Then, of course, there was the usual large company of buyers assembled to bid on such articles as they felt were being sold at bargain figures.

The beautiful and substantial old stone residence, which for nearly sixty finest properties, with its expansive lawns, and shrubberles, and rare old grove, with the productive gardens in the rear, was offered, but no bid was received which reached the reserve price of $10,000.00. The highest figure named to the auctioneer was but 7,500.00. Consequently no sale was effected. The property is intrinsically worth three or four times the ancount offered by the highest bidder.
