C. A. plays an important part in the camp life, with the large reading-room with magazines and books and free writing materials for the use of the soldiers. Here on Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings religious services are conducted, and on other evenings interesting views, songs and entertainments are provided.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew also has a canteen and reading room for the soldiers.

Niagara-on-the-Lake being under local prohibition, the absence of intoxicating liquor is a boon to the camp, and, although the town is full of thousands of soldiers, a lady need have no fear of going about anywhere, as the soldiers are so well disciplined that never an offensive remark is overheard, and one feels sure that when the men get to the front they will give a good account of themselves.

Yours sincerely

MRS. G. H. LANTZ.
