

MY LITTLE LAD
When my little lad comes in,
I see his round cheeks and his dimples...

When my little lad comes in,
He brings me a bunch of the broom-corn
That sets the dancer leaves a-spin...

When my little lad comes in,
Comes in from his room and play,
Whenever Mother and I may have been...

When my little lad comes in,
I see his round cheeks and his dimples,
And you see the twinkling of his chin...

When my little lad comes in,
I see his round cheeks and his dimples,
And you see the twinkling of his chin...

When my little lad comes in,
I see his round cheeks and his dimples,
And you see the twinkling of his chin...

The Free Press' Short Story

How the Dugans Won

CHARLES, TENNY JACKSON

THE Dugan domicile is fifty yards from the end of the railroad bridge, but the Dugan family struggles all the way down a two-hundred-foot ramp...

After a while Johnny felt the steady movement of the spurs, and the bank below kept telling him not to mind. The pole was pressing hard against their bruised shoulders...

But out of the troubled waters Ed Conlin's steel-clad boots rose to view, and the sectionman was after them in frantic haste. He had the rope around the lineman in a minute, and by the time the pole was lowered...

At that moment a rat came out of a crevice in the long row to pick up crumbs, and an idea came to Allie. "Look there, he's hunting for food..."

AN OLD SCOTTISH COVENANTER

One of the first railways laid in North Britain connected the ancient city of Perth with Aberdeen. In Mr. Chambers' Journal there is a pleasant picture of a stanch old covenanter who was subjected to a loss that called for compensation from the railway company.

Mr. J. D. Hough, of Rochester, N.Y., is spending a week with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Hough, of Buffalo, N.Y.

THE OLD MAN

I chanced upon the little bowered retreat For a short time, and never shall I forget the spell of tangled mystery: the Belvedere leaves like fingers curled in a dream.

THE LESSON OF THE OLD-HOME BUSH

I'm very thankful, that though I am old and foggy in some things, I'm not a pessimist so far as present-day affairs are concerned.

THE DAWNING OF HOPE

A well-known man was addressing the inmates of a lunatic asylum, says the Tatler, and after he had been speaking to them for perhaps three quarters of an hour, one of the inmates got up and walked out of the room.

WHAT AM I?

My first is in ant, but not in beetle; My second is in syrup, but not in stickle. My third is in paper, but not in book.
