Trading Within the Empire

Canada is trading more with the United Kingdom and less with the United States. Exports to the United Kingdom in the twelve months ending March, were $35,000,000 more than in the year previous. Exports to the United States, on the other hand, were $13,000,000 less. Imports from the United Kingdom were practically the same as the year before, the reduction being only two millions. Imports from the United States showed a drop of $90,000,000.

Must Cut All Weeds on Highway

At the final meeting of the Agricultural Committee at Toronto, the necessity of weed cutting was discussed at length. The resolution, as adopted, read: "That the Minister of Agriculture consult with the Minister of Highways with a view of taking whatever steps may be necessary, and notify the municipalities that weeds must be cut to prevent them from spreading to adjoining farms, and that this will be taken into consideration in connection with road grants given."

Another Prominent Ontario Paper Ceases Publication

After having owned and published the Kincardine Review for the past 35 years, Col. Hugh Clark, ex-M. P., has sold out his interest to J. J. Hunter, owner of the Kincardine Reporter, and the two papers will be merged as the Review and Reporter under the management of Mr. Hunter. The merger was forced by the increased cost of production of newspapers, it having been found that there was not enough business in a town of Kincardine's size to support two papers. Mr. Hunter is a live newspaperman, and Kincardine and Bruce County will be well served with the paper he will produce.

Youthful Delinquents

"Social problems, like everything else, are constantly changing" writes J. J. Kelso, in his report on work for Neglected and Dependent Children. Not so long ago, he points out, the prevailing evil that wrecked a great many homes was drunkenness. Today, with all the marvellous discoveries along the amusement lines, the principal evil seems to be the abandonment of the old-fashioned home life and the noticeable lack of moral training. Many young people arrested for criminal offences testify that they received no moral instruction of any kind, and particularly that they had never been under any religious influence. In fact, in the matter of religion, the majority of young people who reach our prisons are as ignorant as those foreign populations whom we class as pagan. In the case of one family, four young people appeared before the courts at different times and had to be assigned to reform institutions. They stated that they had never been at any time in a church or Sunday School. In another instance, three brothers were in custody at the same time—two in adult prisons and one in the Industrial School—the cause being immorality on the part of the mother. In these cases, the absence of moral instruction and of well-ordered home life was the source of much unhappiness and great public expense.—Hanover Post.

Importance of Producers

Many people speak usually as if they considered nothing of any importance but the industrial structure—the development of factories and financial institutions. They fail to take into account the fact that the producers and particularly the farmers and stock raisers are of importance. The production of the necessaries of life is an essential function, and the necessaries of life are not all manufactured goods. By all means let us expand industrially, but let our expansion have reflex action on every section of the community. The policy of the government to-day manifestly has regard to every part of the Dominion, regardless of sectionalism, and before we have real and abiding prosperity we must think of Canada as a whole. It is, of course, difficult to avoid the merely selfish viewpoint. Different parts of the country have different problems to face, and perhaps it is not saying too much that this fact is more or less generously recognized. First of all the government must be strong as well as energetic, and forthright in its desire for the welfare of the people. It is our business as citizens to strengthen the government, to give it real power. To this duty every true Liberal must devote himself or herself. Let us as Canadians cultivate an abiding faith in the potentialities and greatness of our country; let us see this country governed in the best traditions of the Liberal party. Then Canada will suffice for Canadians, a country flourishing, prosperous, united and enjoying the advantages of comfort and contentment.

Quebec Has Trouble With Its Liquor Law

According to the Montreal Gazette, amendments to the Quebec Liquor Act will be sought at the next session of the Legislature, as the result of a recent decision by Judge Amedee Monet, of the Court of Special Sessions, who ruled that Liquor Commission police cannot arrest without a warrant a customer who has bought liquor illegally. The judgment has paralyzed the Commission police in a campaign they had started to punish the client whose business induces others to transgress the law. The Legislation will be asked to amend the law so that the agent of the Quebec Liquor Commission who has introduced himself into the premises and witnessed a person buying liquor from one not authorized to sell it, may then and there arrest the client for being in possession of liquor irregularly acquired.

Costly Week of Empty Speeches

To those who have taken the trouble to wade through the pages of "Hansard," the official minutes of the proceedings of the House of Commons of Canada, of the present session must come a sense of disgust at the emptiness of the so-called speeches which occupied four costly weeks of the session in debating the Budget, and which was only then shut off by the threats and shame at the incapacity to rise to a discussion of real public questions, the speakers following each other with a monotonous sameness of theme and speech, showing an utter lack of originality. One of the bright spots, however, was the demand of W. D. Euler, M. P. for Waterloo in a businesslike address in demanding that prompt action be taken to put an end to the enormous waste entailed in the duplication of the railway systems of the country. Mr. Euler pointed out that at least $100,000,000 could be saved by a fusion in some form of the two systems and demanded that efforts be made at once to bring about a change. To change a deficit of upwards of forty millions a year entailed by the National Railways into a surplus of sixty millions should be an achievement worthy of immediate consideration and which, it must be evident, would have a most startling effect upon the financial situation in the country. There didn't appear to be much enthusiasm for the proposal, however, nor will there be until the public become seized of the enormity of this one leak, and demand its suppression.

EDITORIAL NOTES

You can get a free government bulletin on almost everything except the art of conserving the tax payer's money.—Kingston Whig.

The village of Hastings is having plans and estimates prepared for paving its main street, the cost of which it expects the government to pay 50 per cent.

Canada's exports during the calendar year of 1924 reached $1,058,057,898 as compared with $1,014,944,274 in the previous year. $43,000,000 is a very tidy increase.

The British Empire Exhibition recently balloted to select the twelve most progressive cities in the empire. Montreal is placed seventh and Toronto is eleventh.

Ten breweries closed, ten million dollars' worth of other property padlocked and hearty co-operation of municipal and national officials is making Chicago drier and drier every day.

French observers express anxiety over Von Hindenburg's proclamation to the Reichswehr, in which he states that through discipline and faithfulness the army will rise once more to effectiveness and success.

The House of Commons has passed a resolution and given first reading to a bill approving the trade treaty between Canada and the Netherlands and the Dutch possessions. This treaty means an additional avenue of trade for Canada.

A deputation from the Ontario Prohibition Union waited upon Premier Ferguson as minister of education last week, urging that in the new text book on hygiene provision be made for instruction in scientific temperance. The premier, it was stated at the close of the interview, was sympathetic, and there will be provision for such teaching.

Field Harshall Paul Von Hindenburg, in the seventy-eighth year of a life devoted to the cult of war for the greater glory of German Monarchs, as Germany's President-elect, swore fealty to a Republic reared upon the ruins of the Monarchy and committed ostensibly to the cult of peace. This is fine, but it fails to harmonize with his references to future success of the German army.

Sir Robert Falconer in his Old Country lecturers is not propounding any new doctrine when he talks of Canada as the interpreter between the two great branches of the English-speaking peoples. But he is elaborating and explaining an old thought in a manner which will undoubtedly attract attention, and perhaps go a distance in counteracting some of the persistently adverse criticism Canada has been receiving in Britain of late.—Globe.

School teachers say the spring term is the least productive of the three that make up the school year. There are probably several reasons. The pupils are a little tired mentally, and the teachers more than a little. But there is another and a more important reason. The excess of athletic sports, with the various leagues of baseball, football, etc., together with the Daylight Saving fad, rob pupils of energy and sleep. One of the hard things for parents and teachers to decide is where wholesome recreation ends and harmful rivalry and undue excitement begin.

When the present Dominion Government came into office there was a deficit of some $80,000,000. Within two years they had turned it into a surplus of $35,000,000, justifying them in relieving the people from some of the burden of taxation and also in making certain reductions in the tariff. Despite the loss of revenue there is to-day a surplus of about $3,000,000, a state of affairs that is very disquieting and unsatisfactory to the Opposition. The result discounts the pessimism of some of the Opposition, whose gloomy utterances and drab-colored predictions have been uttered so persistently.

A Serious Drain on the Town

The Brampton Banner says: "The T. Eaton Co. began to run a heavy truck from the city to Brampton on Monday. Hitherto, these deliveries to town have come in by express and by freight. It is estimated that Eaton does $1,200 a day of business in the town of Brampton. Five or six people are in constant employ here delivering and taking orders.

Is Not a Moderationist

In its report of a meeting of the Moderation League at Hamilton, the Spectator said J. M. Mackenzie, druggist of Milton, had been appointed district executive officer. On Tuesday evening the Spectator published a denial from Mr. Mackenzie, who said he was not a member of the League, he never attended one of the meetings, and had no knowledge of its aims.—Champion.

Use Standard Size Envelopes

Small envelopes are the bane of the life of the post office clerks. According to a statement by Postmaster T. C. Duncan, of Ottawa, a small, insignificant and unassuming little envelope is up to all kinds of tricks once it gets in the post office. They get caught in the stamp cancelling machine. Thousands of letters go through the post office every day and the little ones cause all the trouble. The postal department is launching a campaign to have the use of cards and envelopes less than three by four inches discontinued.

Many Selects From Ontario

Ontario easily leads all provinces in the Dominion in the number of select hogs marketed. Up to the present time about one half of the total number of porkers passing through the Toronto Stock Yards this year have been graded selects, and as a result have received the premium of ten per cent. which is paid for animals of that class. Quebec, with a small number of marketing, reports less than fifteen per cent. in the premium class, while the Western Provinces have less than five per cent.

Brampton Paper Hanger Killed

Albert Dolphin, a resident of Brampton for the past two months, met his death suddenly Thursday afternoon. He fell from a piece of board, supported on ladders, on which he was standing to remove paper from a ceiling, struck a rung and broke it, a fragment of the ladder penetrating his abdomen and causing a hemorrhage which resulted in death a short time after the accident. His companion, Harry Edis, who was assisting him, was also thrown down and badly shaken up but was otherwise uninjured.

Losers, Weepers; Finders, Keepers; Legally Wrong

It is manifest that many persons fail to realize that it is the legal duty of anybody who finds on article of any kind to advertise the same at once. Some people fancy that by holding a thing found without any claimant appearing for an indefinite period, such article becomes their own property, if for some reason the lawful owner has not advertised his loss. That is a wrong idea. It is only after an article has been legally advertised, and the owner fails to turn up, that the finder has the right to possession.

If You Contemplate a Canoe Trip

A booklet which will be welcomed by every canoeist has been issued by the Fish and Game Department of the Canadian National Railways. It is entitled "Canoe Trips and Nature Photography" and in a matter of forty pages offers suggestions for 22 canoe trips. There is a map showing the route of every trip and there is at least one trip for every province except Prince Edward Island. When the canoeist has found the trip which attracts him, all he has to do is to send the number of the trip to the General Tourist Department of the Canadian National Railways and he will be provided with the fullest particulars as to portages, camping sites, fishing spots, etc., and also with a large blue print map which can be used as a chart during his journey.

Improving Your Surroundings

Fellow citizen, go out and look about your premises. Does the fence, the shed, the other outbuildings look as though they needed some repairing, some paint to brighten and preserve them. Would your surroundings be made more attractive, more cheerful by the planting of a shrub, a tree, a bed of flowers. Does your lawn need attention, does your home need painting. Acton has earned the reputation of being an attractive town. Will you help make it more attractive? If every citizen would do a little in that direction how much more attractive our town would look. All it requires is a little thoughtfulness, a little energy, and the expenditure of a couple of dollars. In fact a dollar paid for membership in the Horticultural Society will bring to you sufficient shrubs and plants to make your surroundings so much more attractive that you will be more than repaid. Try it.

THE MIND OF A CHILD

The Washington Star tells a story of a benevolent old gentleman who was walking in Central Park, when the sobs of a little girl attracted his attention.

"What is the matter, my child?" he asked.

"Boo, hoo, hoo! I've lost my penny!" cried the little girl.

The benevolent old gentleman drew a penny from his pocket, and extending it to her said, with a beatific face, "Here's your penny, little girl. And now stop crying."

The little girl, instead of thanking the old gentleman, stamped her foot, and said, with abornfully flashing eyes: "Oh, you wicked old man, you had my penny all the time!"

TIMELY WARNING

The Astronomer Royal of Great Britain relates that one day his telescope was accidently shifted downwards, so that it commanded a part of London. Straight in front of him he saw a church steeple down which ran a crack so wide that even the vibration of the organ might have caused it to collapse. He telephoned at once to the vicar, who on being told that his steeple might fall at any moment thought he was the victim of a practical joker. When he finally realized the seriousness of the warning he had the church closed at once.

GRANDMA WILL PAY

Before the tiny merchant stood pretty little Rose. "I want some cloth for Dolly, enough to make a dress." "What color, little lady," the pleasant dealer said. "Why, don't you know?" she answered, "I want it awful red." He smiled, and cut the fabric for the delight of miss. "What does it cost?" she questioned. He answered, "Just one ticket." And then the clerks who heard her went laughing up and down. "My gran-ma said she'd pay you next time she comes to town."
