that the health of each of us depends, case and the maintenance of health if it is to be of any practical value. In the same way, it is true that whether or not the home is a healthy one depends upon the people who live in it. Lut that being true, it is also true that some homes are so built that it is very difficult, if not impossible, to make of any one of them a healthy home.

When a house is to be built or rented, the question as to whether or not it is so constructed and so situated that It can be made a healthy home, should receive attention. Some of the points which are of the greatest importance. are brought to the attention of our read-
