CHOOSE AND BE CHEERFUL

If you are not satisfied with affairs as they are, two sensible courses are open to you. Either try to change the state of affairs or else learn contentment. Some people live very happy on a small salary. Try that if you like. Others on a small salary; work so hard to improve themselves that they are able to demand a larger salary. If you want to try that,

Some points are to be said in favor of either of the two courses named. If you resolve to pay the price demanded of one who sets out to make money. however, do not grumble because you have to work so hard. If, on the other hand, you are not willing to pay that price; do not grumble over your small salary. Make your choice and be cheer- /

In true smart Alec style the Oakville Record tells of the trip of its city hockey representatives to the backwood (Acton) to show off this imported hockey team. We admit all the hocker wonders but would like to ask if wain this year the outfit has the same firm cial backing as last year and we wonder if the boys will have to be called from their homes in other centres to partake of the feast which will undoubtedly be provided when the Oakville representatives nearly win the championship. It must have been a jolt to these big guys to come to a backwoods town and find modern arena, in comparison with the horse-stable that the All-Stars call their home ice. There are other things in hockey besides winning the O. H. A.

Speaking of hockey, the writer of the sports gossip column in the Guelph Mercury says: "At that, we hear rumors to the effect that a couple of the stars of the Oakville Intermediate Hockey Club would not be entirely averse to locating in this city. If such men as Sutcliffe. towering blonde defence star: "Sonny" Townsley, brilliant centre; and Pearcy Allen, high scoring wing man, could be brought in here, their presence would go a long way toward speeding up hockey in this city." And may we ask why the boys would prefer Quelph instead of Oakville or Toronto, where they have done so well? But then, Raybould was back playing in Walkerton this year, and Peer tried other fields.
