Christmas Sunday in the Churches Notwithstanding the prevailing anow storm on Hunday the people generally made it a go-to-church day. There were large congregations; in all the churches. The spirit of real worship was manifest. The appropriate Christnas messages from the pulpit, and he uplendld Christmas music by the hoirs and soloists gave the services the real Christmastide inspiration. The pasters all occupied their own pulpits during the day.

A Wedding Announcement It is announced that Mrs. Emma Kutherine Knowles, the divorced wife tof Rav. Robert E. The Shop Windows at Christmas The Christmas displays in the shop windows in town were highly creditable to our, merchants. They were musually attractive and no doubt inluced customers to make purchases, A citizen of Toronto, in walking through town the first of the week, remarked: "I must congratulate the business people of Acton upon their aplendid window displays. They are fully as attractive as the displays made by atores of the same business lines in Toronto, and the merchants of Acton ortuinly doserve credit.".

Georgetown Mayor's Narrow Escape Mayor Lelloy Dale, of Georgetown, was tucky last Thursday morning at 3.30, and owes his life to the fact that his car stuck fast in the mud. Two feet more and he and his companion tor, N. Y. would have been in the swift current of the Hydro canal at Nisgura Falls. Mr. Dale had been told to take a detour just outside the city, but took the wrong road and was driving along the bank of the canal when he was mired. He was horrifled when he discovered how close to the brink he had been. A wrecking outfit pulled the car out and back to solid ground.

Great Rush at the Post Office The regular staff at the post office. which was augmented by several as-sistants, had an abnormal Christmas business. 'It continued from the middle of last week until yesterday. On holidays in Guelph. Monday every mail was equivalent to a dray load, and the Christmas week anw the biggest mails that ever came to 'Acton. " For nearly a week the public space at the office was crowded with citizens unxious to insure and mail parcels and letters to friends and relatives, or to receive letters and parcels for themselves. Through it all the busy staff manifested uniform courtesy and did their level best to keep everybody happy and satisfactorlly served.
