Madame Housewife!

HAVE YOU READ THE RECIPES IN THIS PAPER?

The news of interest to women in THE FREE PRESS each week is by no means confined to any one page. As a matter of fact, these items of interest to women are scattered throughout the whole paper.

Each week, however, THE FREE PRESS has two regular features, which every woman should read. One is the Recipes, and the other "Chronicles of Ginger Farm," written for THE FREE PRESS by Mrs. Gwendoline P. Clarke, a farmer's wife, who knows all the practical things about farming and writes most interestingly each week, as only one who understands can.

In addition, women's activities, particularly in this district and country, but also those of note anywhere in the Dominion or the world, are told about. Especially do we endeavor to cover thoroughly the news events of our own particular district. The newsy, gossipy, friendly little items, about what our friends, your friends and their friends are doing—in the societies, in the homes, in the churches, in public positions of trust, in sport, industrially, academically and socially.

And THE FREE PRESS is a good paper to have in your home. It is a "home" paper. No obscenities are allowed under the guise of news. Its columns are rigidly edited to that end. It is a safe paper as well as an informative paper for your children to read at home.

Madame Housewife, you should read THE FREE PRESS thoroughly—not half-heartedly—every week. It will repay many times its cost of 4 cents and the time spent. Do you? And if not—will you?
