

THE GOLDEN CITY

Two aged men, that had been foes for life. Met by a grave, and went—and in these years. They washed away the memory of their strife. They went again the lock of all these years.

Two youths, discarding amid tears and laughter their trustful hearts unto each other. They never met before, and never after. Yet each remembered he had found a brother.

A boy and girl amid the dancing light. Glanced at each other at a palace door. That look was hope by day, and dreams by night. And yet they never saw each other more.

Should gentle spirits born for one another. Meet only in sad death, the end of all? Should hearts that spring, like rivers, near each other. Yet far apart into the ocean fall? —Trevison

FACTS OF INTEREST AND INFORMATION CONCERNING ACTON FALL FAIR

The Secretary's office is located in the building at the Park entrance.

There is no entry fee for entries of school children or in the Children's Work Class.

Acton race track is one of the finest and fastest. A full view of the horses competing can be had all around the track—a privilege denied even at the Canadian National Exhibition.

A four-fair circuit of Acton, Georgetown, Brampton and Milton is expected to draw the best race horses to this section ever competing.

It was generally conceded that Acton Fair last year provided more special attractions than any other small fair in the country. This year's programme is even bigger.

A parade of prize winning live stock will be held at four o'clock on the second day of the Fair.

A dance will be held in the Town Hall on the second evening of the Fair.

The special prize list alone of Acton Fair offers 100 Specials and over $2000 is given in special prizes alone.

Every department of the prize list has been revised and brought up-to-date this year.

A copy of the programme of events may be secured for the asking by all who attend the Fair on the second day.

$400 is offered in prizes for the races at this year's fair.

This is the sixteenth exhibition of "Apple" air. It was organized in 1913, and has held a successful fall exhibition each year since.

A new permanent railing has this year been erected around the race track, which will greatly improve conditions.

CARE OF CUTLERY

There are many folk who still prefer a steel knife that is keen and razor-like to the stainless variety which saves labor but refuses to deal, for instance, with a thick steak. To these a few hints will not be amiss.

Steel knives will brighten quickly if heated before they are polished. The best method is to hold the blades for a moment or two in boiling water, and then rub them with a fine sandpaper.

Equal parts of ammonia and olive oil, to which sufficient prepared chalk has been added to make a paste, make a good cleanser for the very handles of knives. Rub the handles with this mixture, allow to dry, and then brush off. If very stained, repeat the process several times.

If the knife has come away from the handle, fill the hollow with powdered resin, make the stalk of the blade red hot, and press it into its original place. Bone knife handles may be cleaned by rubbing with a piece of new flannel dipped in peroxide of hydrogen.

When a plaided spot grows "rusty," wash it, dry it as well as you can, and put a lump of sugar inside. This will absorb the moisture that causes the rusty smell. If the spot becomes tarnished on the outside, put it in warm potash water, which will quickly remove the tarnish.

Put a couple of pieces of camphor into the drawer where you keep your silver. These will keep spoons and forks free from tarnish.

GIVING HIM A CHANCE

One of the unfortunate facts of life is that the world in general regards business principles as something entirely different from the code of morals which govern the other relations of human beings—a code which love and charity freely enter. It took a ragged little newspaper boy to prove, the other day, that certain old-fashioned Biblical precepts are not out of place in the practical, working world. A newspaper tells the story.

A gentleman, hurrying down-town, stopped for a paper.

"Can't let you have one," said the boy. "Why not? I heard you crying them."

"Yes, but that was down the other block where I hollered."

"What does that matter? Come, I'm in a hurry. No fooling."

"Couldn't sell you a paper on this block, mister, 'cause it belongs to Limpy. He's up to the furthest end of that row. You'll meet him."

"Who's Limpy? And why does he have this block?"

"'Cause us other kids said we'd let him have it. You see, it's a good run 'round of the office, all along, and the poor chap is that lame he can't get 'round lively like the rest of us, so we agreed the first one caught selling on his beat should be thrashed 'tee'."

"Yes, I see. You have a sort of brotherhood among yourselves?"

"Well, we're going to look out for a little chap what's lame, anyhow. There comes Limpy now."

The gentleman bought two papers of him and went on his way down-town, wondering how many men in business would refuse to sell their wares in order to give a weak, halting brother a chance in the field.

The Oil of the People—Many oils have come and gone, but Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil maintains its position and increases its sphere of usefulness each year. Its sterling qualities have brought it to the front and kept it there, and it can truly be called the oil of the people. Thousands have benefited by it and would use no other preparation.

MRS. FORD SMILED

One new "Ford" story was told by Mr. Henry Britham, of a banquet given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford by the American Society of London at the Savoy Hotel when the Fords were in England last week. "A young man," he said, "was driving a Ford in Michigan when, by some strange coincidence, it broke down. Another Ford drove up, and a man, stranger like our host, stepped out and asked if he could help. Mr. Ford—for so he was—took his coat off and in two minutes put the car right. "The young man, very delighted, offered him a dollar and a half. "No thanks," was the reply. "Put it in your pocket. I have plenty of money." It seemed to Judge by his smile—that this was a "new one" even to Mrs. Ford.

If an aviator fell from his aeroplane, what would he fall against? His inclinations. What key in music would make a good officer? A sharp major.
