Leisure, the highest happiness upon earth, is seldom enjoyed with perfect satisfaction except in solitude. LECTION JOKE 78 MILE LONG

An election joke can be carried farther, according to a candidate living near Vanwater, South Africa. Not sure of his way to a meeting on the banks of the Crocodile River, he inquired at a lonely farmhouse. The husband evidently was away, and after the woman had, according to Bushveld custom, found out the traveller's name and business, she told him to keep straight on, and the road would lead him to the place. When it was about time for the meeting he struck another farmhouse, where, to his dismay, he found that he had been directed away from his destination and that the little joke would cost him a detour of nearly 70 miles of rough road. Inquiries disclosed that the woman was a supporter of another party, and had intentionally sent the opposition on the wild goose chase.

 Mother: "Not very well, but it wasn't his fault. They asked him things that happened before the poor boy was born."
