Home people hope to build up success by negative virtues. A young man thinks he ought to be a success just because he does not chost or lie or drink. But this only means that his path is free from certale great chatacles to advancement, not that he will be conveyed over the distance in a wheel chair. Young people are to be congratulated on freedom from bad habits the most serious of entangling ulliances, but the not be foolish enough to auppose that freedom from bad habits in going to get you anywho. . HE HUMAN EYE is a wonderful instrument, but under the trying conditions of modern life it often falls to meet the domands put upon it, and sorious trouble of all sorts results because we do not help out by getting glunnen to supply Nature's Particularly at the time when children boxin their school life, the new and difficult uses made of the eye often bring on eye strain and a host of resultant disorders.

The signs of beginning eye strain may vary in different cases. At first only a alight fatigue may be noticed after reading or newing. The eyes may water easily or the cyaball may become bloodshot or the eyelida red. Home persons whose eyes are overtaxed show it by norvousness and others by drowsiness after the eyes have been used. Heudaches of all sorts and even attacks of vertigo may be morely the symptoms of sye

The eye has a remarkable power, called the power of accommodation ... When you look from a distant object to one nearby you notice that it takes a few seconds to focus the eye so that you can see it clearly. Little muscles are contracting and changing the shape of the eye to adjust it to the different distances somewhat us you change the focus of a camora according to the nearness of the object to be photographed. If the eye is abnormal in any respect these muscles have to work too hard, and, even though we may by this unconsc'ous effort be able to see clearly, yet the strain is present. In such case we are secting by a constant effort, while if glasses were provided to correct the defect of vision thy would do this work and save us the strain.

A careful and thorough examination of the eyes should be made by competent person. Many a miserable hour would be saved if this were done flecuuse of defective eyesight a child may be dull, fretful, and backward in school, without anyone guessing the reason. An examination of the syes reveals serious defects; these are corrected by proper glasses, and the effect to most marked. The child appears happier, makes good progress in his studies, and takes his rightful place in the school community. Glasses or no glasses, there are some things that cannot be done with the eyes except at grave peril. Too little light strains the eyes, and so does too much. A direct glare right in the face is quite as bad as a room that is too dim to see broperly. For reading, sewing, or other work which requires close and accurate vision the light should be clear and steady and should come from above and behind.

Earache le a common and distressing trouble in young children. It often occurs in connection with winter colds and in the course of messies and scarlet fever; It is due to an infection of the middle ear, the polsonous garms balag carried from the throat up the little passage called the Eustachian tube to the middle portion of the ear just inside the ear-drum. In other cases it occurs in children who have adenoids and large tonells. In cases of carache which are severe and which may easily be neglected because the mother may not know the danger, the ear-drum may burst from the pressure of muco-pus inside it and the child is left with a running ear. This is often dimeult to cure. In other cases the infection may spread to the cells or boneycomb of bone in the masteld bone bohind the ear and necessitate an operation. Ybese bad results may frequently be prevented by a timely puncture of the drum, which at once gives relief and soon clears up the case. It as exceeds of any severity or whore the pain lasts over a day or so, always call in a competent physician or an ear specialist, and give your child the best chance possible. In mild cases relief may be given by putting a few drops of warm olive oil in the ear and a bot water bottle outside.
