While awaiting at a suburban station for a train to London a traveller was surprised to see the station master lining up all the porters - long the edge of the platform.

Presently a non-stop main-line train chugged through the station. As the carriages came abreast of the line of porters, the traveller caught a glimpse of a well-dressed man leaning out of a carriage window with a note book and pencil in his hands.

After the train had gone through the traveller turned to one of the porters.

"Was that one of the company's directors in that train?" he asked.

"Why, no, sir," the porter replied. "The man leaning out of the carriage was the company's tailor; he was measuring us for our new uniforms."

Letters to the Editor

The Free Press welcomes letters to this column on matters of general interest to its readers...

Dear Sir: - Three items in last week's issue recalled more old time memories.

Rev. David Rogers' letter recalled not only his frequent contributions to the paper, but also a pleasant interview when he was on a visit to the home of Principal W. H. Stewart when I was in charge of the school.

In showing Mr. Rogers, who had been a former pastor of his, around the school - I think after the expiration of the additional storey in the rear - they came upon me in my midwinter work and gave me a cordial invitation to dinner.

The hour thus spent was utilized with many humorous reminiscences of persons and places mutually known.

I am sorry to learn of the possible cessation of his journalistic contributions, for I had not looked on them as merely "annuals."

His account of the snowy trip in January, 1875, to his first circuit recalls the severity of that long winter. We had, that year, on the Waterdown circuit, Rev. D. Chalmers and J. T. Smith, whom he will remember both have passed away.

That year, at July, the Carleton end was set off with Rev. John Turner, newly ordained, from Glanford, who remained the standard three years. He passed away on one of the Huron County charges a few years thereafter, after a severe winter drive.

The obituary notice of Mrs. J. C. Nelson brings vividly to mind not only her own personality, but the family tree of which she was one of the branches.

The name of "Brown" has been largely woven into the wool of Acton's development, and my first knowledge of men of the community soon included the three brothers, James (Mrs. Nelson's father), Wm. P., and Alex. H. But the fathers, like the prophets, do not live forever, and we, of the younger grades, are being swiftly carried along.

It is pleasing to note that Mrs. Nelson's family, were able to assemble from various points, for the last sad rites.

The bereavement of Harry Gibbons, by the death of his wife, at an age past the four-score, recalls the vigorous leader of the Church choir, who was also well known in the community.

I was not personally acquainted with the deceased lady, but the mention of the family name recalls the old family home on the third line. If, as I suppose it will, these lines meet Harry's eye, I extend to him my sympathy in his loss.

And so, Mr. Editor, the world goes marching on.

Cordially yours, J. S. COLEMAN, Montreal, January 8, 1933.

Fifth Largest Exporter - In a review of the international and economic condition of Canada at the close of 1933, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, observes that the Dominion still stood fifth among the nations of the world in the value of her exports, in spite of the fact that countries whose exports were largely primary products were disproportionately affected by the fall in prices which was largest in the case of such commodities.

Only the four great industrial countries, the United States, the United Kingdom, France and Germany, with populations from four to twelve times as large, were ahead of Canada in value of exports, while such important trading countries as Japan and Italy fell behind Canada.

The improvement in the international situation is reflected in the improvement of Canadian external trade, Mr. Stevens points out. In the first eight months of the current fiscal year - April 1 to November 30, 1933 - exports of Canadian products totalled $386,007,000, as compared with $336,646,000 in the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year, an increase of $49,361,000 or 14.7 per cent.

The increase has been largest in the recent months. The exports of Canadian produce in November last, valued at $60,384,590, were larger than in any month since December, 1930, when prices were considerably higher, and increased $14,440,000 over the corresponding month of 1932.

Presently a non-stop main-line train chugged through the station. As the carriages came abreast of the line of porters, the traveller caught a glimpse of a well-dressed man leaning out of a carriage window with a note book and pencil in his hands.

After the train had gone through the traveller turned to one of the porters.

"Was that one of the company's directors in that train?" he asked.

"Why, no, sir," the porter replied. "The man leaning out of the carriage was the company's tailor; he was measuring us for our new uniforms."

TRIBUTE TO PIONEER FARMERS - Scientific Agriculture (La Revue Agronomique Canadienne) for December contains a tribute to the early farmers of Canada in the address of Sir E. John Russell, director of Rothamsted Experimental Station, Harpenden, England, to the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists at Ottawa. "Your farmers, like ours," said Sir John, "and you with them just like us, are now passing through times of great stress and great anxiety. But you can find much ground for hope if you look back and think what the farmers of bygone days had to go through when they first came here, and out of the wild forests made the smiling countryside of eastern Canada, thickly set with comfortable farm homes and attractive little towns.

"Those old French settlers who gave so much to Canada and the early British settlers who followed them went through vastly more suffering than anyone now is called upon to face. We do but risk money; they risked their lives. With all our financial anxiety we still possess all that has been handed down to us and all that we have ourselves made: good roads, pleasant homes, towns, healthy surroundings, waters, electricity, and a thousand amenities of which they never dreamed.

"And it is much the same for the prairie farmers: contrast their lot now with that of the early settlers. Fortunately for us the records of the Red River settlement were kept, so we know something of their sufferings: how in 1813 a group of Highlanders sent out by Lord Selkirk broke the ground with a hoe, and struggled with English wheats year after year, always falling yet always striving and hoping. The first year the crop was taken by the birds, in later years sometimes by Indians, or more birds, or it failed. Finally after six years all their difficulties seemed overcome: a rich harvest was in sight, when lo! on from the west came a cloud of grasshoppers and devoured everything: wheat, garden produce and every green herb in the colony. The Chronicle goes on to say "This sudden and unexpected disaster was more than they could bear. The unfortunate emigrants, looking up toward heaven, wept." I always think it speaks volumes for their good Scotch upbringing that the did no more than that."

INCREASED OUTPUT OF SALMON - The salmon canneries of British Columbia have been producing an increased output this year and the pack is already larger than the production for the full year 1932.

Up to the earlier part of October the packers had put up 1,110,073 cases, or nearly 110,000 more cases than had been processed at the same date in 1932 and 26,022 cases more than were canned in all of last year. The final pack figures for 1933 will be increased by some thousands of cases over the figures completed in October.

A gain of 100 per cent. in the pack of pinka was the chief factor in raising this year's figures above those for 1932. On the other hand, fewer chum, cohoes, and spring salmon have been processed in 1933 than were canned in the corresponding period of 1932.

All canned salmon put up in British Columbia is now subject to compulsory inspection, which is carried out by a Canadian Government permanent board of experts. None of it may be marketed until it has been inspected, this condition making it certain that the consumer will obtain sound quality fish. Since April, 1933, pickers have also been required to mark each can of salmon with a letter indicating what particular variety of salmon it contains. "S" indicates sockeye, "P" indicates pinka, "C" cohoes, "K" chums, "T" spring, "B" bluebacks, and "H" steelhead trout.
