Comments Traffic Officer's Week Defendants who come to court for infractions of statutes of the city do not always harbor vengeful feelings. One of the defendants, who was doing his duty. A few weeks ago he and his wife and her husband, who was driving on a trip from Toronto to Guelph. When on the Acton road between the fifth and seventh lines the Traffic Officer received a letter as follows from the defendant: "I am guilty. There is one thing, however, which I would like you to know: as we always do to watch the speedometer, I must have neglected to take the speedometer out of the car. But I want to comment on the action of the traffic officer. He got up to me, stopped us and light up 'we were speeding.' I think that is a fair thing to do, and in a satisfactory thing. Not only that, he was courteous and polite, but he was very good to other drivers too, for that matter, and pointed out that we had passed a number of cars and showed that we were in the line of traffic. I am interested in keeping up the roads, and do not wish to do anything myself to spoil them. I will guarantee that the realization of the situation caused by the traffic officer's talk will mean that one car will never again be 'in the line' that I know that, and may help you in your work to know that this officer is of the type of man that we all want to see, and therefore I write you. I am enclosing my check for $15.00 to cover fine and costs."—J. E. D., Toronto.

Car with Liquor Seized on Saturday

On Saturday evening Chief McPherson received a tip that a yellow car from Toronto was in town with a quantity of liquor. The Chief had an errand at the Electric Railway Station and passed the word to Constable Precious. Between nine and ten o'clock Constable Precious spotted the car on Main Street, near the Ford garage. He went up to the car and saw there were two men in the front seat. He informed them he had a constable and intended to search the car as they were suspected of having a supply of liquor. The man who was driving, who was found to be Alexander Dunsmuth, of Lanesburg, O., tried to flee, but the officer caught him in the back of the car.

Constable Precious looked into the back of the car, saw one bottle labelled "Scotch Whisky." He placed the man under arrest, and ordered them to drive to the Town Hall. The two men, also Dunsmuth and his partner, were placed in the cells. Returning to the car, the constable found a suitcase containing several bottles of liquor, labelled "Scotch Whisky."

Dunsmuth and Gracey remained in the cells until Monday morning at nine o'clock, when they were brought before Police Magistrate Moore for their trial.

Constable Precious told the story of the seizure and arrest and also when he got on the car to order them to the Town Hall, Dunsmuth, the driver, said to Gracey, who was evidently the moving spirit in the matter, "My God, Gracey, I knew you'd get me into trouble."

Chief McPherson gave evidence corroborating the evidence of Constable Precious in so far as he was connected with it.

Dunsmuth then volunteered to go to the box and get the whole story of the enterprise. He was sworn, and in very straightforward evidence testified that he had bought the liquor on Friday afternoon at the Nordica Apartments in Toronto to drive him to the house of the defendant, Mrs. Gracey, who was a friend, agreed to loan his car to Dunsmuth, he being out of work. They were to leave the apartment at 8:30. Just as they were leaving Gracey brought a suit case and a bag to the car and told them in the car. He had no idea there was liquor in the car until they got to Georgetown. There they went to O'Neill's garage to have the car repaired for the night. Gracey took bottles from the car and went away with them, coming back with the bottles for further supplies. Dunsmuth then discovered it was bottles of liquor that Gracey had put in the car, and he also noticed that Gracey was becoming intoxicated. He said to Gracey he wouldn't take him any further, that he was going to have to go to the station. Gracey persuaded him to go on as far as Acton, saying he knew a man there who would buy the liquor for him. Before they left Georgetown Gracey left a number of bottles of liquor fall on the street at the side of the garage, and several were broken.

They came on to Acton and went to the pool room and had a game there. Gracey then drove to Main Street and was at the Ford garage and at the Bell Telephone Company's office. When the car was in the garage, and several were broken.

Gracey was evidently determined to drink everything he could get his hands on of a bad job if possible. His evidence was so contradictory that the magistrate told him he did not believe a word he said and advised him to mind his ways if he didn't want to get to the penitentiary for perjury.

Gracey was fined $100.00 and costs, or three months in jail. He went to the county jail.

The car was confiscated and will be sent to the Board of License Commissioners in Toronto for disposal. It is a McLaughlin six cylinder touring car, with a motor body.

JERUSALEM was the city of his fathers, and every Hebrew's religion had its roots steeped down into the soil of the past.

If Jerusalem was the city of his old home, where the ideals of life had been fostered in the heart of his childhood, the tender love of the days that were past came back to keep his heart pure and to strengthen him against the temptations of Babylon.

If Jerusalem was the city of his God, His inspiration carried him back to the temple and the music of the temple. Psalms seemed to ring through the open windows, above the noise of the street below, and it all made God more real to him. So real, that he felt the awe of His garments and heard His voice speaking to him, as young Isaiah did in the temple.

The praise service by the choir was especially enjoyed. In their anthems the choir excelled themselves, while the solo of Mr. Lewis and the quartet, by male members of the choir, and the duet by Messrs. Salt and Lewis were sung with real merit.

Rev. Mr. Boyd of the Baptist Church and Rev. Mr. Zimmerman of the United Church, whose congregations attended, assisted in the opening services.

Rev. A. C. Stewart, M. A., the minister, gave the preacher of the day a very happy introduction. They had been happy students at Knox College.
