THE PARENT BUSINESS

When it comes to raising children, I've a notion of my own. The parents of the youngster should agree If mother says, "You may not!" in her most decided tone.

The answer of the father, "No!" should Por no home can ever flourish or hold lasting happiness Where the faher's "No" is cancelled by a doting mother's "yes."

Start it early, and keep at it! Never venture to divide. Even though you think the verdict may be wrong: If you'd like to grant the pleasure which the mother has denied. Let her be the one to say: "Well run along!" And, oh, mother, if you think the dad triffle too severe With the verdict he has given, do not rush to interfere.

Oh, this job of being parents calls for courage and for tact. And the sense to be untempted by must be backed. And she must very often belster him. For what is right and proper how can children ever guess agree on "no" and "yes"?
