INJURY TO PEARS

Corrugated Paper Lining Often Causes Spotting

Fears of all varieties have one or more layers of stone cells just under the skin, and because of the mechanical resistance offered by these cells the pears are very susceptible to damage by rubbing or bruising. However, the skin of pears usually turns dark brown or black after injury; hence, after the treatment ordinarily given to pears during the picking and packing processes, they are likely to show some discoloration when they reach the market.

For the past several years, however, a brown spotting has been observed on certain varieties of pears, both in carload shipments just arrived on the market and in cold storage lots, which is different in some respects from that caused by rubbing or bruising. It is found on fruits that have been in contact with the corrugated paper used for lining the boxes, or with the excelsior-filled pads used in pear boxes to prevent bruising of the fruit. The spotting has not been seen on pears or on the portions of pears that have not been in contact with the corrugated paper or the pads.

FIGHTING DISEASE IN DOGS AND FOXES

Disease on fox and mink ranches have caused severe losses in recent years. Researches by the Dominion Department of Agriculture at Hull, P. Q., have established the fact that the principal disease among the animals is caused by a virus which has some of the characteristics of canine distemper virus. Arctic sled dogs are affected with an apparently similar disease, which is also included in the Institute's investigations. Virus strains obtained from fox and mink ranches are under study together with canine distemper viruses. For this purpose a large number of compound-bred animals, particularly foxes, dogs and fish, or ferrets, are required and these are raised at the Institute. Extensive experiment and trials are in progress with the object of developing vaccine and serums for protective treatment and immunization.

LIME INFLUENCE ON SOIL TEXTURE

The influence of lime and its compounds upon the tilth or texture of the soil is most marked in the case of clays which it renders less sticky and cohesive when wet, and more friable and mellow when dry. On light soils—sandy and gravelly loams—lime and carbonate of lime exert a beneficial influence, their action being to cement slightly the soil particles, rendering the soils somewhat firmer and more compact in texture. Soil, thus, less liable to dry out in seasons of drought.—Dominion Department of Agriculture.

CANADA'S CHIEF SINGLE INDUSTRY

Agriculture, including stock raising and horticulture, is the chief single industry of the Canadian people, employing (at last census in 1931) 28.7 per cent of the total gainfully occupied population and 33.9 per cent, or over one-third of the gainfully occupied males. In many Canadian manufacturing and its products in raw or manufactured form constitute a very large percentage of Canadian exports.

Entered Into Rest

ELIZABETH WESLEY LANE

An old and respected resident of Acton passed away on Sunday in the person of Mr. Eliza W. Lane, at his home on Agnes Street, Acton. Mr. Lane was in his seventy-third year. For over thirty-five years he has been an invalid, but was able to be about and was always cheerful. At times he suffered intense pain, but through it all he maintained his same forbearing and cheerful disposition. Eliza Lane was a son of the late Thomas Lane and Kathalene Kennedy and was born in Esqueping Township, on the homestead on the fourth line, forty-seven years ago in December he was joined in holy wedlock to Clara Griffin. For several years they conducted the farm until Mr. Lane's health failed and they moved to Acton. Besides his widow, who has tenderly cared for him through all these years of illness, he leaves one daughter, Mrs. Chas. Allan. To those who have been bereaved the sympathy of all who have known them in this community goes out. Eliza Lane was the last surviving member of the family of Thomas Lane. The deceased was a member of the Latter Day Church and the funeral on Tuesday afternoon was conducted by Mr. King Cooper, of Guelph. Interment was made in Fairview Cemetery, Acton. The pallbearers were: Messrs. H. McCutcheon, P. McIsaac, H. Fisher, A. Doble, Wm. Plant and J. Kennedy, of Hamilton. Friends from the community and district attended the funeral in large numbers. Among the floral tributes were tokens from the Latter Day Saints' Church, of Guelph; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Sprow; Mr. and Mrs. Smith Griffin; Mrs. Wm. and Mrs. Jos. Third and George; Mr. Peter Jenkins, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allan and family; Mr. Nelson Lane.

SEE THE ROCKIES ON HORSEBACK

One of the most enjoyable ways of viewing the scenic wonders of the Canadian Rockies is by horseback over the numerous trails which lead to many of the most spectacular and best known beauty spots in the National Parks of Canada. Up to the present time more than 2,000 miles of standard trails have been constructed by the Canadian Government National Parks Service, which provide safe and ready access to places which can not be reached by motor car. Banff, John, Jasper and Waterton Lakes National Parks in particular offer unique opportunities for trail riding. The towns of Banff, Lake Louise, Jasper, Field, and Waterton Park constitute excellent outfitting centres, where horses, guides and other equipment may be procured at reasonable rates. From these points radiate scores of picturesque routes, over which trips varying from a few hours to several days duration may be taken.

The popularity of trail riding has considerably increased in recent years largely due to the work of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, an organization whose annual outings afford an opportunity for riding under competent supervision. Those who have ridden fifty miles or upwards in the Canadian Rockies are eligible for membership in this organization, and the annual ride qualifies beginners for membership.

The 1933 outing promises to be one of the best in the history of the club. It will begin and end at Lake Louise, in Banff National Park. The route follows in part the new Lake Louise-Jasper highway now under construction. Four days in all will be required for this trip, which commenced on Friday, July 28, and ended on Monday, August 1. Several other interesting routes may be followed from Banff, including that to Mount Assiniboine, the Matterhorn of the Canadian Rockies, which occupies two days and provides a delightful trip of thirty miles. From Lake Louise the well known scenic districts of the Skoki valley, Ptarmigan valley, Moraine lake, Paradise valley, the Hector and Bow lakes and readily accessible to riders.

A SMART GUY

A young gentleman from the city was passing down a country road when he came across an old darkie burning off his garden. Determined to have some fun at his expense, he cried out: "Hey, Sambo, look out, that place of yours will soon be as black as you are." And he laughed heartily at his joke. Then the old darkie replied: "Maybe, sah. But jes' wait till the rain comes and it will all be jes' 'bout as green as you are."

Various Interesting Items of News

Reception for Bride and Groom

Last Thursday evening, October 5, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cooper entertained a very happy family gathering at their home, it being a reception in honor of Mrs. Cooper's brother, Mr. James Moore and his bride, who were married that day. The gathering comprised between thirty-five and forty of the immediate friends of the family. At the hour of seven o'clock the company sat down to well laden tables of good things. The bride and groom were the recipients of many valuable and useful gifts. The evening was very pleasantly spent in music and games.

Cooking Schools

The Ontario Department of Agriculture realizing that there is no problem of greater importance to the Homemakers than the choice of proper foods and their preparation, and with a view to instructing the rural homemakers in Nutrition, a series of four schools will be held at: Brampton, October 19 and 20, at 2.00 p. m. and 8.00 p. m.; Milton, October 23 and 24, at 2.00 p. m. and 8.00 p. m.; Orangeville, October 26 and 27, at 2.00 p. m. and 8.00 p. m.; Newmarket, October 30 and 31, at 2.00 p. m. and 8.00 p. m. It has been proven that the needs of the family can be met through the use of Canadian grown products, and this will be clearly set forth in the demonstrations and lectures. It is hoped that localities surrounding the centres named will be well represented by women who will take back to their neighbors the information gleaned. At each session there will be carried out a very carefully prepared programme, and copies of recipes of real worth distributed. The Department of Agriculture has the co-operation of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission and manufacturers of electrical equipment in providing the necessary power and equipment. Two most capable experienced domestic science graduates will be in charge and will be prepared to answer questions on nutrition, electric equipment and the uses of electrical power. This school will be held on the afternoon of the first day at 2.00 p. m. and afternoon and evening of the second day at 2.00 p. m. and 8.00 p. m.

PRICE TAGS

Not only the shopkeepers put price tags on the articles they have for sale, but we put them on ourselves without realizing it. When it was suggested to a bright high school girl that she might aspire to the presidency of the class, she laughed scornfully. "Why I wouldn't get a vote," she scoffed. "Do you see the coat I am wearing? It's my best and this is its third winter. Besides, I've had only one new dress this season." She was an unusually attractive girl in appearance. She had an excellent mind and was marked high in her school work. Because she could not dress as well as some other girls, however, she belittled her own importance. The price tag she had attached to herself labelled her a cheap article. The discriminating buyer looks beyond the price tags. If an article is marked cheap, the average purchaser assumes that it is cheap. Most of our acquaintances take us at our own valuation. If we undervalue ourselves, few will question our figures. While we should avoid conceit, self-depreciation is an even more serious mistake from a practical standpoint. All of you put price tags on yourselves. If what you write there is less than it should be, few will take the pains to alter your figures.

SOMEBODY PAID

It is startling to know that in the great migration to the north-west along the Oregon trail, covering fifteen or sixteen years, seventeen persons perished to every mile. We can make the trip to Portland now with every comfort, but we owe that possibility to those pioneers who went in the covered wagon, many of whom died by the way, almost one grave to every three hundred feet.

Unnumbered luxuries that we take as a matter of course to-day, at one time cost struggle, suffering and life itself. Civil liberty and religious liberty were dearly bought. Men died that you might have the right to read the Bible in your own home.

It is natural for many people to underestimate the value of that which they obtain for nothing. Never forget, however, that many of the comforts that come to you without price were paid for in blood and sweat, in toll and sacrifice. They were bought at a tremendous cost that you might have them without money, and without price.
