THE SUN HAS RISEN

I dreamt the glorieman told me "Glow your breast And strew your fields alone; I plow no more." The weaver bade me spin the clothes I wore; Then I quit the wall above my head.

Deserted by all who warmed and fed And sheltered me, my heart was "dead and done." For another dark path I would, I heard the roar. Of sullen thone; and the sky was lead.

My eyes fell open, and I saw the sun, I heard a hundred hummers bout my ears. The phœnix whistled, and the boulder call; And then I knew my happiness—and then I felt my endless debt to other men; And since that morning I have loved them all. —Julia J. Bruffhousine.

SAY SOMETHING

Progress in most lines depends on someone getting out of the old rut where people have been willing to follow others and do for decades or centuries, finding out a new and better way of doing things. "What benefit an enterprising man is to a neighborhood, who has initiative and energy, and who does and thinks, is to try and do something new and creative. Of course, they had to run the risk of being laughed at for awhile, but when they succeed others are not slow following."

The man who starts something and makes it work while in dollars and cents will soon have "plenty of imitation."

"One coat of paint in a neighborhood is usually the forerunner of others. A new sile in a community where siles are unknown, does not remain long, and like there pure bred herd of Shetlands or Jersey in a neighborhood means other pure bred herds, just as sure as one plate soon has plates on a business street will soon have plates on a residential street."

Everybody wants to advance, but many are too fearful of failure or criticism to make the attempt—but others are more courageous, who are bold enough to take the initiative, and are ready to follow. It only takes a little leave to heaven the whole lump.

In this regard too much restriction should be placed on young people in the home. Youth is the period of adventure and inquiry, and they should be allowed to try out their schemes. Of the older folk will find out to their cost, what is the way of doing things can be improved upon, and the expense and time consumed in experimenting along new lines will be abundantly repaid by greatly improved methods. —Rev. Henry Harper.

A GOOD SPENDER

Generally speaking, people talk of "good spenders" they mean good spenders. To the unthinking, a youth who orders a restaurant supper as if he were a millionaire, and pays for it the same as his parents, who presents his week's earnings, is a good spender. On the contrary, there is nothing good about such spending. In every way it is objectionable.

It is a waste of money, spending other people's money. That is why they do it cheerfully. Ten dollars does not look very big to boys and girls, but it is to us adults. They are like little children to whom a penny or a quarter or a five-dollar gold-piece all mean about the same. Other than they spent so recklessly means sacrifice.

Often father or mother has done without something really needed, to give the money that the son spends to satisfy his whims. Self-respecting young people will not try to do a favor, or慷慨地 give generously to other people.

TOO SURE

A prominent educator, who had suffered more than most from the over-sensitivity of youth, once said to his wife, "I am not infallible, nor even the youngest, but I am ready to give an opinion on any subject that is to be named, and give it with an air of finality, so as to impress others, that their verdicts, that the really well informed are most cautious. The people who have a cocksure opinion on every subject are either young or lacking maturity of mind."

HOBNOB HUMOR

"Dusty is in jail again. What have they got him doing?" "It's kinder proofreading, as us."

"How'd you mean?" "Puttin' periods after Judge's sentences."

Excellent for Croupy Children. When a child is suffering with croup, it is a good plan to use Dr. Thomas' Electroin Oil. It reduces the inflammation, lessens pain, gives speedy relief to the little sufferer. It is equally reliable for sore throat and chest, earache, rheumatic pains, cuts, bruises and sprains. Dr. Thomas' Electroin Oil is regarded by many housewives as an indispensable of the family medicine chest.

Verse 42.—When He was twelve years old, he went up to the temple with His parents. He was called "little" afterwards he was called "grown up," and became a "Son of God" or "Son of the Prophets."

He was presented to the Sabbath of the Prophets; he was a prodigies with which his father presented him. According to the Jews, twelve years was the age that Moses left the house of Pharaoh's daughter, and Jesus was called and Solomon gave his judgment, and Josue carried out his trial—Facts.

Verse 43.—The boy Jesus started walking. Up to this point he was called "little"; afterwards he was called "grown up," and became a "Son of God" or "Son of the Prophets."

He was presented to the Sabbath of the Prophets; he was a prodigies with which his father presented him.

He was presented to the Sabbath of the Prophets; he was a prodigies with which his father presented him.

Verse 46.—Asking them questions.

Noting that He was the Son of a learned man; and it was as such He questioned them. It was the usual mode of instruction, that the pupil should answer out of his knowledge. But this is nothing which impresses us.
