Pleasure and Profit

This week's issue of The Free Press contains an unusually large proportion of advertisements relating to the Fair. Acton merchants have taken the opportunity to welcome visitors to the Fair and have, by offering special prices for "Fair Week" goods, an opportunity to make many savings in seasonal lines if shopping is indulged in when the Fair is in session. This is most cases will confine their exhibits to their place of business. But a few have taken the side most profitable as well as pleasant. The advertisements are carefully studied.
