MAKING AN IMPRESSION

There is nothing fundamentally out C-the-way-in the wish to make an impression. Of course there are some young folks who are ambitious to give the wrong impression, who are hopeful of hoodwinking their associstes into believing them very different beings from what they really are. But the desire uppermost in the minds any idea of migrepresentation. The average youth of nineteen, and the everage girl of seventeen, are haunted by the feeling that they do not do themselves justice, that very few of those they meet estimate them at their full value and their desire to make an impression is only another form of ambition to be known for what they

But while no one can reasonably find fault with such a deelre. in point of fact it is likely to frustrate itself. The people who are ambitious to make an impression are pretty sure to do so, but not in the way they, expected. ADVERTISE

GEORGETOWN BRANCH-G. C. MacKay, Manager

. ["He who hesitales is lost"]

If you wish to make a name

ADVERTISE If you hanker after fame

Tell the public what you think, Make a use of printer's ink, That's the way to forge the link.

If you wish to sell your goods-ADVERTISE

Clothes to wear, or patent foods-ADVERTISE

What you cannot sell to-day Don't pack up-and put away, Publicity will make it pay,

ADVERTISE

Don't imagine you're too small, ADVERTISE!

Put your back against the wall, ADVERTISE !

When the "biz." comes smack along Raise your head above the thong, Stick it, and you won't go wrong.
