The Epistle to the Galatians & the one book in the Bible that sets forth more clearly than any other (even more emphatically than' the Epistle to the Romans) that we are justified on one condition alone, faith, and that, If we have believed on Christ and therefore have received the Holy Spirit (chapter 3: 1, 2) as an indwelling and an controlling divine person, we "ars not under the law" (verse 18); but at the same time this Epistle sets forth the bighest ideals of conduct and of privilege. We have been called unto liberty (liberty from bondage to external precepts and codes and enactments and statutes; but liberty is not license, and we must not for one moment "use our liberty for an occasion to the flesh" (an excuse for carnal or selfish living). The "liberty" of the Spirit has its own laws, but they are not laws outside of us, but laws in our hearts, spoken by the indwelling Spirit. The first law of the indwelling Spirit, as well as of the written word is the law of "love" and love ever impels us to "serve one another."
