ATLANTIC SALMON FOR CALIFORNIA

A new migration from Eastern Canada to California was recently inaugurated by the Canadian Government—Atlantic salmon eggs. A shipment of 28,000 was made under an exchange arrangement with the State of California from the Canadian Government Department of Fisheries' hatcheries at South Esk in the province of New Brunswick to the Big Creek hatchery, California. The shipment was made in one of the special cases used for shipment of this kind—a case insulated with dry moss and having a filled ice box at the top to serve the double purpose of preventing the temperature from mounting unduly and helping to maintain sufficient moisture in the double tray holding the eggs. At Montreal and Edmonton, and again at Vancouver, the eggs were watered, and on their arrival at Big Creek the California fish culture officers reported them as being in excellent condition.

In exchange for these Atlantic salmon eggs the State of California is supplying the Canadian Government with a corresponding number of steelhead eggs which will help to add further to the stocks of steelhead salmon in British Columbia waters.

Just what success will follow this transfer or migration will be closely observed by fish culture experts in Canada and the United States for the Atlantic salmon is a fish of an entirely different family to the variety common to the Pacific ocean.

PRE-FRESHMENTS OF THE FOOD THAT COMES BEFORE

By Barbara B. Brooks

The hostess who participates in her own party worrying about refreshments which climax her hospitality will appreciate these suggestions for food that comes before.

"There is no reason why we should play an afternoon or an evening of bridge and then eat. Why not eat and then play bridge? It is much easier on the hostess and digestions in general. We were not made to digest food in the middle of the night or in the middle of the afternoon. A luncheon or a seven-thirty supper followed by cards is much more sensible. There are many people who are trying this procedure of entertaining and like it better than the old way."

One hostess served an attractive supper (to be followed by bridge) of chicken salad garnished with lettuce cups and watercress, asparagus tips on toast, buttered bran refrigerator rolls, red raspberry shortcake and coffee. The chicken salad was well seasoned and cold, having been kept in the refrigerator until the last minute. The asparagus tips were green and tender and served on toast with a rich butter sauce. The rolls had been made in the refrigerator the day before and an hour before serving time were placed in pans and allowed to rise. They emerged from the oven brown and hot just at the right time.

As covers for these suppers are usually laid on individual card tables, the food must be planned so that it can be served with the minimum of dishes. A plate, cup and saucer, a dessert plate and a beverage glass are about all of the dishes that one card table can accommodate for four people.

There are many different combinations of food which would serve well for such a supper. For instance—

Sliced Cold Tongue
Baked Tomatoes Hollandaise
Cucumber and Celery Salad
Hot Bran Muffins
Butter

Cheese Pie
Coffee

Lobster a la Newburg
Potato Chips
Stuffed Olives
Spiced Crabapples
Hot Rolls
Butter

Burnt-Sugar Cake
Coffee

Ham Croquettes
Pepper Sauce
Red Cabbage Slaw
Hot Biscuits
Butter

Gingerbread with Whipped Cream

If we were to look in an ultra-modern dictionary, we would probably find the word "bridge luncheon" are of feminine gender. At least they should be, for where is there a man who ever himself has said, "I wish I could go to that bridge luncheon." Afternoon bridge does not seem to be a part of masculine routine. Therefore, in planning food for these occasions we can have just as many frills and fancies as we want and can skillfully manipulate.

Honeydew Cocktail

CHEESE PIE
1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
5 egg yolks (beaten well)
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon lemon rind
1 pound cottage cheese
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 cup cream
5 egg whites

Cream the butter and add the sugar. When thoroughly mixed, add the egg yolks, lemon juice and rind. Beat thoroughly. Put the cottage cheese through a colander or ricer several times until very fine. Add the cornstarch and cream. Combine with the first mixture. Fold in beaten egg whites. Press cornflake pastry in the bottom of a spring form mould. Pour in the cake-mixture. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until firm (about one hour).

Before baking, top may be sprinkled with finely grated almonds, sugar and cinnamon.

Lemon juice and lemon rind may be omitted and one teaspoon of vanilla extract used.

Yield: 1, 8-inch cake.

CORN FLAKE PASTRY
1 cup corn flake crumbs
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons sugar

Put the corn flakes (4 cups) through a food grinder using the fine cutter, then sift the crumbs. Measure crumbs after sifting.

Cream the butter with the sugar and add the crumbs, kneading thoroughly. Press into the bottom of spring form mold or a pie pan with slanting sides.

BEEF SALES SHOW INCREASE

An increase of 40 per cent. or 2,014,969 pounds in the volume of officially branded beef sold throughout Canada during the first four months of 1932 is shown in a report just issued by the Markets Intelligence Service of the Dominion Live Stock Branch. This is to say the least gratifying evidence of the soundness of the policy applied by the Federal Department of Agriculture to its Beef Grading Service. With really good quality in beef, positively marked for easy identification by the purchaser, beef is regaining in steady increasing measure its old place as a popular meat with Canadian housewives. It is interesting to note that officially branded beef is featured in the better stores in all our larger Canadian cities. In Montreal, for instance, there are at the present time over 125 retail stores featuring branded beef, and it is estimated that 70 per cent. of all the beef branded in Canada finds an outlet in the Montreal market.

JUST SO

The man who had just returned from France was relating a thrilling experience at the dinner table.

"Yes," said he, "an Apache sprang at me in one of the streets of Paris, snatched my pocket-case of notes, and bolted. The gendarmes chased him, an when cornered, he leaped into the river—" "Ah!" said a listener. "Gully but in Seine!"

HUMAN FLY HAPPY TO HAVE FEET ON TERRA FIRMA AGAIN

Canadian National Steamships Sails Performs Difficult Feat of Climbing up One of the Highest Flagpoles in the British Empire

Standing in front of the Law Courts in Vancouver is one of the highest flagpoles in the British Empire. It flies its flag 210 feet in the air. A short time ago it became necessary to supply a new rope but officials were faced with the problem of getting the rope through the pulley at the top of the pole. After scouting around for some time a young sailor from the new Canadian National Steamship "Prince Robert," which operates on the Alaskan run from Vancouver in the summer, volunteered and was awarded the task.

He had not made much progress before he began to attract attention and by the time he was half way up the pole thousands were crowded around the Law Courts building watching the human fly gradually work his way towards the top. His work was made more difficult because of a stiff wind blowing and when he reached the top he was forced to tie himself around the pole for safety.

His return to the ground was just as dangerous as the trip up because of the wind but the plucky young sailorman was almost a thunderous cheer by the thousands of watching spectators. He said that while he was at work at the top there was a tremendous sway and he was mighty happy when he had his feet on terra firma again.
