HOW TO BE WISE

No cheating or bargaining will ever get a single thing out of nature's "eawant to be strong? We must work. To be hungry? We must starve. To he hoppy? We must be kind. To be wise? We must look and think. No changing of place at a hundred miles an hour, nor making of stuffs a thou sand yards a minute, will make us one whit stronger, happier, or wiser. There was always more in the world than men could see, walk they ever .. alowly. They would see it no better for going fast. And they will at last, and soon, too, find that their grand inventions for conquering (as they think. space and time are, in their own en sence, unconquerable, and besides did not want any nort of conquering; they wanted using. A fool always wants to shorten space and time; a wise man wants to lengthen both. A fool wants to kill upace and time; a wise man first to gain them, and then to animate! them. Your rallroad, when you come to understand it, is only a device for making the world amaller; and us for being able to talk from place to place. that is, indeed, well and convenient; but suppose you have, driginally, nothing to say. We shall be obliged at last to confers, what we should long ago have known, that the really procleus things are thought and sight, not pace.
