DIED

WALDE: On Sunday, October 26, 1927, at her late residence, 118 Spencer Avenue, Toronto, Annie Clarke, dearly beloved wife of Albert E. Walde.

IN MEMORIAM

LITTLETON: In loving memory of our beloved mother and sister who passed away on Thanksgiving Day, November 26, 1927.

One year has gone, no one can tell, the time we have had been well. The blow was great, the shock severe. We little thought her death so near.

She made no one a last farewell. She said good-bye to me, she opened wide A loving voice said "Come."

The fine October mornings when the sun has a few rays of the maple and the pale yellow leaves of the elms were sifting the sunlight, and the green grass was still shimmering with dew, are passed for another year. But November, the earliest of Indian Summers, is here, and the spirit of Thanksgiving is in the air.

POLICE COURT NEWS

Nearly a month passed without any information being had in Migratory Moon's court, but in the past five days five charges have been laid and convictions made. These have been cases of kidnapping and the illegal possession of liquor.

A case of assault was laid against a pair of Italians, brothers, who maltreated a man at the lime kilns in Nassauway. They found they had nothing to do with the man, who had a grievance, and when summoned to court pleaded guilty, paid fines and costs, and recouped the man they arrested for a time lost in nursing his wounds. The fine, about $40.00, was a result of the fines.

ASHGROVE

The Ashgrove Improvement League met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Brownbridge, on Monday evening to tender a reception to Mrs. W. O. Brownbridge (true Emily) Spender. The president called the meeting in order and after a formal address Mrs. Wilson, president of the League, made the presentation of a silver sandwich tray. W. O. Brownbridge made a brief speech, after which the evening was spent in merriment, musical solos, duets and impromptu speeches. The guests then entered the dining room, where the house was set up with a bounty of good things.

At the close of the supper a toast to the good health of Mr. and Mrs. Brownbridge was given.

A FISH YARN

X Party of Enthusiasts Spend a Day Fishing for Lake Trout on the Georgian Bay

When the editor was invited last week to form one of a fishing party at Meaford he accepted very readily. The party consisted of the chairman of Postmaster J. C. Matthews, Chairman of the Board of School Trustees C. H. Hartman and Mr. B. G. Arnold. Not long and expectable however, not many could come for the party, the pleasure anticipated from the trip was expected to be confined to the party and the pleasure of being out-of-doors for a day or so and travelling through this section of the country in autumn.

Postmaster Matthews was the host to the party with his car, and a very capable driver he was. Perhaps the party anticipated the trip through this splendid section at this time of year and on the delightful autumn days we have been experiencing was a rare treat.
