The Disfigurement of Advertising Bill Boards

Those who have been campaigning in England, and those who are similarly interested in Canada, against the disfigurement of the countryside by advertising bill-boards will be encouraged by a recent decision of the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice. A bill posting company was convicted by Somersetshire justices for "disfiguring the natural beauty of the landscape" contrary to the by-law passed by that county and confirmed by the Secretary of the State. The company appealed, the only point at issue being the validity of the by-law, but the Lord Chief Justice and two other Justices of the High Court have confirmed the conviction.

Values of the Power of Expression

That a person has no special gift of expression, in speech, in writing, in drawing or in music, should neither discourage him from trying to increase his power of expression nor cause him to undervalue the importance of expression as a means to success and happiness in life. Many persons think that power of acquisition is the first requirement for success and happiness; that the acquisition of knowledge, of wealth and of friends, if they could all be gained simultaneously, would be the surest guaranty of happiness. Perhaps they are right in so thinking; but they should not overlook the fact that the power to acquire depends almost as much on readiness in giving as on the labor of taking in. "Talk is cheap" is a scornful epigram, the application of which is often deserved. But the talk that flows from sound knowledge of a subject and from an earnest interest and belief in it, or from a friendly and hospitable attitude of mind toward people, and their work, is not cheap, nor is it unprofitable to the talker. It wins from him the confidence and the liking of others; it enables him the more readily to market his wares; it induces reciprocal freedom and sincerity of speech and leads often to a discovery of new opportunities. As a man becomes known in his neighborhood for substantial qualities of character, he finds increasing demands made upon his power of expression. Whether as a member of the Municipal Council, or as a citizen who is drafted for public service of some sort or other, or as a leader in a large enterprise, he has to cultivate his faculty for clear and persuasive expression. The man who early in life appreciates the importance of cultivating that faculty is not likely to be at a disadvantage under the demands that are made upon him as the years go on.

How Would the City Man Like It?

An exceedingly good example of the kind of thing that makes our farmer friends righteously indignant came to light the other day. A stop was made on the roadside at a place where a particularly gorgeous and sumptuous lilac bush contributed to beauty, both through eye and nostril. It was noted that a section of the wire fence surrounding the place was lying flat. When a small boy who had a sort of air of proprietorship came down from the house and a polite request was made as to whether the party might gather some of the lilacs, the reply came at first a bit grudgingly. The reason for this came out in a little story. "A whole truckload of folks drove up this afternoon," he said, "and without saying a word, climbed up on the fence and began to cut off limbs. When the fence went over they laughed and went in the yard. Then when dad came down and asked them either to fix the fence or to pay for it they told him to go." The motor car has done a good deal for the city man, but it has not, unfortunately, taught him courtesy. And where that element is lacking he, and usually his family, have little respect for the rights, or even the property of others. A year of two ago Life, the humorous weekly of New York, presented the thing very vividly in a picture. A farmer and his family had driven in to the city, presumably to holiday for the day. They came early, before the city man was up, drove up on his front lawn and proceeded to make themselves at home. When he came out to protest he found the farmer's little daughters picking his cherished flowers, one of the boys digging in his garden patch, a hammock swung to one of his verandah posts, and the farmer himself chipping up a flower trellis to make kindling for the fire already laid in the lawn rockery. Exaggerated a bit, probably, but a pretty good illustration, just the same, of how city folks behave in the country. And illustrating the reason, also, why folks in the country are sometimes so chary about allowing privileges to any kind of motorists. It seems time for a courtesy campaign among motor-owning city folk. Possibly the same thing might be extended to some of the small towns with advantage.

Canada's New Governor-General

It has been officially announced that Lord Willingdon, of Raton, has accepted the appointment as Governor-General of Canada, succeeding Baron Byng, of Vimy, who retires next month. Lord Willingdon has been successively Governor of Bombay and Madras. He sat for Hastings from 1900 to 1905 as a Liberal, and later for the Bodmin Division of Cornwall. From 1905 to 1912 he was junior Lord of the Treasury. He married in 1892 Hon. Marie Adelaide, daughter of the late Lord Brassey. Lord Willingdon was in Canada early this year, and was a guest of Lord and Lady Byng at Rideau Hall, Ottawa. He was accompanied by Lady Willingdon. The new vice-regal pair will be very popular in Canada.

Unity Among the Churches

A very significant resolution was passed at the meeting of the Anglican Synod of Toronto Diocese in session last week. Disastrous effects of the divisions of the Christian Church were deplored in a report by the synod. The principle of church unity and co-operation were affirmed in the report, which came from the committee on the bishop's charge. It was apropos of the recent visit of Sir Henry Lunn, to Toronto. It read:

"None who listened to the stirring words of Sir Henry Lunn could have failed to realize the magnitude of his message, calling us to a sense of the disastrous effect on the divisions of Christendom, and the duty of all to work and pray that all who profess to call themselves Christians may be led into the way of the truth, and hold the faith in unity of spirit, in the bond of peace and in righteousness of life. There is no doubt," went on the report, "that the disunion which exists among Christians weakens the witness which the church should bear to the world. Not until she speaks with one voice will it be possible for the church to convince the world that the Father has sent the Son. In whatever way it may be possible there must be co-operation with Christians of every name that, learning to know the value of the Christian character of those who are members of other Christian communities, we may in process of time come nearer to one another, until at last we give evidence of the fact that all baptized persons are members of the one body of Jesus Christ, which is His church."

By unanimous vote the report was approved with out discussion.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There's considerable criticism from those who have incomes of $10,000 or over that the tax on these incomes is too high. Well, we know a whole lot of people who would be willing to have the income and pay the tax.

A medical journal says: "Out of about 175,000 physicians in the United States approximately only 35,000 prescribe liquor in their practice. The others use substitutes which, to say the least, are equally effective in emergency cases."

Shipments of Canadian grain to British and European ports during the winter season from St. John totalled 17,338,000 bushels, an increase of more than 4,000,000 bushels over the season of 1924-25. Canada is surely progressing.

The prohibition forces of Alberta have launched a movement to restore prohibition to that province of Canada. The Canadians are beginning to be disgusted with the failure of the so-called light wines and beer policy.—The Issue, Burlington, Vt.

Recommendations for improvements in the organization of the civil service have been made by the Civil Service Commission. The abolition of the Commission would be the greatest improvement and ought to be the first, remarks the Montreal Gazette.

It is interesting news to hear that the British coal strike is likely to soon end. The operators and operatives evidently think the industry has been long enough idle. The world is growing accustomed to substitutes and the coal trade is feeling the effects.

The decision of the Federal Government endorsed by the House of Commons, to remit to automobile dealers the excise tax paid on automobiles remaining in their hands at the time when this tax was repealed by Order-in-Council in December, 1920, will be generally approved as a simple act of justice.

Canada is looking forward to a very large tourist traffic this year. Even if last year's figures alone are reached, the aggregate of foreign cars entering the country will be enormous, but the probability is that those figures will be greatly exceeded. The total in 1925 was 2,429,144, of which 1,521,277 visited in Ontario.

Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, is not inclined to look upon a law that would make compulsory the stopping of all motor cars on approaches to railway crossings as a workable measure. The Minister cites the difficulties of enforcement and the fact that it would relieve the railways of existing responsibility. The Government has considered the suggestion several times, but does not feel disposed to act.

In a recent address to a Conservative gathering, Mr. Robinson, editor of the Toronto Telegram, expressed the opinion that conditions in Ontario under the Ontario Temperance Act were better than they would be under any other system for control of the liquor traffic. It must not be forgotten that the people who have brought the Ontario Temperance Act into disrepute by violations of the law, will violate any other law that does not suit them.

Canada's total exports increased from $1,058,057,898 in 1924 to $1,270,986,854 in 1925; the imports from $808,144,573 in 1924 to $890,267,348; the value of field crops from $995,236,000 to $380,719,506; value of agricultural products from $1,443,977,000 to $1,708,567,000; exports of grain from $445,516,290 to $562,449,287; of animals and animal products from $153,213,088 to $104,022,331, and so on through our list of exports. Verily, Canada is making gratifying progress.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 20

LOVING DEVOTION TO OUR KINDRED
General Lesson, THIRTY—Judah's Plea.
Scripture Lesson—Gen. 46: 18 to 46: 15.

Golden Text.—A broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise.—Psa. 51: 17.
Devotional Reading.—Prov. 2: 11, 12, 20-22; 3: 1-4.

18. Judah—As the one who had advised that Joseph be sold into slavery, it is peculiarly appropriate that Judah should be the spokesman whose words should reveal the brothers' change of heart. For thou art even as Pharaoh—As grand vizier, Joseph represented the king.
20. His brother is dead—This statement was not intended for a lie. He alone is left of his mother—Rachel had had but two children, Joseph and Benjamin.
21. It is absolutely essential to read Gen. 42: 1 to 44: 17, even though it is not included in the lesson material.
22. Surely he is torn to pieces—Jacob's exclamation, when the truth about his son Joseph is revealed, shows that he had not yet forgiven the brothers' change of heart. For thou art even as Pharaoh—As grand vizier, Joseph represented the king.
23. Surely he is torn to pieces—Jacob's exclamation, when the truth about his son Joseph is revealed, shows that he had not yet forgiven the brothers' change of heart. For thou art even as Pharaoh—As grand vizier, Joseph represented the king.

HIS PUNISHMENT
An old farmer who had been to market and had got good prices for his cattle bought several yards of cloth, intending to have his mink make a suit of clothes. Unfortunately, he lost his purchase on the way home. His wife, much annoyed at his expensive carelessness, told the story to the vicar.
A week later the vicar met the good man and halted him. "By the way, Mr. Green, have you heard anything about your cloth?"
"Morning, noon and night I hear about it," the farmer replied disconsolately.

Be sure and get McCo's, the original and best, and don't forget, there is nothing on earth so good to make backward, listless, underweight children grow strong and robust.
