THE RAIN

I listen to the radio-drops. As they bludge against the pane. "Come out, come out, wherever you are. To me it seems quite plain. And then my mother begins. As they splash upon the tin. "It might say anything, but say. "Stay in, stay in, stay in." "Elmer Greenhouse."

PEACHES: PUDDING

Nearly everyone likes peaches either canned or fresh and their flavor blends well with other foods. There are a number of puddings in which canned peaches are used to advantage because they bring color to otherwise uninteresting dishes.

PEACH HATTIE PUDDING

Drain halves of canned peaches. Place a thick layer of fruit in the bottom of a greased baking dish and pour cottage pudding batter over it. Bake in moderate oven (375 to 400 degrees F.) about thirty minutes.

COTTAGE PUDDING HATTIE

1 1/2 cups flour 1/2 cup sugar 1/4 cup baking powder 1/4 cup milk 1 egg 1/4 cup shortening Cream the flour with the baking powder. Sift the shortening and add the sugar. Beat until fluffy. Beat in the milk. Then add the milk and flour alternately.

SHRIMPED PEACH PUDDING

1 can peach halves 1/2 cup sugar 1/2 cup milk 1 egg 1/4 cup shortening Beat the flour with the baking powder. Sift the shortening and add the sugar. Beat until fluffy. Beat in the milk. Then add the milk and flour alternately.

PEACH TAPPOCA

1 can peaches 1/2 cup powdered sugar 1 cup tannin 1 cup boiling water 1/2 cup sugar 1/2 cup milk Drain peaches, sprinkle with powdered sugar, and let stand one hour; soak tapoca one hour in cold water to cover; to make syrup add enough boiling water to make three cups; heat to boiling point; add tapoca drained from cold water, sugar, and salt; then cook in a double boiler until transparent. Line a mould or pudding dish with peaches cut in quarters, fill with tapoca, and bake in moderate oven thirty minutes; cool slightly, cover with a cloth, and serve with whipped cream.

REALISM

"Are you missing the home folks, Nellie?" Uncle Jud inquired kindly. Eleanor made a small impatient gesture at the word. "I'm bored with so many similar things at Uncle Jud's the obsolete fur-trimmed, the horsehair furniture, the steel figurines, the fringed towels and napkins. Indeed, it belonged with the whole village and had thought." "Of course," she replied, "I enjoyed having the girls here. I get starved for talks about real things, literature and art and music."

QUEENIE'S INFERIORITY COMPLEX

ANNIE HAMPSON QUINCY

"It was a hard name to live up to. When the game was nearly over the score was even. Queenie, chorused the girls. "Just another of your good shots and we win! Just one more!"

"Queenie, we are having a sing-song at the Sunday school picnic to-morrow afternoon and I want you to play. We gather in the big hall just before lunch and from community songs will jump up to sacred pieces."

"You mean you don't wish to," said her father sternly. "You know every one of these songs and surely after six years' training you can't refuse."

"I'm sure you count, of Professor Turner wouldn't have invited you to join," said her mother dolefully. "and having joined, it is your duty to be regular in attendance and to put your very best into it."

Chronicles of Ginger Farm

Written especially for Gwendoline P. Clarke

"And now it's blossom time! Naturally you think I mean the fruit belt, but I don't. Of course we know it is so but the blossom time everywhere on your farm and our farm and in every backyard where a full-blown bush grows."

"Well, to get back to fruit trees. We have on our farm the usual assortment—plum, pear, cherry and apple, and they are all of them in full blossom."

"The Justice of the Peace in a town in Ohio, in pursuance of his duties, had to hear and judge cases that were brought before him on the occasion of a marriage ceremony."

"With every passing season the dressing of shop windows, especially at Christmas time, becomes more artistic and elaborate. Compared with the gorgeous, glittering miles of shining objects that every city of any pretensions can now display the shops of a hundred years ago were poor and dingy indeed."

THE CONTROL OF GARDEN INSECTS

By RUTH PARQUIAR

The most of the common garden insects are not hard to control, if one gives them a little attention and is willing to invest in a small amount of equipment. Though many people do not know all the common garden insects by sight, identification is not necessary."

"When commercial tobacco preparations are used to control insects on plants, the insects will not be as numerous as when the tobacco is used in the garden. Apply a directed spray to the plants."

"Persian Balm quickly relieves chapping, windburn and all roughness caused by weather conditions. Keeps the complexion clear and lovely. Completely absorbs in a few minutes. Never leaves undesirable attractiveness. Stimulates the skin. Makes it soft, smooth and flawless. Preserves and enhances natural beauty. Soothes, refreshes and invigorates. Makes hands soft and flawlessly white. Imparts that subtle charm so essential to true elegance."

"I've been having a 'torridous time with the paint-pot these few days. I bought a can of bright turquoise blue enamel to paint the inside of the set-in cupboard in the dining-room. After I had done it I looked around for something else to dab, and finished up by painting quite a lot of the furniture."

SLATS' DIARY

By ROSE PARQUIAR

"Friday—the teacher reads a 'note of apology' and told him a lot of stuff about my Department and sent me out in the garbage and gave me a 'kick' and then he said he was publishing me but I picked up a kid smaller than me but he popped into my head that maybe he was bigger than me also."

"Monday—Pa made a social error tonight when Miss Blunt came in and showed me a pitcher of the fellow to which she is engaged to get married after she lets me see it she said well what do you think of him and pa replied and said well he must be very wealthy, she went on without saying very much more and I heard Aunt Knobby say something about a fox 'Yax."

"Tuesday—Pa gets a getting ready to give me a ride in a couple weeks. I do not like my part very well because I am supposed to be a Englishman and I am having a lot of trouble getting the Mirettes to stay on my eye."
