BORE MONSTER DIAMONDS

Up to date twenty-five diamonds have been found in South Africa that weighed over 100 carats weight. The first of them, known as the 'Star of South Africa,' weighed 289 carats, and was cut to 125 carats. It was found in 1867 by a trader named O'Heilly in Griqualand West. He was staying overnight with a local named Van Newkirk, whose little girl was playing with a large and very bright stone. The boy gave it to O'Heilly who sold it to Sir Philip Wodehouse, governor of the colony, for $1,000. It was afterwards bought for $25,000 by the Earl of Dudley.

CONSIDERING YOURSELF

"It was mean, underneath and contemptible!" Howard Linn's face was flushed, and he turned, but the secretary's subjective with a slight emphasis. "Herbert knew perfectly well that I was not the man to be talked down by him. I told him what wages I asked, and he said Mr. Knowlton couldn't expect to get a lower rate for me. Then he sneaked off and understood me by two dollars! He'll understand what I mean if he reads my resignation. The old schoolmaster would sympathize with me. I think, Howard, that an impartial jury would decide in your favor, but the merits of a difference aren't always the main thing to be considered. A man must think of himself, what he's going to gain or lose, how far-minded people will look at his part in the matter and how it will affect his future."

WILL-MAKING

The "ruling spirit" very often shows up strongly in that intensely human document—the will. As often as not one can sum up the strength or weakness of his character clearer by means of his "last statement," than by any other document. To attempt to trace the origin of will-making would be a thankless task, but it is known that the French Jacob left a document more or less equivalent to the modern will. "Specimens have been found in Egyptian tombs which were drawn up two thousand years before Christ. Among the oldest English wills are those of Henry the Great and William the Conqueror, who bequeathed his newly-acquired realm of England to his son, William Rufus. The palm of ingenious will-making must be given to the man who left his will written: "I leave all to her, my wife, which she shall not make use of, but to be expended after her death, so that she might have the satisfaction of knowing that she would be buried in a style most befitting my widow."

IT ISN'T THE LANGUAGE OR THE IMAGERY OF PLEASING WORDS THAT COUNT, THE ONLY GOOD "WILL" IS THE ONE THAT STARTS THE HAND TOWARD THE OLD FAMILY WALLET TO DIG OUT THE "GREENS" WITH A SMILE.

There are times when you feel like laughing, but the majority of things that fret and harass us, and make us irritable and lowly, are due to a funny side. If we would look for it, we would find it. The sense of humor which acts only when the sky is blue and the sun is shining, is not worth a great deal. We could do very well without it. But a sense of humor which changes a sorrow into a laugh, and who things are most irritating and annoying, show the funny side, is an invaluable ally in the battle of life.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

From the issue of the Free Press of Thursday, January 28, 1904

Late rains and blizzards and snow storms continue to prevail. "Fresh goods are an expensive luxury at present. 25¢ per dozen is the ruling price."

Mr. N. Patterson has disposed of his lively business to Mr. W. J. Keen, who has taken possession. A double-hour freight stand from the truck to the office, twenty-four hours Sunday and Monday.

Rev. J. C. Wilson, H. A. and Knox Church Quartet are billed to take part in a Scotch-concert in Knox Church, Milton, next Tuesday evening.

A new yard engine with day and night crews has been put on to run between Acton and Georgetown. It will assist heavy trains up the grade and do necessary shunting in the station yards.

Every Monday morning in January dawned with the mercury at ten to twenty below zero. This remarkably cold weather has been unique and the oldest inhabitant is unable to remember a January to match that of 1904 for severe cold weather.

Owing to the successive storms and zero weather it has been impossible the past week for the railways to move freight. Business generally is almost at a standstill. A serious outcome is the lack of coal. Acton is on the verge of a famine, which may mean actual suffering in some quarters. Not even perishable freight is being moved. A car of apples loaded here last Thursday was still standing on the siding on Tuesday.

The sixtieth anniversary services of the Methodist Church were held on Sunday and Monday. Rev. W. H. Spence, of Victoria College, was the preacher for the day, while an old-fashioned tea-meeting was held on Monday evening.

On Tuesday night at ten o'clock the fire alarm sounded. It was found that the whistle valve at Storey's tannery had blown out, and Watchman Evans was fifteen or twenty minutes in getting it repaired so he could stop the whistle blowing. Some vigilant citizens deeming the blowing of the whistle evidence of fire, at once rang in an alarm at the town hall.

MARRIED GOVDY-JOHNSTON—At the home of Mr. James Galloway on Thursday, January 21, 1904, by Rev. J. G. Brown, H. A. Acton. The bride, Miss Mins Johnson, of Georgetown.

BOOMER—At Linwood, on Wednesday, January 27, 1904, Alfred Boomer, aged 73 years.

Awful Asthma Attacks—Is there a member of your family who is in the power of this distressing "troubling" ailment? Do you know of any service you can render him which will ease the bringing of his attention to Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. This remarkable remedy really does it. It does now, and very probably after his death, it will still thrive. There is no more foolish an illusion than that of imagining one's self indispensable.

As a matter of fact, no one is indispensable. There are leaders whose going leaves the world poorer and sadder, but somehow or other, their places are always filled. And when young people begin to think that they are so important that the organization with which they are connected will go to pieces without them, they are so important that their own employer would never think of allowing them to leave, they are likely to undergo the disagreeable shock of leaving their place without their own consent.

A few wise tips that make for success Handle the hardest job first each day. Easy ones are pleasures. Do not be afraid of criticism—criticize yourself oftenest. Be glad and rejoice in the other fellow's success—study his methods. Do not be misled by talkers. Acid ruins the finest fabrics. Be enthusiastic—it is contagious. Do not have the notion that success means simply money-making. Be fair, and do at least one decent act every day in the year.

Complete in itself. Another grade! Worm Extractor does not require the assistance of any other medicine to make it effective. It does not fail to do its work.

PAY TO ADVERTISE An Alabama farmer ran the following ad. in a newspaper: "Strayed—One Jersey heifer. To the one who returns her I'll give a drink of Old Red whiskey for you and your nine men, with hifers, lined up in front of the farmer's home the next morning."

STUDY AND DISCUSSION

What incident in the history of the Israelites is the most significant? How did their deliverance from Egypt affect the national life for the Jewish people? Estimate the value of the code of laws as enacted. What did the Israelites learn about God under the tutelage of Moses and their desert wanderings?

A Powerful Medicine—The healing properties in six essential oils are concentrated in every bottle of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It is a powerful medicine, and many more can certify that they owe their health to it. Its wonderful power is not expressed by the small price at which it sells.

A LITTLE INVESTIGATOR Clutching a penny tightly in her moist little hand, a very, very small little girl stood in front of the candy counter of a neighborhood grocery, inspecting the goods. Nothing she saw there seemed to please her, and finally the clerk, in exasperation, said: "See here, young lady, do you want to buy the whole case? If it seems so, I'll give you a chocolate and sprinkle with coconut all for a penny!"

The diminutive buyer meditated a moment, and then replied: "Please, Mr. clerk, I'll take it!"

PRACTICED "What's the chances of getting a job around here?" asked the man with a service button who had successfully gold-bricked his way through two winters in a newspaper. "I hate to turn down an ex-soldier, buddy," replied the foreman, "but we haven't got much to do these days."

"Oh, that's all right. You'll find I don't take very much to keep me busy!"
