A clergyman, a few Sunday mornings last Tuesday. since, in his ten minute sermon to the children, told this story as an illustra- house last week looking for a leak and each other:

A gentleman stopped at a street corner to have "a shine." A little fellow, who looked very frail and white, came up and began to do the job. In a very short time it became apparent that the little "shiner" had not much strength for his work. Soon a robust boy came up and took the brush from the weaker one's hand and began to work vigorously on the gentleman's shoes.

"See here, young man," said the customer, " I don't call that a square deal. Why did you take this job away from that little chap?"

"It's all right, all, I guess," said the robust worker, with a smile and a knowing look on his face as he turned it towards his younger, weaker companion. "Yes, it's all right, sir, as long as he's willing to do it," piped out the boy, whose face was very white as he stood leaning against the lamp post. "But who am I to give the nickel to?" queried the gentleman, when his shoes were finished.

"The little chap, of course," replied the finished. "He's had hard luck, been awful sick, and we fellows have agreed to ease him up for a while."

So the gentleman paid the nickel to the first boy, and the second was picking Queen Tensen Hengerveld, a three- up his kit when the gentleman said, spring. "Here is a nickel for you, too; you deserve it for your kindness to the other fellow. The robust lad took it, but walked over to where the other boy stood, and gave it to him. "It was your job," he said, "and if you're in a little more luck today, so much the better."

"Want a shine?" he called out as he

CLOTH FROM SPIDER'S WEBS

Many years ago there was a factory A dinner party was held at the home in France which made gloves out of possible to make the cloth, but because would take to make enough thread to weave a glove, you'll know how many compartments were needed.

Spider's webs are still used for some thing else besides catching flies, however. There is a surveyors' instrument called the theodolite, and this instrument needs a very fine line drawn across its lens. The thread of a spider is only one-thirty-thousandth of an inch thick and so it is used for this purpose.
