"Oh, the Snow, the Beautiful Snow" It -has been an interesting pastime for many this week to stroll about town to view the biggest snow banks along the sidewalks. The high ones vary from four to ton foot. The people in the rural districts assert, however, that folks in town don't know much about real snow banks, for they have them twelve to twenty feet high

Chicken Stealing in Trafalgar Chicken thieves are still busy in this district. James Duncan and Thomas Allison, of Trafalgar, recently lost 150 hens. Marks of a truck were seen outside of both places. These robberies may throw some light on many recent raids where fewl were taken without people in nearby houses being aroused. All indications point to the use of sulphur fumes for making the chickens stupid. After a dose of the fumes had been administered the hens could easily be taken from their roosts without making an outcry.-Reformer. A Yough Experience
