Spring street cleaning has been progress this week. Mr. R. Sinclair is building a garage on Willow Street for the new motor he expects to arrive one of these days.

H. Denny was awarded the -contract for shingling and other improvements of the Methodist Church The old Speight paint shop, on Agne Street, which has stood there for nearly sixty years, was torn down this week. The lots in Warren Park subdivision are being sold now and it is probable that there will be considerable building there during the summer. Mr. Frank E. Holmes , has undertaking parlors in the Block, and expects a fine new hearse and outfit in a few days. It is just a month since Acton Customs port was opened. Mr. McDonald has just made returns to the department of his first month's business which shows that $26,000 worth of goods passed customs in this first month.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FOR SUNDAY, MAY 8

ESAU SELLS HIS BIRTHRIGHT Temperance: Lesson Golden Text.—Every man that striveth in the games exerciseth self-control in all things.-1 Corintmans 9: 25.

Lesson Text.-Gen. 25: 27-34. Study also 1 Cor. 8: 1-13; 10:: 23-33; Heb. 12:

Time.-Uncertain; before 1760 B. C. Place.-Near Beersheba. Exposition.—I. The Partiality of Isaac and Rebekah, 27, 28. This lesson has as much to do with the sin of avarice as it has with the sin of gluttony and the folly of appetite, so we can apply it to the temperance question from that standpoint. Both

Jacob and Esau were the gift of God in answer to the definite prayer of Isaac Hertz you are not paying me for this lings, though of widely different types. ing. & I smiled at him Kindly. but They were twins, moreover, and Esau he payed me off at noon and sed he was the firstborn. He came into the world only a very short time before his out me. brother, but that brief space was long tween Esau and Jacob, however, began a Parrashoot he sed they all ways seameven before their birth (v. 22 of this ed like such slow Contrapshuns. Her love is so tender, so loving and chap.). Rebekah, their mother, had been greatly mystifled by this, and, wisely, had gone to God for a solution of the perplexing problem (v. 22). God had made it known to her that although Jacob was technically the younger, he was to attain supremacy over the elder brother. In His dealings with men, God has very little regard for primogeniture. In His sovereign grace. He quite often sees fit she is still on earth, wear a red rose to ordain that "the elder shall serve the younger." The fact that God had revealed His purpose to Rebekah that Jacob should have the supremacy over > purpose of the Lord-Jacob manifested his character and earned for himself the name of "supplanter" or "cheater," at the time of his birth. Both Isaac and Rebekah acted foolishly in being partial in their parental attitude towards their sons, Isaac preferring Esau and Rebekah favoring Jacob. In many respects, Isaac was a good man, but he allowed himself to be governed by his appetite, and showd favor for Esau because he could appease that appetite by bringing him venison of which he was extremely fond, the young man being proficient in hunting. It would appear as though Esau appetite for, certainly, his father had it. Just as Jacob appears to have come naturally by his deceitfulness, inheriting is from Rebekah, who assuredly was, herself, full of deceit. Taken, together this was certainly a most promising highidealed family! The follies and sins of parents reappear in their children, and because they do, we have given us a most significant illustration of how our sins our secret faults-FIND US OUT. Parents should be careful to live, therefore carefully and truthfully. Otherwise our children are apt to proclaim-to the world what we really are, and show to those who know how to weigh evidence properly, what we are in our secret nearts. Rebekah favored Jacob partly because he was a home-boy, and helped her about the tent, but also, doubtless, because of what God had revealed to her concerning him. Where Rebekah made her mistake was in taking the matter into her own hands. God can work out His plans and give place and power to His purposes without our "butting in" with our feeble and often ques- | we read that "Esau cried with a great tionable methods.

II. The Selling of a Birthright, 29, 34. As we read this incident we are forced to the conclusion that, for a grown man Esau acted childishly, foolishly, even reprehensively, and is deserving of no pity, in the circumstances. On the other hand, the fact that his brother played After 10 Years of Asthma Dr. J. D. the fool furnishes no excuses for Jacob's Kellogg's Asthma Remedy proved the scurvy conduct. There is no question only relief for one grateful user, and but that he was meanness incarnate, this is but one case among many. Little and one can have no other feeling but wonder that it has now become the one one of contempt for the petty way in recognized remedy on the market. It which he took advantage of his brother's has earned its fame by its never failing folly. Esau was, beyond doubt, hungry effectiveness. It is earning it to-day, as and faint, but he was not, at the point it has done for years. WHEN TO PLANT SUNFLOWERS which to plant sunflower seed have been made by the Dominion Experimental Rarms. The results of these studies are summarized as follows: (1) early seeding have given the highest average yield came naturally by his slavery to his over a period of ten years; (2) -cold weather immediately following seeding will retard germination and apparently results in lower yields, particularly if the land is heavy and cold; (3) the best results will be obtained over a period of years by seeding as early as possible, providing the ground is warm and indications point to a period of warm weather immediately following.

numan could have rabbed him of what was his own, inherently. But he did it himself — "he despised his birthright," and reaped' a lifelong penalty consequent upon perpetrating a grand larceny on himself. The majority of mankind are Esaus. The birthright of every child of Adam is eternal life through, and in the second Adam, Jesus Christ (I Cor. 15: 22; Romans 5: 18, R. V.) But they "despise" their birthright, and so condemn themselves. Esau repented him of his folly, and strove hard to regain that which he had lost (ch. 22:: 32-37), but it was too late and beyond his power, so and exceeding bitter cry" (ch. 27: 34) But his tears availed him nothing, and he found no place to change his mind (Heb. 12: 17). He had sold his birthright for a mess of pottage and "when he afterward desired to inherit the blessing he was rejected." Later, Esau complained bitterly that Jacob had supplanted him twice—that he had taken way his birthright, and had taken away h's blessing (ch. 27: 36). But, in point of fact, the blame rested upon himself Had he been his own man; had he shown anything of the quality of endurance the worst that could have happened him, would have been a scurrilous attempt nade upon his rightful possessions by his own brother. Bad enough, in al conscience—but only for Jacob. It could never have harmed Esau. But because he was a creature of appetite; because ne thought more of instant gratification than lifelong benefit, he lost his birthright, and his blessings went along with

You are a Very Disobedient

Do YOU protest, and say that you're not a very disobedient person? Be patient, for a moment, and we shall see.

Person

Look at the advertisements which you see in this newspaper, and in other newspapers. Most of them bid you do something---something which, if done, would be advantageous to you, as well as being profitable to the advertiser. But do you always obey these advertisers? You do not! And what is your excuse?

Take your teeth, by way of example? Are you doing what you can to prevent or delay their decay and loss. If you are like most persons, you are not. Yet you are being urged by advertisements to use regularly a product which, if used regularly, would keep your mouth and teeth in a really good health condition; and would enable you to keep your teeth sound, and keep away toothache.

It isn't the price of the product which keeps you from using it-it's just plain inertia and procrastination.

Then there's an electric or other kind of of washer—this by way of example—able to be purchased on the instalment plan. The advertisements bid you buy it, and give you good reasons why you should use this laborsaving, life-prolonging mechanism.

Has every man and every woman known to you obeyed the commands of the advertisements of this washer? They have not. And their resistance cannot be put down to disbelief. The explanation is: Most of us are shameless procrastinators-putting off, putting off, putting off all

VV HEN you read advertisements, see in them the untiring effort of manufacturers and institutions to cause you to do right things.

Take the life insurance companies, by way of example: Their advertisements urge all of us to insure our lives. Yet how stubborn most of us are! We resist the biddings of the advertisements and the canvasses of the salesmen of life insurance. We defer doing the obviously right thing, often for years!

O WHEN you see and read advertisements and when you feel inclined to say, "What a shocking lot of money is spent by advertisers!", reflect on this idea: It is the stubborn disobedience of men and women that is to be condemned.

We should be grateful to those advertisers who pursue us all our life, bidding us do things, which if done, would be advantageous to us.
