"Pll Be Home Soon, Mother." Writes Sammy

Sammy is a keen little lad. He looks much younger than he is—only sixteen—and he has much more wisdom than is usual at his age. For two years he worked in a foundry doing a man's work. His father worked beside him and halped him master the art of pouring molten metal. One day Sammy complained of a sore side but his people didn't worry much. "It'll be all right in the morning," mother said; "go and take a rest" But it wasn't all right in the morning, nor the morning after, no, nor a week after. It was then time for a doctor to examine Sammy. The doctor looked him over soveral times, then took him to a specialist. Both medical men agreed that Barnmy was consumptive and both held out some hope if he "took the cure" at once. Hammy is quite a favorite up in the Muskoka Hospital for Consump-tives. He keeps the other patients in good humor with his pleasant smile and his quaint stories of French Quebec where he spent his boyhood days. Tell the folks I'll be home soon," he wrote in his last letter; and he probably will be, for he is making The Muskoks Hospital for Con-sumptives, the Haven of the poor af-flicted with tuberculoses, is in a farke | measure reliant upon public
