EDITORIAL

Toronto is having just an unmeted experience in deciding the form of its war memorial.

There is a very general movement throughout the Province to weed out the scrub sires from the dairy herds.

It occasionally occurs that men in public position allege inaccuracies in the reports of their speeches.

A new measure of reciprocity has just been adopted which will mean much in convenience and comfort to veterans of the late war who may be residing or visiting in either Canada or the United States.

For a number of years, since electricity has come into general use as a motive power, there has been talk of adopting electric current for the moving of the railway trains, now operated by steam engines.

The liquor interests are deliberately trying to throw a scare into the ranks of the temperance forces in the prohibition provinces.

The bill known in England as the Animals' Amalgamation Bill has at last become a law.

The annual meeting of Acton Horticultural Society held last week, showed that very effective results had been accomplished as a result of the year's work.

Premier Drury has developed a large element of esprit de corps in his relation to his new cabinet.

At midnight on January 16 national prohibition by constitutional amendment, the dream for years of those opposed to the sale of intoxicating liquor, became effective in the United States.

The remarkable success of Frank A. Munsey, who commenced his career as a country boy in a small rural store in the State of Maine, gives another splendid illustration of a country boy winning signal success in life.

The Liberal leader of the Province continues his facetious opposition to Mr. Drury. His latest vagary is to open up a Toronto Liberal riding in which Premier Drury could "test his strength".

The business outlook is encouraging. Canada started 1920 right. She carried over many millions of dollars worth of orders, and she has markets open to her which would gladly make contracts for many more millions of both raw and manufactured goods.

BEED OATS SITUATION

In those districts where the oat crop was a partial or total failure last season, farmers are resorting to various expedients to meet the demand for seed.

The shortage in Ontario and Quebec may quite easily be met from the large and excellent oat crops in Prince Edward Island and eastern Nova Scotia.
