CLEAR THE WAY!

Men of thought; be up and stirring
Night and day;
How the world draw the curtain
Clear the way!
Men of action; and cheer them
As you may;
There's a light about to stream,
There's a light about to beam;
There's a light about to glow,
There's a light about to show.
There's a light about to change
The world!
Men of thought and men of action;
Clear the way!
Once the welcome light has broken,
Who shall say
What those unimagined stories
Of the day?
What the evil that shall perish
In the ray?
Add it, paper; add it, type;
Add it, paper; add it, type;
And our earnest must not slacken
Clear into play.
Men of thought and men of action;
Clear the way!

—Charles Mackay

BEFORE SHE KNEW.

A young lady catching sight of an old friend in a crowded street made her heart throb with the desire to where the lady stood. In the crowd she accidentally brushed against a small girl who was standing close beside the friend, evidently desirous of avoiding notice in view of the confusion. The young lady stopped and bent to the child with a courteous "Please pardon my awkwardness, my dear," and added, "I am sorry to find that this little one was clinging to her friend's hand who exclaimed in surprise: "Oh, it is your little neighbor from school, I have told my judge Haskins' little daughter, I am so glad of the opportunity to meet her!" After a short talk the two friends separated and the small girl said to one of the others who had been making the tour of the big store: "Isn't she beautiful? And she was just as polite to me as if I were a grown-up lady."

"Why, of course she would be polite to you, dear, knowing of your father as she does, and that you are a particular friend of my own, too—and then, a fine, courteous little girl you are."

DRAINAGE LESSONS THE LIKELIHOOD OF DAMAGE CAUSED BY HEAVING.

The heaving of plant roots, which so disastrously strips clover and alfalfa crops, is caused by the presence of an excess of water in the soil. Freezing water inevitably expands. It bursts the most solid rock casings, the soil is full of water if it cannot expand either downwards or sideways. Soil, crop, everything "heaves" as a result of this. It is a disease of the soil, one and large pores spaces afford safety valve. In the spring when the ice melts, the soil settles back faster than do the roots, so that the plants are left hanging in the ground, tilted to any marked extent. No soil moves where drains work well and are laid long or root-tearing can "take place" and so end to keep the water level down near the outlet line—Vermont Experimental Station.

DISCOVERING HIMSELF.

Ever explored your surprises. Columbus started out to find a new route to the East Indies, and he found a new world. In seeking the sources of rivers, explorers have stumbled upon hidden treasures, secrets, mineral wealth. In the search for gold, a strong hand to claim it. And in self-exploration there are like surprises. Most of us know ourselves about the same as we do our country further inland, of its wealth of fertility, we have but the vaguest ideas. Most people go through life without realizing the full extent of their own possibilities, without appropriating more than a small fraction of their laws of wealth.

But sometimes we perplexed to understand the motives which lead a man to leave the comforts of his home to go in search of the North Pole, or to wander through African swamps. It is not always to see what others one should be interested in self-discovery. The perplexing thing is, that so many are satisfied to live on the outskirts of their own natures.

Warts are disfigurements that disappear when treated with Holloway's Corn Cure.

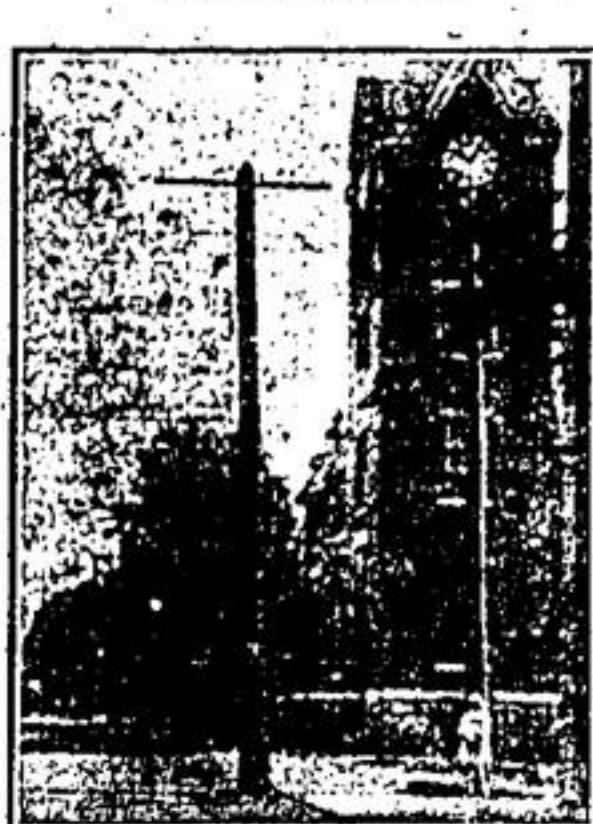

SHIRKING RESPONSIBILITY.

The readiness to accept and discharge responsibility is the test of manhood which every boy should pass. Some young people who find themselves of such overwhelming importance that they forget all about their responsibilities to others. Father and mother may be the first to find him out, but the sun will rise, from home needs, all he can earn to put himself ahead. And thousands of other young people and the needs of society demand that they realize the demand for work, and every effort of uplift, and yet keep on devoting their entire attention to their own affairs.

Selfishness like this reveals a fundamental lack. The people who take no responsibility for any of the world but themselves fall short of the requirements of real manliness.

RICH PARENTS NOT NECESSARY.

If a boy's ambition is to be a successful man, he must work. There are some young people who find themselves of such overwhelming importance that they forget all about their responsibilities to others. Father and mother may be the first to find him out, but the sun will rise, from home needs, all he can earn to put himself ahead. And thousands of other young people and the needs of society demand that they realize the demand for work, and every effort of uplift, and yet keep on devoting their entire attention to their own affairs.

THE OLD MAN OF THE BIG CLOCK TOWER.THE GREAT WEST AGAIN.

Were the gospel privileges in the great West dispensed with an rigid adherence to denominationalism or by the "old line" rules of the east, a vast number of denominations would be in existence, anything like regular services. But two methods are employed, by one of which in large numbers of location in the country is organized.

On the "Highway," wherein Methodists and Presbyterians adhere,

and the minister is engaged and agrees in the most suitable manner or parsonage as the case may be. The arrangement is, however, in the original features, although the minister is responsible to his original denomination as to character and conduct and missionary contributions are devoted equally or proportionately.

The other plan is the "J.-operation system, whereby the people of a community are grouped together and grouped without regard to former affiliations and are placed under the charge of a minister who conducts the work as under his own denomination, and the church will utilize the services of the various ministers.

The former method is the more direct, and the latter, "Highway" method, is the more circuitous, but both are good.
