An excellent program and social evening was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Sutherland on Friday night, last, under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church. On Tuesday night this week Esquimaux School Fair was held at Limehouse School. The weather was ideal and a tremendous crowd turned out, estimated at something over 500 people. Never before has there been such an interest taken in preparing and bringing the many entries in each class. Grain and corn provided 8 classes and some of the classes had as many as 15 entries. Potatoes, roots and vegetables had 8 classes, and it required one whole table to hold the many excellent specimens. Never before have so many flowers been shown, and competition was keen in every class, there being 6 classes in this department. Poultry had 6 classes, and some splendid birds were exhibited.

There were 4 classes in the live stock department, and some excellent animals, well trained, were shown by 5 boys and one little girl. Mr. Herb, Cook's little girl won first place in this group. Fruit and tomatoes also had a tremendous entry. There were only 5 classes in this group, and in some classes as many as 20 entries. Garden products were also well represented, there being 5 classes. Citrons in this class had 37 entries, with 6 prizes offered. Pumpkins, about the same. Writing, art, domestic science, sewing, manual training and collections all had heavy entries, and provided the judges with plenty of work in the short time at their disposal. Weed, naming, story telling, and showmanship competitions provided a real entertainment and a big program of sports were held, with points awarded the school with the most winners. The parade and physical culture exercises were an interesting part of the program, and points were awarded each school taking part. The list of winners in all the classes will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Congratulations to Acton's twenty-first Fair, held last week, accompanied with splendid autumn weather, enabling all to turn out and make the show a success. Exhibits in all classes were of a high class and type, which proved that all who had a share in contributing their products were not lacking in efforts and time to put before the public on view in the Hall and elsewhere about the Fair grounds. The program given Tuesday evening in the Arena was of a variety to suit the big gathering, and was proof that "variety is the spice of life." The attractions Wednesday on the ground along the midway were well patronized, and one feature of the Fair was the ferris wheel, which provided thrills for those who took advantage of a ride, and in the opinion of one who went up in the air, could not help but feel it was "thrilling."

SALT SENT VIA DOLLY

A missionary in the tropics of the name of Anderson and his family were having a hard time—no sugar, no flour, no salt. It was getting near Christmas, and they had faith to pray, especially for salt. One can live for months without meat, but to enjoy a stale, flabby, tropical chicken, salt is very necessary. The last mail before Christmas brought some presents for the family, but no salt. Some time before a man at home was looking round for presents to send to the Anderson children. He found a doll's head, but no body, so he did the best he could with the materials he had. On Christmas morning the little Anderson girl complained that the doll which she had received as a present was "leaking." Mrs. Anderson looked, and there was salt running out. The doll had been stuffed with salt, and their prayer was answered.

WONDER STONE

The jewellery department of a store in London was recently offering jade bead necklets for three guineas each, and at the same time had what appeared to be similar jade necklets in showcases marked three hundred guineas each. There was nothing unusual in this. Of all valuable stones jade varies the most in price according to color and workmanship. And jade is probably more difficult to value than any other precious stone. Most jade comes originally from the mines of Burma. Great blocks may be seen lying on the quays for shipment to China, where it is cut by workmen who alone know the secret of finding the perfect pieces of purest color. The Chinese are supposed to have maintained the monopoly of jade cutting on account of their patience and extreme appreciation of the beauty of the stone. The most valuable jade is of the rare emerald color and translucent.

SUBSTITUTION

A visitor to an orphanage witnessed a race for little girls. The prize was a doll. One little cripple looked wistfully at the competitors and the prize. The race was won by a bright-eyed child of eight. On receiving the doll, she rushed across to the little cripple, saying: "There! You've won!" "But I couldn't run," was the reply. "I know that, silly; but I ran for you." None of us could ever enjoy the eternal bliss of heaven if our Saviour had not made Himself our substitute, and procured salvation for us at such a cost.

NOT YET

"Have you any children, Mr. Spalth?"
"Yes—three daughters."
"Do they live at home with you?"
"Not one of them—they are not married yet."

WONDERFUL
