EDITORIAL NOTES: The Milton Reformer has passed its forty-second milestone this week, and its vigor is not waning with age, but under Editor White the Reformer continues to keep Milton to the fore.

Hon. James G. Gardiner, Premier of Saskatchewan, predicts a population for Canada of 23,000,000 by 1950. Like Laurier he believes that the 10th century belonged to the United States and the 20th to Canada.

According to Magistrate Jeffs, of Hamilton, since the advent of the Liquor Control Act the revenue of the Police Court has been increased from two to three hundred dollars per day. It seems to be very successful in creating more drunkenness.

The prompt catching of the Campbellville bank robbers will take away some of the excitement of youths for this kind of banditry. And a good stiff sentence handed out to these young chaps would prove an excellent object lesson to others who might be considering such outlawry.

In spite of all the good (?) liquor that is never supposed to hurt anyone, we still read accounts in the daily papers of people dying after drunken carousals, and the victim last week in Toronto had a permit for procuring liquor from a Government store. It surely is "some" business the Province of Ontario is into.

The motor accident to the little son of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Savage on Monday evening, which is the second accident of its kind this year in Acton, shows motorists it is their duty to protect the children. Children at play are heedless of all else but their sports and a group of youngsters at play should be a warning for double care from the motorist.

Profitable Spooling. A Cleveland jury has just awarded a woman $3,075 damages against a policeman because he arrested her for spooling with her husband in their automobile on one of the streets of that city. Granted that the policeman might have been a little overzealous in the execution of his duty, and might have had some reason for being sceptical of their statement that they were husband and wife, it must be admitted that this was a profitable few moments of spooling for this pair. Their plea that the full mob on the night in question was irresistible, must have touched a responsive chord in the heart of the jury, which was composed of six men and six women. Several of them well on in years. There is one disadvantage in living in a small town like Acton, where Chief McPherson knows most of the married couples. Not many Acton pairs would be able to get away with such profitable spooling at home, but it might be worked out on the city police. Results such as the Cleveland pair secured cannot always be assured, however, and possibly a jury from a Canadian city would reverse the decision and impose a fine, and it might prove rather expensive.

Speculations and Investments. We suppose a man has a right to do what he pleases with his own money. That many are induced by glib-tongued agents to invest their hard-earned dollars in schemes, mining, oil, stocks, etc., without their first making careful inquiry into the soundness or reliability of such schemes is altogether to be regretted. The desire to double your dollars on a chance is so human that it is not surprising that oftentimes men who are generally considered cautious and shrewd, are victims to smooth-talking agents who come along and present a "sure" thing in the way of investment. This community has been victimized, not once or twice, but many times, and the recent exposure of the arts of the swindlers at Ottawa is but another in the long list of how men with money become the dupes of the swindlers. The promise of quick and big returns is very enticing to the man who has a few hundred dollars for investment. Dear only knows it is not because the public have not been warned. The lessons of yesterday seem to be forgotten in view of the promises of tomorrow. And so, notwithstanding the scar of the recent burns, the victims approach the blaze that looks so innocent and promising, and they are again singed. Let us again repeat, do not invest in any speculation or scheme presented by any agent without first consulting your banker. He will give you sound advice. He will never mislead you. Better to be cautious than sorry. -Winchester Press.

The Town Band. The following article has been going through the press for the past few weeks, but it contains so much praise for that worthy institution, the town band, that we offer no apologies for the re-publishing of it again. The motional side of our nature craves expression and we often find it in ways that are not beneficial and sometimes really harmful. Do we not owe it to ourselves and to our young people to see that we and they have the best possible means of emotional sublimation? Music is recognized to be a particularly enjoyable emotional stimulus, and at the same time, a mental refreshment and a food for the spiritual part of us. The essentials of music, inculcated in the youthful mind, prove to be an invaluable constructive force from which may be deprived the best emotional pleasure and mental sustenance. Of all the forms of music, the Citizens' Band fulfills this inherent need most satisfactorily. For the Band appeals strongly and instinctively to one and all of us—regardless of temperament. Besides being a pastime and a pleasure, music is also a subject of study and a vocation, and has been clasped as an absolute necessity, as some one has said, "not necessary to life, but to living." How true this is. In many cases it has changed a state of mere existence to a happy, purposeful life of action. The home town band has been the training school of many of the world's greatest artists in the realm of music, and they look back to their youthful strivings with an inexplicable feeling of wonder and tenderness, for they realize that it was there—in the small town band, as they gave their concerts in the park before enthusiastic audiences of their own townfolk and those from neighboring communities—that they acquired their first knowledge and genuine love and appreciation of music, that greatest of the arts. Yes, the town band has been the first stepping-stone of success in many brilliant careers.

NOT HAVING ANY

Some time ago an inspector was visiting a school in a remote, highland village. The inspector asked several questions and was highly pleased with the replies given. At last it came to the geography test. The inspector asked the class to name all the foreign fruits they knew. Several were given, but a most important one was forgotten.

When the answers were exhausted the inspector noticed a little lad sitting in the corner becoming all over. "Well, my little man, what's your answer?" asked the inspector. "Oh, ha, ha," exclaimed the boy, "I thought you was saying 'orange' and you say 'look it up'."

IGNORANCE: A man, apparently from the country, stepped up to a city constable and asked "How do you spell 'orange'?" "Oh, a year or two," replied the constable. "Know a man named MacKeown?" "There are over five million people in London," said the constable. "Every man in the city," replied the other, "but I thought you might have some more to know about."
