

TWENTY YEARS AGO

From the Issue of The Free Press of Thursday, October 27, 1910

Next Monday, October 31, will be Thanksgiving Day.

The brickwork of Mr. Chas. W. Mason's addition to his residence was completed last week.

Mrs. James Quantie offers for sale their choice little farm of 25 acres, the whole of which is within the corporation limits.

Rev. M. M. Bennett, of Yellow Grass, Saskatchewan, preached missionary sermons at the missionary anniversary in the Methodist Church last Sunday.

Mrs. G. and A. McDonald, fifth line, Esquimaux, report a bumper crop of potatoes.

The election on Monday of the by-law to provide for the expenditure of one thousand eight hundred and fifty dollars in widening that portion of the north side of Mill Street, from Main to John Streets, and to authorize for that purpose the issue and sale of debentures of Acton, amounting to the same, created very little interest amongst the property owners.

THE OLD MAN OF THE BIG CLOCK TOWER

THE YOUNG MAN'S CHANGE

Chisel in hand stood the sculptor boy, Of which the marble he before him, And his face lit up with a smile of joy...

With many a sharp incision, In heaven's own light the sculpture shone, He had caught that angel vision.

Statues of life are we, as we stand, Our lives uncarved before us, Awaiting the time, when, at God's command...

We shape ourselves, the joy or fear Of which the coming life is made, And all our future's atmosphere...

With sunshine or with shade; The issue of our life to be, We weave with colors all our own, And, in the field of destiny...

Room at the top—but no elevator I suppose it will be generally granted that a man who has lived through the allotted span of life...

In all kindness, and in the hope that the recital of a few facts growing out of my experience and observation, may be of advantage to my young readers...

There is one single task before the young man as he prepares for his life's duties: To make himself the best possible measure of a man...

George Horace Lorimer, in his letters, so popular twenty years ago: "Letters of a Self-Made Merchant to His Son," which I suppose to be written by a port-packer...

able to lick stamps as the other boys at the desk. Yet, the man who hasn't licked stamps is not fit to write letters.

Naturally, that is the time when knowing whether the pie comes before the ice cream, and how to run an automobile, isn't going to be of any real use to you.

That much help from others will often lessen one's sense of responsibility. A young man must get command of his own powers, whether the influence that work in his behalf are great or small.

A descendant of the famous Patrick Henry was a vagrant around the police headquarters of an American city for a whole winter. His father bewailed his condition as follows: "My homo is dishonored. O, I was so unkind to Edward, when I thought I was being kind. If I had only had firmness enough to compel him to make his living, then he would have known the value of money."

It is in the power of every young man to get possession of himself and train himself. No duty is beyond us. If it seems it would not be duty, life's plan for each of us is a Divine plan.

The Master is the architect; the young man is the contractor and builder. The plan made for you, and would suit no one else that has ever lived or ever will live.

In carrying out that plan you show the only true originality. You may invent but not improve the Master's plan. Emerson says: "Nature arms each man with such faculties as enable him to do some feat impossible to others."

It will pay any young man to say candidly to himself: "There is no one else like me in all the universe. No one else who can do quite as well the thing I was speedily made to do, and I have some advantages over every other man."

Those advantages I want to make the most of. Begin right, right away. Begin at the first of life's-planned activities; for it will take time to complete the task, and it never can be completed at all unless it is begun with the early years.

Mourn not for the vanished ages, With the great heroes man, Who dwell in history's pages; And live in the poet's pen; For the grandest time is before us, And the world is yet to see, The noblest worth of this old earth, In the men that are to be.

This old man wishes you abundant success, young men. It rests with you. They used to say: "You can lead a horse to water, but you cannot make him drink." My observations lead me to the conclusion that "You can lead a boy to college, but you cannot make him think."

Do your work; do it well. Success will be yours.

No More Asthma. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy sounds the death knell of this trying trouble. It stops the awful choking and painful breathing. It guards against night attacks and gives renewed ability to sleep and rest.

The whole night long—much is claimed for this remedy, but nothing but what can be demonstrated by a trial. If you suffer from asthma try it and convince yourself of its great value.

Try Magnesia for Stomach Trouble

To Neutralize Acidity and Fermentation. Prevents Indigestion, Sour Gas, Stomach

People who suffer from indigestion usually have relief from acids and various digestive aids and get little more than slight temporary relief—sometimes not even that.

But before giving up in chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four tablets with a little water after your next meal and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bitter or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.
