Dots and Dust

—Civic Holiday—three weeks from Monday.

—The "Glorious Twelfth" comes on Saturday.

—The election is just a little over two weeks away.

—Hay-making is now general among the farmers.

—Oakville has disposed of $100,000 worth of debentures at 97.20.

—If the hay crop is short the lawn grass crop is doing splendidly anyway.

—Acton Orangemen will join in the Orange demonstration at Hamilton this year.

—Mr. George Benton has had his store and residence improved by a coat of paint.

—The Fourth of July was quietly spent here. A few United States people in town "celebrated."

—It is never too early to begin teaching your children self-control and respect for the rights of others.

—Acton Citizens' Band will lead the Milton Orange Lodge in the demonstration at Bolton on Saturday.

—The hay crop now being harvested is not as heavy as usual, but other crops give promise of a bumper yield.

—The stock of the Acton Machine Company and the shipping department is now being handled in its new building.

—Quite a number of our readers and friends have called at the office to see the new two-revolution press in operation.

—It is said that a great executive is one who hires nine men and then goes fishing instead of standing around in the way to show he's boss.

—A very interesting letter in this issue from Rev. T. S. Glendinning, describing the new field in which he is located, will be read with interest by former friends here.

—The bass fishing in Fairy Lake has been so good lost most citizens have been applying for and procuring their Definite from Beardmore Leaners Limited as a likely rate.

—Many a local Sunday School lad is wondering why it always has to rain on the annual picnic day. St. Alban's on Saturday, and the United and Presbyterian, yesterday, each got sprinkled.

—A small blaze in a garage at the rear of Cashmore's store gave the firemen a run last Thursday afternoon. It was extinguished with a few buckets of water before much damage was done.

—It is reported that a motor load from Hamilton arrived in town with a real cargo of wet goods to enjoy a day's fishing. The fishing permits were, however, not so easily secured as the liquor permits and the party had a fishing trip, minus the fishing.

Entered Into Rest

MRS. JULIA A. McARTHUR

After an illness of a couple of months, Mrs. Julia A. McArthur died at her home, 419 King William Street, Hamilton, early on Tuesday morning. For several weeks in May and June Mrs. McArthur was in Hamilton General Hospital. She improved considerably in health and about the middle of June returned to her home. Her condition became serious again and the end came peacefully on Tuesday morning. Her executors, Messrs. H. P. Moore and R. M. McDonald, visited her when she was in the hospital, and arranged that she be comfortably cared for there and when she returned home. Mrs. McArthur was, for a number of years, a resident of Acton. An invalid granddaughter, whose parents were dead, was the cause of great anxiety to her. This granddaughter's home is in New Orleans. Mrs. McArthur had her at her home here for some time, in order to give her necessary care. Her loving solicitude was unabated. She made numerous trips to New Orleans in her interests, and had her with her in Hamilton up to the time she was obliged to go to the hospital. The granddaughter is now in the sanitarium at Hamilton. The funeral was held this afternoon at Milton. Rev. A. C. Eddy, B. A., B. D., of the United Church, Bramalea, a friend of the deceased for a number of years, having charge of the service at the house and at the grave at Milton. A number of Acton relatives and friends attended the funeral at Milton.

WARDEN MORDEN SADLY BEREFT

Sudden Death of Mrs. Morden at the Family Residence in Trafalgar

Following a stroke, Mrs. Christina Morden, wife of W. H. Morden, Warden of Halton County, passed away suddenly at her residence on Lake Shore Road West at Oakville, last Friday.

The late Mrs. Morden, who was in her sixty-ninth year, was a daughter of the late William McKay, of the Middle Road, and was widely known throughout the entire district. She is survived by her husband; three daughters, Mrs. W. L. Shaw, Newmarket; Mrs. (Dr.) Shaw, Vancouver; and Mrs. F. C. Husband, Toronto; and two sons, G. Campbell Morden and W. H. Morden, of Oakville.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon, and were largely attended. After the private service at the family residence, a public service was held in Knox Presbyterian Church, of which Mrs. Morden was a member.

The services were conducted by her minister, Rev. J. Forbes Wedderburn, who taking for his text "For Me to Live is Christ, and to Die is Gain," paid a tribute to the character and work of the deceased. "Knox Church has lost a valued member," he said. "The same sense of loss will also be keenly felt in the community at large."

Letters to the Editor

The Parsonage,
Whitelaw, Alta.,
July 4, 1930

To the Editor,
ACTON FREE PRESS,
Acton, Ontario

Dear Sir:

I thought you might like to know a few things about the country where I am now situated. Whitelaw is about 370 miles north of Edmonton, on the northern bank of the Peace River, where daylight commences about 2.30 a. m., and ceases about 11.00 p. m., at this time of year. Regarding the commencement of daylight, my statement is based upon testimony and not actual observation. But the evening hours are never very dark. We are engaged at present upon the construction of a motor camp. Work was continued until 10.30 p. m. quite pleasantly, if the friendly activities of a few mosquitoes were eliminated from consideration.

The country here is "bush." The land is good, composed of leaf mould and clay. But it has to be cleared first. Further west, in the district surrounding Fairview, which is at present the "end of the steel," a situation approaching open prairie prevails. But here the light poplar timber has to be removed with some undergrowth, the land "broken," and then put to crop. This territory in consequence is more recently settled. The people remain "proving up" their homesteads, building their homes, and making a place for themselves "in the sun."

We have not had much of the sun of late, but he is doing better now. Continued rains made the roads almost impassable, washed away bridges, and prevented mail service for a week. Trains are now running regularly again, and the motor road is in good shape, except for a stretch between McLennan and High Prairie, south of the Peace.

The Peace River is a majestic stream. At the "crossing," which is Peace River Town, where the railway, motors, horses and traffic leaving use the same bridge, the banks rise to the lordly height of 1,000 feet. With no perceptible speed, but in proper dignity, they slope, rocky to the high land they support, massing a dome cleft in the ground, down which the deep and dark waters of the river speed away to Lake Athabaska. This latter stream is heavily wooded in spruce and poplar to the edge of the water. Deer, moose roam with their young and bears have been seen, but wooden cabins, broad and sweeping river, soaring banks, present a noble spectacle not soon forgotten when coming many miles to see, from the viewpoint of material prosperity, the people require better economic returns for their produce. This is the secret of the return to power of the U. F. A. Government, under Mr. Brownlee. Long freight hauls and advantages taken of manufactured commodities keep the purchase of produce down and the prices of manufactured very high.

From the viewpoint of social benefit, one most conspicuous need is medical service. The nearest doctors and hospitals are 75 miles either way. Those living north or south have the extra inducement they live to travel to medical attention. There is a fine opening here for a young married medical man.

From the standpoint of religious betterment, the outstanding need is settlement and continuous religious service by one denomination. With competing religious organizations, no one church is strong enough to provide proper religious facilities for the community.

Yours sincerely,
G. S. Cassmore.

FLAVORING WITH FRUIT PEEL

Everyone knows how much better a lemon pie tastes with grated lemon rind than without. Few, however, realize how widely they can make use of fruit peel for flavoring.

Grated orange and lemon rind are used by the best cooks to flavor cakes, pies, breads, desserts, frostings, fillings, sauces and other foods. In grating, only the yellow portion of the rind should be removed. This yellow portion contains the oil cells from which come the volatile oils that give the flavor.

This yellow portion, when grated, may be used immediately, or mixed with sugar and kept in a tightly covered jar for future use. Where the entire peel is used, it is ground fine, mixed with sugar and used in the same manner as the grated rind.

WILLING TO PAY THE PRICE

A somewhat shabby man wandered into a very smart restaurant, says The Tatler, and ordered an elaborate lunch. At first the waiter was dubious about serving him, but the customer's obvious ease in his surroundings and his excellent choice of dishes reassured him. At last, when the bill was presented he asked courteously for the manager, who appeared presently.

"Good day," said the customer airily. "Do you recollect that a few months ago a man came here and had a jolly good meal without paying for it?

"I do," answered the manager grimly.

"And do you remember what you did to him?" pursued the other.

"Yes, sir," said the manager fiercely "I kicked him out of the place."

"Well, then," said the customer, rising leisurely and turning his back to the official "do you mind obliging me again?"

SAFETY WEEK AROUSES WIDE-SPREAD INTEREST

Widespread interest in the work of the Highway Safety Committee is evident throughout the Province. The Committee is truly representative of every section. In every community one or more men in public or semi-public positions have accepted invitations to join the Honorary Advisory Committee, and many have submitted to the Executive excellent suggestions and ideas which are being incorporated in the programme.

As in previous years, the work of the Committee will consist principally of an advertising campaign in daily and weekly newspapers and other publications. Radio and billboards, as well as public meetings, also will be used. There will be safety posters in garages and filling stations and safety folders for tourists.

The watchword of the Highway Safety Committee is Care, Courtesy and Common Sense in driving. Its good work in past years is indicated by the fact that the ratio of accidents to traffic is actually decreasing in Ontario in spite of the fact that the highways are becoming more crowded every year.

On Monday evening a pleasant social time was spent at the home of Councillor Sims McLean, seventh line, when members of the Presbyterian Church gathered together to give Mr. Malcolm Smith and Miss Agnes Walker some token of remembrance before their approaching wedding. Mr. Smith is Sunday School Superintendent and both Sunday School and congregation met on the occasion to honor the contracting parties. Mr. Edwin Pearen acted as chairman for a brief programme of recitations, solos and a duet, followed by the presentation, the address being read by Miss Jean Swanston, when, at the proper time, Messrs. Cyril Anderson and Elliot Patterson presented the couple with an end table and electric floor lamp. Mr. Smith replied briefly, thanking the gathering for their thoughtfulness for he and Miss Walker, and afterwards the gathering joined in singing "They Are Jolly Good Fellows." Brief addresses by Rev. W. H. McCracken and Mr. John Sunter followed. After the presentation community singing was enjoyed by the gathering, followed by guessing contests. Previous to the programme, Mrs. Jas. E. Gray put the gathering into an interesting few minutes when she had up a parcel and asked for the nearest correct weight, which was given by Margaret McCracken. Toward the close refreshments were served by members of the church, which were enjoyed by all. A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. John Sunter, and seconded by Mr. Jas. McNabb, for the hospitality of the McLean family in offering their home for the occasion. The best wishes of the church and many friends follow Mr. Malcolm Smith and Miss Agnes Walker in their new life.

EDEN MILLS

Eramosa Sunday School convention was held in the Presbyterian Church on Friday, July 4. The opening exercises of the afternoon session were conducted by Rev. Mr. McCracken. Reports of the various schools of the Township were given. Mr. George Pearen's address on the visitation to the schools, revealed in some cases a lack of interest on the part of the parents, who failed to realize their responsibility to their children, and gave great credit to the officials and teachers for their earnest efforts in upholding the good work among the young. Valuable discussion on ways and means helped in the interest of the session. Mrs. (Rev.) Gandier gave an address on "The Bible and the Child," which was pointed, practical and highly commended. Last Thursday the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church met at Mrs. Robt. Wilson's home with a good attendance, the chief attraction of the meeting being an address by Miss N. Anderson, of Acton, who in a few weeks expects to be en route for Vancouver, and from there to Koke, Japan, where she expects to engage in missionary work.

The Presbyterian Sunday School picnic was held at Rosewood Park on Tuesday afternoon.

A few nights ago a large pile of hardwood blocks and limbs of wood, belonging to Mr. McPerran, mysteriously disappeared, it being on the side of the Guelph road. The thieves made a clean getaway.

WHEN LINCOLN CHASED HIS LITTLE BOY

Laughter was Abraham Lincoln's way of escape from the solemn responsibilities and sadness that life brought him. An old Springfield friend of his called it "the President's life preserver."

Lincoln was fond of his little boys and enjoyed their childish ways. One morning when Lincoln was living in Springfield, Illinois, he was awakened by the cries of his little son Tad. Rushing into the room, he found Tad in the grip of a neighbor boy who was pounding him unmercifully.

Lincoln pulled the boys apart and demanded to know what the trouble was about. Tad explained that the other boy had called Lincoln a name.

"Well, what did you do?" asked Lincoln.

"I hit him," said Tad.

"Then you go back and lick him," said Lincoln.

Tad went back and the fight was resumed. Lincoln watched for a few minutes, then called Tad to him.

"Now, Tad," he said, "I'll tell you what to do. Go back and tell him that you take back what you said about him, and that you're sorry you said it."

Tad went back and delivered the message. The other boy looked at him in surprise, then said:

"Tell your father I take back what I said about him, too."

THE CURE OF BASHFULNESS

"But, doctor, I'm different; I'm afraid of people. My hands and feet seem so coy, and I can't, can, and if I walk into a room I'm sure to fall over something. How can I ever get over it?"

The doctor looked quizzically at the raw, half-developed boy before him. "When I was your age," he said slowly, "I was about as you are, only worse. I was poorer, bigger, slower in school and more awkward. It was real torture for me to meet people, especially women and girls.

"One day as I was going downtown barefoot I saw coming towards me two girls whom I knew by sight; they were well dressed and jolly. I thought of slipping down a side street, but I was in the middle of a long block and had to face them. Suddenly I noticed a cow in one of the side yards. Perhaps if I could seem to be driving her, my big hands and feet wouldn't show. Gathering a handful of pebbles and calling to her to 'buy-buy,' boss!' I started her off.

"The girls came to where I was vigorously driving the animal from her chosen pasture. Then a clear, joyful treble voice came from the house:

"'You, boy, what are you doing with my father's cow?'

"You can imagine the rest. I had made a ridiculous spectacle of myself. In my confusion I stepped into a patch of sand burs with my bare feet. The pain made me wince; I lost my balance and fell into a muddy ditch. I can still hear those girls laugh!

"I hid out in the haymow for two days to think it over. When I came back I told my mother that I had been visiting, and she wisely professed to believe me. As a matter of fact I had visited myself. I reasoned that my fears of other people were groundless and foolish, and that I had been silly to imagine that the whole world was watching me. The roads and all the world were free to everyone, and I resolved to use them without fear.

"It was a fight of course, but I won. And I learned that people are not to be feared or avoided but to be loved and enjoyed. I'm not lonesome any more; you see that everyone calls me doc and now we all enjoy it. Why not live as you go along?"

"Way, doctor, I suppose that I—But there, I am still trying to believe that I'm different from everyone else. I'm not! I'm going to have friends as other people have!"

And with chin up and eyes shining the boy started off to seek the great adventure of friendship.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

Little self-denials, little honesties, little silent victories over favorite temptations—these are the silent threads of gold which, when woven together, gleam out so brightly in the pattern of life that God approves.

Good men are always preaching to the bad by the example of their lives, and in this way they often do more good than others who preach in the pulpit.

We must carefully distinguish between the absence of tact and the presence of principle.—John Davidson.

The wisest are the most annoyed at the loss of time.—Dante.

Silence is the element in which great things fashion themselves together, that at length, they may emerge, full-formed and majestic, into the daylight of life, which they are henceforth to rule.—Carlyle.

USE

AND SAVE FOOD, FLAVOR AND MONEY

Ice costs pennies, while food spoilage wastes dollars. It is false economy to take money from one part of the family budget to buy good, fresh foods unless provision has already been made for plenty of ice and a good ice box to keep those foods in the same fresh, palatable conditions all the way to the table.

Regardless of the season, ice is necessary to keep food fresh, pure and wholesome. It is the only refrigerant which preserves the flavor of [illegible] the food.

In the summertime, ice not only keeps food cool and fresh, but prevents it from spoiling. Just enough to retard the drying out of meat, cheese, butter, eggs, fruits, and vegetables. It thus preserves the savory healthful juices and delicate flavors of foods. The most precious thing about food is its flavor. Excessively dry cold dries flavor out—and once lost, it is gone forever.
