A LITTLE BIRD WRITES COPY

There are many stories about Horace Greeley's handwriting, which is said to have been the worst ever seen in a newspaper office. Perhaps the best of the yarn is the following:

"There was only one compositor in the Tribune office who could read Greeley's copy. One day while the compositor was out a bird had flown into the office, and perched upon a pane of glass, pecking at the paper. The compositor, picking up sheet, "this looks like the old man's writing." By saying, he fastened the sheet together and put them on the absent compositor's case."

Presently the compositor came back and with all eyes turned on him picked up the sheet and to the amazement of the room started setting up the supposed "copy."

Presently, however, he hesitated at a word and asked the man nearest him what it was.

"How should I know?" was the reply.

You know that you alone can read the old man's writing. Better ask him."

Reluctantly the baffled compositor took the sheet to Greeley's sanctum.

"Well," said the great man, "what is it?"

"It's this word, Mr. Greeley."

Greeley snatched the sheet from the man's hand, looked at the alleged word and threw himself back with a start of disgust.

"Why," he shouted, "any fool could see what it is! It's 'unconstitutional'!"

WHICH HONEY

A salesman, bringing his bride South on their honeymoon, visited a hotel where he boasted of the fine honey.

"Sumb," he asked the colored waiter, "where's my honey?"

"Ah, don't know, boss," replied Bamboe the lady cautiously. "She don't talk here no mo."

DEFINED

Teacher: "Parse the sentence, Bill married Mary."

Pupil: "Bill's a noun because he's the name of something; because it joins Bill to Mary, married is therefore a conjunction; and Mary's a verb because she governs the noun."

HOW ARE YOUR EYES?

Eyes don't go wrong all at once. Gradually little faults creep in, faults that may later cause serious harm to you.

Nature's warnings are often attributed to other causes or overlooked entirely.

You cannot be sure your eyes are perfect unless you have them thoroughly examined.
