

HOME *

The joy that finds laurels, laurel, the hope that others prize;
The joyful with that, burthen deep, sometyme others will see.
A wiser than those will give with gladness for its sake!

The force at which are wedded strong and weak that cannot be broken;

A strength that need not waste of thine worldly best life;

A spot where dwelt both peace and
calm the forest strife;

A refuge where the heart beat;

Where there are none who sympathize and help that understand;

The rock wherein the anchor holds that keep it safe and still;

Whom there are none who weep and
have midst the blight;

The shrine before whose holy light doth
rest the weary soul;

The quietude of the heart—it's
sacred name is Home.

—Clarence S. Flynn

TWENTY YEARS AGO

From the issue of the Free Press of Thursday, January 29, 1903.

Another January thaw this week with very little snow. The new proprietor of the Speight Waggon Works has had a very busy winter and is turning out numerous orders.

Streets were in a favorite position during this week. Some inadventurous walkers on the streets narrowly escaped an hour or so in the cells.

A detective stops police cars on Friday and the alarm was rung, but a few minutes sufficed to extinguish the flames. —DIED

LANE.—At lot 16, concession 6, Erin, Tuesday, January 23, 1903, Mrs.
George Lane, aged 42 years.

RIDDLE

What relation is a child who is not its own father's son to its father?

Daughter.

What is it that we cannot do without, though we never see it?

Air.

Why is the letter "I" always lonely?
Because it is in the middle of nothing.

What is it that is lengthened by being cut at both ends?

A ditch.

Why should a doctor keep his temper?

Because he will lose patients (patience) if he does not.

What part of Scholastic is it that no one can live without?

Ay (air).

What town in England tells you what you are doing now?

Reading.

What is it that has teeth but never eats?

A comb.

Why are key and arrow like spectacles?

Because they are forage (for age). . . .
What does a kettle-supper from mountain boil?

LITTLE TRICKS OF BIG MEN

The familiar habit of the service of God, which his master is often reminded upon. His Royal Highness, however, is not alone in possessing a mannerism that alone distinguishes him from other famous men, says a London paper.

Mr. Churchill has a peculiar habit of passing his hand across his forehead, as if to smooth away the lines born of years of care, and, remarkably, it is done unconsciously.

Mr. Bonar Law, when speaking in public, alternately clutches the lapels of his coat and clamps his fingers behind his back, while his attitude as a leader is characterized by a carrying of the back of his neck with one hand. The latter trick is also Sir Charles Hawriss' most noticeable habit. Sir Gerald du Maurier loves to walk about patting his pockets, while his habit of running his right fingers round the sheath of his collar is well-known.

The famous English Justice, Justice Darling, often hears a case while leaning back in the seat with his hands clasped over his head. Another judge, Sir Edward Carson, has a habit of resting his chin on his hand while he listens to a witness, and then, after the witness has finished, he turns his head to the side and listens, as he takes the nearest piece of paper and proceeds to roll it into a long thin tube. If the witness fails to fall to the floor, and begins again.

FISH AT PLAY

Fish play games just like other creatures.

It is common to see a fish in an aquarium pick up small stones or pebbles and swallow them with it in its mouth, draw it out and pick it up again. The inhabitant of the sea do the same thing with shells.

Another game of which fish seem to be fond is to play with the grass at the bottom of their tank, as the bottom of a piece of grass is like a book to them. They will, however, be seen to come and find it. But the road which leads to the grass is like a book under the water. They will, however, be seen to come and find it.

This game lasts for hours, the fish racing up and down until they are exhausted.

JUST AROUND THE BEND

It is the whipping road that bends us.
When we can look down a road as far as our eyes can see, the look is enough.
There is nothing that can stop us from coming and finding it. But the road which leads to the bend is like a book under the water. They will, however,
be seen to come and find it.

There are many who have a foolish
way of wanting to find out the future.
As a matter of fact, one of God's main provisions for our happiness is if we would look from the beginning of life
to its end, all the charm and romance and beauty of life would be lost. We would have the courage to go on through the year if we could see all that was ahead. And so the road twists and winds and turns us on,
and the world cannot tell what is awaiting him just around the bend.

There are many who have a foolish
way of wanting to find out the future.
As a matter of fact, one of God's main provisions for our happiness is if we
would look from the beginning of life
to its end, all the charm and romance
and beauty of life would be lost. We
would have the courage to go on
through the year if we could
see all that was ahead. And so the
road twists and winds and turns us on,

and the world cannot tell what is
awaiting him just around the bend.

In all infantile complaints that are the result of the deprivations of worms and worms will be found an effective remedy. They attack the cause of these troubles, and by expelling the worms from the organs in order to restore the health of the child, without which the child cannot maintain its strength or thrive. These powders keep health and improvement.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FOR SUNDAY, JANUARY 28

THE HOLY MAN AND LAZARUS

Luke 10: 38-42

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;
but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A spot where dwelt both peace and
quiet the forest strife;

The quietude of the heart—it's
sacred name is Home.

The Text Explained

Verse 10.—A certain rich man illustrates the love of money that there are multitudes that understand

The rock wherein the anchor holds
that keep it safe and still;

Whom there are none who weep and
have midst the blight;

The shrine before whose holy light doth
rest the weary soul;

The quietude of the heart—it's
sacred name is Home.

—Clarence S. Flynn

THE VALUE OF A BIRD BATH

Birds differ a great deal in regard to their need for water. Some prefer to bathe in water, others in mud, sand and stones, and still others in ponds and streams.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.

Golden Text.—Charge them that are
rich in this present world, that they
not be high minded; nor have they
confidence in outward show of riches;

but let them give alms, who give this
will be rich indeed.

A pair of basin may be set out with
water in it. If the birds like the water,
they will bathe in it.