When dinner is a few minutes late yo probably snatch up a magazine and attempt to master some important information or seconautics. That is better than watch jug the clock, and wondering fretfully how much longer Norals is going to be. But it is altogether likely that you dinner would digest better if you spent five minutes just reating, flat on your back on a couch or reclining in the easy chair. Of course, nothing makes up for the lack of a good night's rest. People who sleep soundly eight or nine hours a night can de an amount of work which would be gut of the question for those whose sleep is irre gular or broken. But even then those who live the strenuous life need to take advantage of every opportunity for reating and relaxing. To stop thinking, is sometimes as necessary as to stop working.

Rome young folks have the same trouble Many a boy starts out on his high school course without any idea of what he is siming at. When he is about halfway through he bagine to think that perhaps he will make a physician and in that case he will need Latin. He starts in on his study of Latin which of course he should have taken when he entered school if he planned take it at all. But before another fal comes around he has become interested. In electricity. Forthwith he loses all interest in Latin decleasions, drops the study and takes all the physics he can get. It does not take an educational authority to recog nixe the fact that such a youth is not mak ing the most of his course.

III. to His Steward. King Frederick William III. of Pros da was a man of few words. Whatever he lind to say was always brief and to the point, as the following uncedote from a foreign journal shows: The king, who was accustomed to interest bimself in all the detalls of ourt management, ordered his stowand to take special pains to see that all the carringes were amply supplied with food and drink whonever they left for a Journey of a day or so, but it sometimes happened that the stoward disputched the drivers without any food, giving them a cola, perhaps, to buy what they wanted. That tigually meant that the driver went bungry, as he did not have much opportunity to leave tile horses and dine at a routan-

He went into the castle and summoned the steward. That worthy appeared immediately and made a profound bow, but an he raised libmsolf up he was surprised to feel a coin placed against his mouth.

"But, your unjesty, 1"-"Eat it?" the king again roared. "Why, your majorty, I can't eat it!" "Oh, you can't? But you expected just remember that-that people out food, not money. Do you understand?" The stoward understood. In the future the king's conclimen were amply supplied with provisions whenever they

MAPS ON GLOBES.

The Spheres, Made of Brown Paper, Are Wonderfully Strong. Few people could any of what substance globe maps are made and would be autonished to hear that brown paper is the chief material used. A matrix of wood is covered with strips of brown paper which have been well smeared with paste. The paper is tald on the matrix until it is about a sixtoenth of an inch thick and the globe looks like a round football. When this paper covering is dry it is cut midway between what will be the two poles, removed from the matrix, and after an axis has been fixed in it the two homlapheres are glacd together. Then this sphere of brown paper is conted with composition plaster, the ingredients of which are a trade secret, and again

After being tosted to see that it is an exact sphere the meridians are marked on the globe to guide the girls who fluish the work. The globe is then fixed in a clamp, which holds its axis, and a girl takes the engraved gores. cut ready for use, and pastes them on without overlapping. If the globe is exact the gores should fit so exactly that you cannot see where they are in the completed glube When the gores have dried on the globe is celored by a hand process, which is also done by girls, and then pollshed. The globe is now ready to be mounted on its stand and to have its meridian fitted. Formerly, says the World's Work, when the industry was most flourishing, the metal and wood work connected with the fittings formed separate industries, but today the globe maker does the whole work on ble own premisee.

It might be mentioned that globes thus made are so strong that a man could stand on one and not break it. Indeed, you cannot break one without using great violence.
