PRINCE OR WAITER It is said that when Dr. Oliver. Wendoll Holmes was in England, in 1886, he found himself, on the occasion of a "crush" in London, at some social "function," among a great mass of people, including several royal personages. The doctor sat quietly in a corner, but presently, feeling faint, and seeing refreshments in the distance, he turned to an elderly personage standing near, who appeared to be a butler, and asked for some beverage. The supposed servant brought it with great alacrity, and then said: "I am very glad to meet you, Doctor The Autograt of the Breakfast Table was a little taken aback, and the
