For instance the old conception that Jesus only has soul-saving power through His -wonderful love, or again the theological sense of the outlook of the day in the coming back of the passion of the early church and of the belief in a special blessing for hot-hearted men who would not be put off. Rather, he believed, the soul grew and was won in the sense in which a man won his own body, by proper exercise and care, or in which he won his mental life by proper exercise of his mental faculties. "Men judgment day," he said. "There is a sense in which there is judgment every day. Christianity is not a philosophy or an atheism; it is an experience, a struggle all the time and just as Jesus called Matthew from his well-ordered life to one of sacrifice and suffering, so he calls us,
