There is a sen -n quiet ren, Before the farthest line Where all my ships that went astray, Where all my dreams of yesterday. And all the things that were to be-

Are mine ! There is a land -a quiet land, Boyond the setting sun, Where every task at which I qualled, And all wherein my courage failed, Where all the good my spirit planned, Is done !

There is a hope-a quiet hope, Within my heart instilled, That, if ubilaunted on I sall, This guiding star shall never pale. But shine within my labor's scope,

And there's a tide - a quiet tide Flowing toward a goal, That's swept by every humble shore, And on its fullest obbs no more, And on that final swell shall ride-My soul ! . .

Yeating an Explosive. One of the most dangerous of explosives is lodide of nitrogen, a black powdor which the slightest touch will often cause to explode when dry with great violence. In experiments to determine the cause of its extreme explosiveness some damp todide of nitrogen was rubbed on the strings of a bass viol. It is known that the strings of such an instrument will vibrate when those of a similar instrument having an equal tension are played upon. In this case, after the explosive had become thoroughly dry upon the strings, another base viol was brought near and the strings sounded. At a certain note the todide of ultrogen on the prepared instrument exploded. It was found that the explosion occurred only when a rate of vibration of sixty a second was communicated to the prepared strings. Vibration of the G string caused an explosion, while that of the B string had no effect. The Blamese Topknot filameso child, whether boy or girl, weare its hair in a little topknot until it has attained the ago of cloven or twelve years.
