Lot us leave matters educational quite out of it. Results show what is being done in the High and Continuation Schools throughout the province, each your, an he who runs may read.

It is only reasonable, however, that it school, where all, or most of the teachers are specialists in their subjects, the atu dent is better grounded, and equipped for the higher studies, and through them ! his chosen life's work, than in a school

But "Observer" surely underrates the influence of the home and home train when he thinks it can not stand the test eparation for a few hours each day of which is spent under capable, cultured and trained mon and women-for five days of the week. Home influence so brittle not worth the name. How do young people overywhere manage who are away fram home for weeks and months at ime? Has the early training no hold o them? He all the years under the home roof stand for naught? We speak of the influence of the Sablati

Boligol which has the children for one short hour of each week. Would "Observer" grant less to Christian parents! Buroly hoys and girls wisely and care fully trained would scorn, by lack of nonven tion or in any other way, to bring discredit on themselves or their olders. Don't ex pect old heads on young shoulders "Obser ver." Most likely you were young once and, while it was a novelty then to ride "on the care," we have advanced some and live in far different times. We might speak of many men and we

ON NEW YORK STATE HIGHWAYS

(Continued from Page Two) did farm homes such as the banner Ontari Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Moore and Joselyn | counties exhibit were in evidence. There were fine burns, painted a bright red, with

"Illdge Road" from Rochester to Lewiston is continuous brick or concrete and has been dubbed "The Million Dollar Highway." A good opportunity was given to test the road under unfavorable conditions, for in mid-morning, fortunately after the sandy section had been passed, a howling wind and rain storm were encountered On some roads in Halton filteen minutes this would have meant very slow and muddy travelling. Not so in this case however. If anything, the editor urged the car faster, and she sped around the long ourves, travelling with the side ourtains down, as steadily as a locomotive hauling a Limited. For a time the rose was well indicated by signs but through the older sections very little of this kind of information was evident. A query from passerby always brought the same answer, however, something as follows: "Roud to Niagara Falls?" Answer "Straight ahead" or "Yass," the latter in a twang of the typical old New Yorker. The mups show a number of good-sized towns in this ridge territory and surprise was expressed that none of these were passed. Later it was learned that they were located a few miles to either side of the highway. It was a remarkable thing to one accustomed to touring in Ontario. where the roads are laid out to run in or near the towns, to travel mile after mile, as was done there, without seeing any evidences of a town. In the sixty or so miles from Rochester to Lockport, on this state highway there is not a village of even five hundred population.

Lookport, an old historia town on the Erio Canal, was reached just at noon and after half hour for luncheon the course was continued over the "Million Dollar Highway." Home confusing directions got us a little astray in this district, where a poor deal of road improvement is being done. but oventually the our found itself on the River road near the "Devil's Hole" und soon "The Fulls," and the Canadian side was reached. After a last look at the Falls the day's run was completed to St Cathorines, where one always looks forward to a good night's rost at the Wel-

Burlington was reached by noon and here one of the pleasantest hours of the trip was apent. For yours the editor has claimed as a warm friend W. V. Hopkins, who awas and resides on a splendid fruit farm just east of the town. A call had been made on friend Hopkins for a moment on the trip down and an invitation extended to stop longer on the way back. Since the stop in returning came just at disser time, and since the Hopkins' hospitality is well-known, there is perimpenot much need to way further. After dinner a tour wer made of the farm while the editor und friend Hopkins talked of Methodist preach ers and Bunday Bolsools and the manifest advantages of probibilition, topics which those who know either of them will apprecinte an congenial.
