Canadian Breeders Will Furnish Real Competition in Cattle Classes

Ontario will take an active part in the International Dairy Exposition at Detroit, October 6 to 13, according to information received from the Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, by W. E. Skinner, secretary and general manager of the show. "Due to its proximity to Detroit," says the Minister, "Ontario will make itself felt at this international exposition. A genuine interest has been created." Canadian cattle are noted for their remarkable breeding, and have carried off many honors in the previous years. Ayrshire, Holstein-Friesian and Jersey breeders have always furnished keen competition for their fellow-breeders in the States.

Waterworks Paying Operating Expenses the First Year

The town of Forest, in Lambton County, was evidently fortunate in having its new waterworks system inaugurated on a business basis, by men of intelligent business skill and foresight at the outset. The Forest Free Press last week gave this interesting information:

"The new system of waterworks in Forest was brought into use on September 1st last year, and there are now 322 services in operation, one-half of which have been installed since the beginning of the present year. The receipts have been well up to expectations, and at the end of the year there will be a nice balance over operating costs to be applied on the debt."

Acton's waterworks system, installed and put into operation several years previous to that of Forest, with nearly 500 services installed, while giving great satisfaction in many respects, has not been showing as gratifying financial results up to this date.

An Opportunity Which Should be Embraced

The constantly increasing population of Acton is rendering the problem of providing sufficient school accommodation more and more acute. The primary rooms have been crowded for years. Five years ago the Council Chamber in the Town Hall was requisitioned as a school room for beginners, and now it is inadequate, and scores of boys and girls who have attained the legal school age of five years are refused admission. If this were an exigency likely to prevail for only a few months, the matter might be overlooked, and the parents of the young children be persuaded to exercise patience until the Board of Education would take the necessary step to relieve the congestion and exclusion. But this condition has prevailed for a number of years, and no serious action has yet been taken, or even suggested, to relieve the situation and better the conditions. As has previously been pointed out in these columns, an opportunity at present exists whereby, with a comparatively small expenditure, provision may be made for the accommodation of all possible pupils of the Public Schools for many years to come, and at the same time, a betterment of conditions and environment may be secured for the High School and its students. This opportunity is to purchase the Sidney Smith estate, adjoining the school property, and converting the splendid stone residence, recently rebuilt throughout, into a High School. This could be done at an expenditure of not much, if any, over $10,000. Rooms suitable for class rooms are already there; there is very good lighting, and it could readily be improved; corridors run through the building; a heating plant and toilet accommodations are installed, and the securing of this property would bring the schools a quarter of a mile nearer the centre of the town. The transference of the High School to this property would leave ample accommodation for the Public School in the building there. A new High School or a suitable addition to the present school building, with sufficient accommodation would entail an expenditure of at least $50,000—it cost Milton $120,000. By the plan suggested, the town would save many thousands of dollars, and the premises would be adequate and satisfactory for both Public and High Schools. But this course is to be taken, it must be at once. The Smith property is for sale, and its executors are taking steps to ensure such a sale at the earliest possible moment. Prospective purchasers are investigating. If this fine estate, with its broad lawns, shady groves, running water, and acres of territory to be secured for Acton's schools, immediate action must be taken. The securing of it will be a heritage for Acton's youth for half a century to come, and any person giving the matter serious thought and investigation will easily realize many of the advantages to be derived by the purchase of this

Germany in the League of Nations

Europe has buried the Great War amid applause which shook the hall of the League of Nations. Germany was last Wednesday unanimously accorded a permanent seat on the League of Nations Council. Germany went into the League, with the understanding that her disarmed condition under the Versailles Treaty shall be taken under consideration in interpreting her obligations under which League members are bound to common action against an aggressor state.

Silver Anniversary of Saskatchewan and Alberta

Twenty-one years ago this month the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta came into being with resplendent inaugural ceremonies. Earl Grey, then Governor-General; Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Prime Minister, and a host of other notable personages journeyed from the East to witness the respective official events, at Edmonton, on September 1, and at Regina on September 4. Both cities, now so progressive and beautiful, were still in a raw, undeveloped state, with straggling business streets and muddy roads, but with no end of hope and ambition. The new provinces had been carved out of the old Northwest Territory. The hopes of the founders of the new provinces have been abundantly justified. The area of what is now Saskatchewan had in 1901, 91,279 people; in 1921 there were 757,510. The population of Alberta grew in the same time from 73,022 to 588,450. The people of the sister province of Ontario, offer very sincere congratulations upon the prosperity and growth of these sister provinces.

A Frank Statement of Existing Facts

"You're a Conservative, so why don't you boost the Conservative cause, through the columns of the paper," said a friend the other day to the editor of this sheet. Well, this paper is a local enterprise, patronized by all the people in the community, irrespective of class, creed, or political affiliations, and although to some it may appear to be rather a spineless attitude to take, this sheet endeavors to be fair and impartial to all, and strives to promote harmony and goodwill in the community which it serves. It is every elector's privilege to vote the way he or she pleases, but it is a duty that no one should shirk. Voters should pay no attention to last minute rumors or whisperings circulated by politicians, but should try to get a clear grasp of the political situation as set forth in black and white by reputable journals. The advertising columns of this paper are open to both political parties, providing they pay for it, which is only reasonable when one considers that the publisher, like any other business man, must have revenue.—Powassan News.

Following Each Other in Mutual Helpfulness

A week or so ago representations were made at the regular meeting of the Acton Municipal Council by the editor of this journal, respecting the adoption of a distinctive crest for use by the municipality. The adoption of the crest prepared and registered by Acton, England, by our town, was suggested to the editor by Sir Harry Britton, the British member of Parliament for Acton Borough, with a single change of substituting the oak leaves of the English crest with maple leaves for the Canadian crest. The suggestion was favorably considered by our Council. In the columns of the last issue of the Acton, England, Gazette, it is found that our British contemporary is suggesting for its town, a function recently carried out here successfully, both from the standpoint of holiday pleasure and financial profit. It says:

"This is a 'tip' from Acton, Ontario, an incorporated borough, like ourselves, which recently decided to celebrate its 'Community Day' by holding a civic holiday. A representative local committee drew up a programme, which included a procession, in which the fire brigade exhibited its new fire-trucks, ball games for teams of both sexes, athletic sports, a garden party, with music by vocalists and the Acton Citizens' Band, dancing in the park, visits to local institutions, and a general inspection of the latest local improvements. Now, should not we have a 'civic holiday' on the anniversary of the coming of the charter, which was received in Acton on October 12, 1921. We might have a parade of the Fire Brigade, with its new petrol fire extinguisher, and the new electrical ash-collectors; processional visits to the Baths Extension, fices, the parks, the housing estates, and other the redecorated Central Hall, the Municipal Office properties; a park concert by the Acton Borough Brass Band, with dancing, and a display of fireworks to wind up. We could combine a holiday fete with a sort of municipal stock-taking, in which our recent improvements, (the fruits of incorporation), could be seen and admired."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The new Governor-General of Canada, Viscount Willingdon, will arrive in Quebec on October 2nd, after having met on the ocean, following the usual custom, the retiring Governor-General, Lord Byng of Vichy. The latter will leave Quebec for Great Britain on September 20, after a public reception in the Ancient Capital.

The general election is over. The campaign was devoid of excitement, in fact there was little to get excited about. Now that it is over let us settle down to business in earnest and with honest endeavor aim to accomplish best results for ourselves and our families, and we will be accomplishing much for our country's as well. Political campaigns do not generally accrue to personal, family or national benefit.

Canada is fortunate these days in capturing foreign trade in large volume. An increase of $107,534,865 in the value of Canadian domestic goods exported to Great Britain during the twelve months ended July 31st, last, as compared with the preceding year, is shown in trade summaries just issued through the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The total Canadian export to Great Britain during the year was $512,064,822.

NOT AN "R" MONTH

"It was a broiling August day. Four tired, sweating, discouraged laborers sat at the table of a wayside inn, awaiting their dinner. The steaming hot, fried steak sizzled on the plates, the torrid baked potatoes bubbled audaciously, and the fiercely hot coffee scalded reckless tongues. Even the water was fiercer more than lukewarm. "Such a dinner," growled one of the uncomfortable party, "to set before me on this day!"

Presently the maid entered to remove the plates. She asked a question about the tired, hot father-men with joyful anticipation, she said: "Are you ready for your coffee?"

"Iced coffee were ready. They dropped their forks, abandoned their coffee and leaned back in their chairs, to enjoy the cooling drink. They could fairly feel it slipping down their hot throats in cool, delicious spoonfuls. Lemon-ice, pineapple ice, orange ice—

"The dessert came. It was huge dishes of steaming boiled rice, with an accompaniment of flourmen pushed back their chairs and fled from that dining-room. It was the last straw."

DID HE UNDERSTAND?

A well-known Edinburgh professor often became so interested in his subject that when the noon bell rang he seemed quite oblivious to his duties, and kept on for several minutes. Certain restless spirits among the students decided to give him a gentle hint, so they rang an alarm clock. London-Tid-Bits tells the result.

The clock set to alarm at precisely twelve o'clock, was placed on the professor's desk. As was anticipated, he began his lecture without observing the chime of the alarm. About an hour struck, the alarm went off with a startling crash.

"Over those days in the secret apartment, the joke. There was a round of applause. The professor smilingly waited until the alarm and the applause had ceased, then he said: "Young gentlemen, I thank you for this gift. I had forgotten it was my birthday. An alarm clock is something my wife has needed for ever since for a long time. It is a very kind remembrance on your part. Then he went on with the demonstration which had been interrupted by the alarm, and the students were never quite able to satisfy themselves whether the professor understood the joke or not.

HOMELESS IN LONDON

The United States government has never taken more interest in the housing of its ambassadors, says a British weekly, and when Dr. Page first arrived in London in 1913, having no embassy to go to, he had to find rooms at a hotel like any ordinary tourist.

Soon afterwards he set out one night to see the sights of the metropolis by moonlight, and while strolling slowly round Trafalgar Square he was accosted by a suspicious policeman, who inquired his name.

"Mr. Page," was the reply. "Well, what are you doing wandering about here? Hadn't you better go home?"

"Home?" exclaimed the doctor, with mock solemnity. "I have no home."

"No home?" reiterated the puzzled policeman. "That who are you?"

"Oh, I'm only the American ambassador," replied Mr. Page, sadly.
