THE COUNTRY BOY

The child city-born and bred has fewer opportunities for acquiring a sound, practical knowledge of the casentials of life than the chill bern in the country.

The farmer's boy may not have the polish of the city boy; he may not be able to talk so understandingly of the current events which take place in town ; his hands may not be so soft and smooth, and he may not so often think of how his finger-nails look; but of real, useful, practical knowledge he has ten times as much as the city

The farmer's boy knows the birds, the beasts, the various plants; he can protty accurately foretell the weather, and if he sees a groud horse or cow, he kebyd it.

He is a good judge of character and later on in life, he will not be readily taken in by sharpers and frauds. Say what you like about the "old haves de," they are not half so green as they look.

The farmer's hoy is nourageous, for his daily life leads him into more or less danger. He must climb the trees for the nute and apples, and climbing gives him agility and self-confidence. He "breaks" the colt his father gives him, and he has a horse it is a pleasure to ride after. He raises his own hear and chickens, and when he sate the custards his mother makes for him, there is no flavor of antiquity about them. He breathes the purest air that lies out of doors. He feels the sunshine fresh from the sternal fount, and not held in solution by clouds of smoke or gases from some poison distilling manufactory. He la alive all through, He has a folly good time in life, and by and by, when he has made his millions in some stuffy counting-house, he will look back to his life on the farm with a regret which is skin with pain. He will recall the rocky lulis where the maples yielded their hearts blood in the glowing spring; and the augur-camp, where the luscious sweetness bubbled in the moonlight nights to help at the "sugarlag off."

The life of a farmer's boy may have rethe ability to perform it is given. Work, which so many worthless scions of effets box mounted on a telephone pole on the the questions. Here they are: aristocracy affect to be borrified at, is (lodordained. It strengthens and develops a horse on the poles at intervals not exceed. all good causes and made you espouse man mantally, morally, and physically. The man who can work has a comfort in time of trouble, and a staff on which to lean to adversity.

Let no living person decry the country. To live in a pure atmosphere, to see daily unfolding before the eye the wonderful problem of the sessons-old, but ever new; to watch the sunrise and the sunset tings the mountain-tata with the light no artist's break can ever imitate; to leve the gentle PALPITATION animals and the singing birds which are ever cround the child of the country -why. It to but a stap to the particular which we hape may come to us when the glad new life opens up to us in the mystical beyond! Varia Journal.

Nover julge a man by his coat ; he may owe the tallor. Home people in this will world live on a VORY BETTOW BETY'S.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCOTLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHYEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

TYPHOTO PEVER. THE FALL OF THE VEAR Typhold Fover is more prevalent. There are usually fewer cases of this disease within the area of well-kept cities than outside. The smaller towns and country places furnish the greater number of cases. The reason why well-hept cities furnish less typhoid than chowhere is because they usually have saler water supplies and theper disposal of sowage. The smuller towns and the country are dependent for their water supplies chiefly upon wells, and their sewages in taken care of in privy pits to which flies have free access. Flies during Into September and October, when it is warmer indoors than outdoors, flock from the privy pit to the comfortable kitchen with its abundant food supfiles. They frequently carry typhold germs to the food, thence to the members of the household. Country wells are frequently, unprotected.

They are shadow and placed too close to the privy pit, while the top and sides are not protected against the entrance of fillb. Excreta from a typhold care atthout being disinfected may be thrown in the privy pit or on the surface of the ground, and drain to the well. What is more likely than that the users of this contaminated water will come down with the What are the means of protection? Privies neast be made secure against the entrance of illes.

Doors and windows should be screened. The building must be accurely banks about so that the fles cannot enter the pit. from outside. The cent lida must be made to close automatically, after use. This can be effected by having a block of wood fastened to the wall behind the open lid and place. In such a position that the fid falls in place as the occupant

A box containing equal parts of sand and salt should be kept in the privy and the exercta covered efter each using. Wells should be placed at a safe distance from the privy pit and away from the natural drainage of the soil. The sides and top of the well must be made accure at "Inst the entrance of surface pollution.

If these simple measures were carefully carried out there would be less typhold is rural communities. Finally, if a case of typhold fover occurs in a household experience in the use of typhold vaccine among our soldiers indicates that it is wisdom to at once inoculate all the other members of the family. The vaccine is provided free of cost by the Provincial Board of Health.

CONSUMPTION AND SPITTING BLOOD. John Brown had noticed for some time that he was not up to the mark. In the morning he felt very well, but through the day he became tired, sleepy, and a little feverish. He had had a slight tickling cough for a month or two, but did not cough up anything. One afternoon he felt a warmth behind his breastbone and at the same time he had a salty taste in his mouth. Following a tickling in his throat no conglied and brought up a few tenspoonfuls of bright, red blood This alarmed his friends very much and he turned pale, his hands were cold and perapiration broke out on his forehead. His mother sent for the doctor who examined his nose, throat, and chest and finally told him the blood came from his chest. He was placed in bed and told to keep quiet and that he need not have any fear for the bleeding. The physician took a sample of the material that John coughed up and found, as he suspected, that he was suffering from tuberculosis of the lungs. Consumption is the cause of splitting of blood in nine cases out of ten. Other causes are pneumonia, congestion, bronchitis, heart disease, uncurism, menetrual trouble, and scurvy. One out of every twenty-five clacs of consumption starts with a slight hemorrhage. In one out of every six cases there is no other symptom. In two out of every three cases ti cro is nothing to bring on homorrhage. The patient when quiet notices a salty taste, has a little tickling, coughs, and up comes the

These early hemorrhages are never fatal. But the appearance of blood frightens most people, and perhaps it is a good thing to have the hemorringe, because it is a reliable danger signal. A case o' this kind should be kept quiet in bed for a few days. usually needs no medicine, except in cases where he is very much frightened or shocked, when the doctor may give him some sedative. He must not get imulants such as whiskey, aromatic spirits of ammonis, etc. If the side from which he is bleeding can be distinguished he should lie on that side. If there is no return of hemorrhage after a few days he may get out in the open air. Horseback riding will be good exercise for him, and he may do a little outdoor work. ### TWO OF A KIND.

A good story is being receiled about file George Raid, M. P., and ex-Premier of the Australian Commonwealth, and filr Joseph Ward, the ex-Premier of New Zoeland, who is now on a visit to England. Same time ego the two statemen had occasion to travel together during the night, and jointly occupied a two-berth compartment on the election car.

As bedries approached, Mr. Reid remarked : "Look here, Wenl, I am a tor rilds snorer, so you had better turn in quarter of un bour before me und get to sleep before I start performing," which salvice was accepted and promptly soled

On awakening the next morning, a wild syad and haggard man, who had passed a sleepless night, looked represchfully at him and said impressively : "Ward, the next time we travel together we start fair." The New Zealand Premier, naively vemarked afterwards that he quite omitted to mention, when Mr. Reld warned him of his nasal "accomplishments," that he also had a great reputation in that respect.

A Simple and Cheap Medicine.-A simple, chesp and effective medicine is something to be desired. There is no medicine so effective a regulator of the diges. tive system as Farmeleo's Vegetable Pills. They are simple, they are chesp, they can be got everywhere, and their beneficial action will prove their recommendation. They are the medicine of the poor man and those who wish to escape doutors' bills will do well in giving them a trial.
