LESSONS ON THE LAWN

Methods of Renovating Bald Patches

The soothing vista of fresh green lawns in the shade of leafy avenues is the one great asset of beauty that distinguishes Canadian residential districts from the drab suburban disinterest of towns in less enterprising countries. By this same token, this Spring is to be a busy one for the Canadian home beautifier. During the past winter, with its comparative light covering of snow, ice has played havoc with the lawns. Bare patches are gaping here and there. In this connection, it is interesting to note the restoration methods of a leading Canadian horticulturist, famous also for the lawns around his home. First of all, he rakes the bare spots clean, and, if necessary, adds a modicum of good, gently into the mould, rolls it, and takes greatest care to keep the bald places moist, as indeed he does to the whole of the lawn. The slight raking and the rolling brings the soil and the seed into intimate contact, thereby ensuring rapid germination. By the time the grass is three or four inches high, it will have sufficient root-hold to withstand the operation of a lawn-mower in common with the rest of the lawn. For the first cutting of the new grass on the green-white spots, the machine is set rather high. The blades should be very sharp and well set to avoid pulling out the young grass. As a rule, however, the lawns of this horticulturist stand the winter well, for the simple reason that in the late fall, October or November, he takes the precaution to spread fertilizer—bone meal or commercial sheep manure—and roll the lawn thoroughly. If necessary, a sprinkling of seed may be opportune, followed by another intensive rolling.

CHINA WANTS LIVE STOCK

The Chinese notwithstanding the troubled times in the North, for some time past have shown great interest in Canadian agriculture, live stock and manufactures. This is due mostly to personal contact with Canadian traders. Writing to the Dominion Department of Agriculture, the fieldman for British Columbia, of the Canada and China Breders' association, who has just returned from a visit to China, remarks: "Whilst talking to some of our prospective Chinese buyers, they asked if I could send them some pamphlets that would be helpful to them in reference to the care, management, and feeding of dairy cows, swine, poultry, etc. There is undoubtedly a great and growing demand for live stock in China and anything we can do for them may help or bring the trade to Canada, and we need it."

LEARN TO GIVE ATTENTION

Many young people who are willing enough, do not give satisfaction to employers because they seem unable to find out exactly what is wanted of them. They rush ahead, blunder, and to their surprise and regret, find their work unsatisfactory. At a time when workers are at a premium they may hold their jobs. In hard times they lose them. Lack of attention frequently explains the failure to understand. Young people early start half listening, half attending. It begins in school. In every high school there are some pupils who never know just what lesson is assigned or what announcements have been made. If each of a dozen young people were asked to write a report of a lecture, to which all had listened, the discrepancies in the twelve accounts would show that few of the dozen had really listened. One of the fundamental factors in success is to learn to pay attention so you will know what is wanted of you.

WATERING ROSE BUSHES

Roses require an abundance of moisture, and by keeping the surface soil loose from spring until late summer much moisture which would otherwise pass off into the air will be held in the soil. After each rain or watering during the summer season, the rose bed should be hoed or raked. It is better to water roses thoroughly occasionally than to give them a light watering frequently, says the Dominion Department of Agriculture. It is not too often, however, to syringe or spray the foliage with water every day, as this is a useful preventative of insects. This syringing is for the purpose of cleansing the foliage, not for adding moisture to the soil. Spraying is best done late in the afternoon or in the early morning because, if the foliage is wet in the middle of a dry, hot day, it is liable to scald. Rose beds should be kept rich and well supplied with humus by the annual application of well-rotted barnyard manure in liberal quantities in the autumn or early in the spring.

FOUR DAY LIMIT

A man took a clock to a pawnbroker in an effort to "raise the wind." "Is it an eight-day clock?" asked the pawnbroker. "I don't know," replied the man. "I've never had it out more than four days at a time!"

Big Political Rally Held Here Tuesday

closed by urging Hulton to return Mr. Blacklock as their representative. Mr. A. Slaght, K. C., in opening his address, paid tribute to the courage and fearlessness of Mr. Hepburn as a leader and the type of man who was needed at the present time. He pointed to the silence that now characterizes the Conservative ranks and the lack of interest in affairs. Hydro was the feature which the audience wanted to hear Mr. Slaght say that subject was his chief plank. He pointed out how the present administration had violated the Beck principles of public ownership. He claimed that the Henry government was no longer representative of the Conservative party and that the administration were drunk with power. He detailed the Dominion Power Transmission purchase by Hydro, the John Aldred, Jr., payments and criticized Premier Henry, for not having looked after the public interest. The Beauharnois power deal; the Sweezy evidence and again another payment to John Aldred, Jr. of $125,000 were touched upon by the speaker. Then the Abitibi story, from its inception down through its course to bankruptcy and the part Premier Henry had played in holding bonds and withholding information were rehearsed by the speaker. In concluding his address the speaker commended Mr. Hepburn on the course he was pursuing and likened it to that of President Roosevelt, and quoted from the inaugural address of the President of the United States. He said the Liberal party did not claim to be able to cure all the ills of the present system but they aimed to make all a little happier and conditions of life a little more pleasant.

Mr. A. Roebuck, K. C., was the final speaker. The villa he put into his address, and the parallel of Rome, previous to the downfall, and Ontario, seemed to please the audience. His citation of the case of the Teddy Oke Co. going into bankruptcy, owing $20,000 in unpaid taxes and his query of how long would the government allow an individual to run up a similar tax bill, was a point stressed. He claimed that the present administration had betrayed the Province of Ontario in their management of Hydro affairs. The profits in the Abitibi deal had gone to private pockets at a loss to the Province. Premier Henry was presented in dual personality of investing his private funds and that of his companies on the one hand, and guaranteeing the investment by the government on the other hand. He averred that the next election would not be an ordinary political contest, but a fight between the manied interests and the common people.

Music was supplied prior to the meeting by a local orchestra. At the Gregory Theatre the meeting was presided over by Mr. W. J. L. Hampshire, President of the County Liberal-Progressive organization. Mr. Roebuck was the first speaker here and the other speakers followed in the same order, in the order they had finished their addresses at the Town Hall. This meeting finished shortly after the gathering at the Town Hall.

Following the meetings the visitors and a group of local men to the number of about twenty-five were entertained at an informal luncheon at the Station Hotel. A delightful repast was provided by the proprietor, Mr. S. M. Lasby, and the serving ably presided over by his daughter, Mrs. S. E. Rushmore. The affair made a pleasing culmination to this very successful political rally and provided an opportunity for the men from the County to meet these leaders. Mr. Parker and Mr. Harry Johnston, of the Provincial office, were also present in Acton at the meetings and luncheon.

THE GREATEST VICTORY

Some one has called the conquest of worry the greatest victory of life. Most of you know that it is not an easy victory. You realize that it is useless to worry about that which cannot be helped, and yet you keep right on doing it. Worry has a way of taking hold of an unfortunate situation and making it seem a thousand times worse. It paints the universe black. Nothing is so sure to paralyze initiative as worry. Nothing is more successful in cheating you out of success and happiness. If you can conquer worry in your life, you can conquer anything. If you win that one victory, you win many.

THE OLD 20th REGIMENT OF MILITIA

The newly organized Regiment of the Halton Rifles once more known by their old designation of the Lorne Rifles (Scottish) are anxious to obtain as many photographs, trophies, badges or newspaper cuttings as possible pertaining to this fine old Regiment. Could we, through the columns of your paper, appeal to anyone who has anything of historical interest that would help us to compile a record of the services of this Regiment. We want anything that is now of interest to the Regiment, or will be in future, either as: The Old 20th Regiment of Militia; Lorne Rifles; 37th C. E. F. Overseas Battalion; 76th C. E. F. Overseas Battalion; 164th C. E. F. Overseas Battalion; The Halton Rifles. That unsettled period, during and immediately after the war, many of the irreplaceable trophies and photographs were scattered and they have since been lost sight of. If any of your readers have anything that will help us to compile the Regimental History and help us to maintain the traditions of this fine Regiment, would they be kind enough to communicate with the undersigned. LOUIS KEENE, Major, In Charge of Regimental History, Oakville, Ont.

A GOOD-SIZED MEAL

A nice old man entered the village inn. He chatted with the inn-keeper for a few moments and then said: "By the way, a poor fellow came to me yesterday morning and said he was starving. I sent him up to you and told him to have a good meal at my expense. Did he come?" "Yes, that right," said the inn-keeper. "How much do I owe you then?" "asked the benevolent one. "Four-and-six in all, sir." "Four-and-six! He must have had a tidy-sized meal for that. What did he have?" "Five pints of beer and a packet of cigarettes."

DRINKS AND BATHS FOR PIGEONS

A constant supply of pure drinking water is always of primary importance in keeping pigeons healthy. The fact that impure or dirty water is one of the most prolific causes of the spread of disease among pigeons must never be lost sight of, states the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The water should be changed every day and syphonic drinking vessels used. A few iron filings or rusty nails may be placed in the drinking water with advantage. Baths are absolutely necessary, and where pigeons have no access to a running stream, can be provided by means of large basins nearly filled with water and placed inside larger basins, to prevent overturning or undue splashing on the floor.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Oklahoma. Gaullit MacGown, Managing Editor of the Trinidad Guardian, Fort-of-Spain, B. W. I., asks: "How often you hear people say, 'I wish I lived in a big town. Nothing ever happens here.' They forget that it is easier to turn up something in the small town than in the big one. The only real difference between a small town and a big one is that the accidents of those in the small town were probably content with things as they were, and those in the big one definitely not. That's how it got to be a big town. "There is always something worth while in the small town if you care to knock at the doors. When you do, the small town becomes a big one, too. The small town has this advantage; people do not resent callers. In the big town they are too busy to welcome them. "Fort-of-Spain is a small seaport; 60,000 inhabitants. People come and go in it. If you are not alive you may miss their message. "The other day a doctor came in and put up a brass plate. No one worried. By chance, one night, there was a street accident. An injured woman was carried into his surgery. Afterwards I talked with the doctor. He told me that he had been working for a short while. He had been working for 15 years on research work in a famous hospital. He wanted now to "discover" just how the tropics affected the blood stream. When he had the data he wanted he was going to Europe to cure cancer! "Our small town had been selected for the last touch to a tremendous experiment, which we might never have known had it not been for a street accident—just one of the things that may happen any day in every small town. "Alas! There's no guarantee of a street accident to lead you to it. The equality of man can only be accomplished by the sovereignty of God. —Lord Beaconsfield.
