Creber Factory Now in Action

The Bulk of the Plant Now Manufacturing Monuments in the New Building Here

The Creber Monument Works is now a busy factory with the bulk of the plant now manufacturing monuments in the new building here.

A visit to the factory yesterday brought out many interesting items of stock. The general public is not aware of the fact that the Creber Monument Works is still working in Toronto but it is now here in Acton.

Two blacksmiths are employed shaping the "chests" used by the cutters. A blacksmith is in charge of the stock of the electric crane. The stock of stone in the Toronto yards is now being made daily. Four cutters of granite have been delivered at Acton and a good amount of stock is now on hand.

Canadian-made granite of the various types and colors are manufactured. It provides about 100 horse power of electric energy to operate the plant and machinery.

Consolidated office, messenger and drafting room have been provided for and while there is the usual supply of granite, the plant is now in full operation.

Mr. Creber is rapidly getting located in the new surroundings. Acton is very short of granite and a good concern as an industry with a market already established. In their new quarters, the Creber Bros. have ample room to accommodate their growing business and Acton is secured another fine industry added to its already ample quota of thriving concerns.
